LINDBERGH BABY IS STOLEN

SCHOOL SAVING OF $30,000,000 AT STAKE TODAY

One Vote Needed to Stop Big Budget.

The spotlight in Chicago's drive for economy in government centered today on the boards of education whose members will meet this afternoon to consider their budget, which now stands at $90,195,140.

MRS. HEFFERAN.

Passage of the budget in its present form would kill hope of any substantial economies in the school system this year. The citizens' committee headed by D. F. Kelly has recommended that the budget be cut to the neighborhood of $60,000,000.

A majority of the trustees are reported to favor passage of the budget today. However, the measure requires eight votes for passage. This means that four of the eleven trustees can force further consideration. Three of them have taken a definite stand for postponement and further reductions in appropriations. They are President Lewis E. Myers and Trustees Robert F. Carr and William D. McJunkin.

Mrs. Hefferan May Decide It.

As the battle lines were drawn last night it appeared that a fourth trustee, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, might have the deciding vote. Mrs. Hefferan said her stand would be determined after the board meeting opens today.

"I want to ask Mr. Myers, Mr. Carr and Mr. McJunkin some questions, and my vote will depend upon their answers," she said. "I won't vote for anything that means further cuts in the educational department. By that I mean not only teachers' salaries, but the Normal college, physical education and everything else that has to do with the children's education. I stand alone on that question.

"Those fellows have got to cut the business department and they know it well. Until they make an honest cut in the business department, they can't pass a conscientious budget. The instructional department has been cut enough."

Hemingway Still Undecided.

Trustee James A. Hemingway said yesterday that he has not determined finally how he will vote today. He, with other representatives of the seven major local governments, attended the meeting called on Monday by Mr. Kelly and his committee to discuss budget economies.

Mr. Hemingway said yesterday that he did not vote for the resolution adopted at that meeting, in which the government heads agreed that 1932 appropriations should not exceed their 1929 tax receipts, plus whatever miscellanous revenues are available.

"I specifically asked Mr. Hemingway if there was any rush in passing the school budget," said Mr. Kelly last night. "He said it could wait until as late as March 31. I cannot say certainly whether he voted for the resolution, since a viva voce ballot was taken, but there were no nays.

Warns of "Financial Tragedy."

"It will be a tragedy—a financial tragedy—if the school budget is passed in its present form. I hope the trustees will wait for the light which George O. Fairweather and other experts on our committee will be able to give them.

"They have suggestions which should make reductions of millions of dollars possible. If the budget is passed tomorrow, the trustees will have done a hasty and expensive thing, contrary to public welfare."

Trustee Joseph P. Savage is expected to lead the fight for immediate adoption of the budget, without incorporation of any more economy suggestions. His supporters are all holdover trustees, appointed in the last city administration.

"I'm going to vote for the present budget," said Trustee Savage last night, "because I think I know more about it than those people who are trying to tell us what to do."

Carr Hopes to Stop Budget.

Trustee Carr was hopeful that enough votes will be mustered to prevent passage of the budget. He suggested a number of economies: A reductions of $500,000 in the appropriation for buildings; elimination of a $650,000 appropriation for condemna-

CHINESE LINES BROKEN; CLAIM ARMY IN FLIGHT

Jap Planes Blow Up Shanghai Railways.

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, March 2.—(Wednesday.)—China's army broke and fled today from the Chapei-Kiangwan line in front of Japan's mounting force of arms and men.

A Japanese spearhead occupied Tachang, four miles west of Kiangwan. The Japanese also said they occupied Miaochungchen, northward on the advancing battle line.

The Chinese, fleeing northward and westward, were completely demoralized, the enemy said, as the Japanese pursued them.

Observers said the Chinese were in retreat toward Nanziang, five miles west of Chenju, their headquarters, and Kunshan, farther west.

The Chinese Nineteenth route army was flung back at a cost of 1,800 lives, the Japanese said, while they lost only 60 dead.

SHANGHAI, March 2 [Wednesday].—Carrying out the ultimatum of Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, Japanese commander, that unless Chinese troop movements to Shanghai ceased his forces would destroy all railway lines within a radius of 50 miles of the city, Japanese bombing planes at daylight this morning began systematically wrecking the lines.

First flying along the Shanghai-Nanking road, the planes dropped a large number of heavy bombs near Kunshan, sometimes called Quinsan, about 33 miles from Shanghai. Due to the disruption of telephone and telegraph wires, the damage done was uncertain. One report said the line was severed.

Report Chinese in Retreat.

Japanese reports today said the Chinese troops opposing the Japanese forces in the Kiagwan sector had begun a general retreat to the Chinese second line position near Tazang. The battle on the Kiangwan front had been renewed early this morning with redoubled fury. The Chinese gave way slowly, fighting desperately for every inch of ground.

Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, former Japanese minister of war, who arrived here yesterday to take supreme command, threw thousands of his fresh storm troops into action.

The battle of the last 42 hours is declared by neutral military observers to be the most severe engagement that has been fought since the war started more than a month ago. The Japanese fixed the Chinese losses at 1,800 lives. Sixty Japanese were killed.

Try to Beat League.

Apparently determined to win an important victory before the meeting of the league of nations assembly at Geneva tomorrow, the Japanese launched an offensive at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning west of Kiangwan. After pouring tons of explosives on the Chinese positions from batteries of six inch howitzers in a bombardment lasting more than an hour, the Japanese infantry, consisting of fresh reinforcements which had just landed, pushed through the Chinese front lines. They made a gain of about 1,000 yards.

The Japanese claimed to have occupied two villages, Tuanchian and Chaowhuang, about half way between Kiangwan and Tazang. The latter town is the major Japanese objective. It is located on a motor road connecting Shanghai with Liuho, on the Yangtze river.

Planes Bomb Chinese.

In addition to the artillery and infantry attack, more than 20 large Japanese air bombers rained down hundreds of bombs, each weighing from 200 to 300 pounds, on the Chinese positions, while an equal number of other Japanese planes, equipped with machine guns, flew low over the Chinese lines and raked them with machine gun fire.

While these activities were continuing along the Kiangwan front, a fleet of Japanese tanks and caterpillar tractors advanced from the Japanese left flank against the Chinese positions west of Hongkew park, where a system of roads facilitated the operation of this branch of the Japanese war machine.

Meanwhile, the Chapei front in Shanghai broke loose this morning with a terrific artillery duel which shook the entire city. New fires broke out and the district was a blazing inferno. The Chinese appeared to be holding their positions.

Japanese newspaper men said two

3 PER CENT BEER BECOMES LEGAL IN RHODE ISLAND

Providence, R. I., March 1.—[Special.]—Three per cent beer was "legalized" in Rhode Island today when Gov. Norman S. Case signed the Sherwood act, repealing the state's prohibition enforcement act and authorizing beer with a "kick" in it. Backers of the measure in the legislature admitted that it is contrary to the Volstead act, but said they wanted to register the fact that Rhode Island is opposed to national prohibition and saw no more impressive way of going about it.

By repealing the state enforcement law the responsibility for the sale and possession of liquor in Rhode Island will be placed squarely and solely in hands of the federal prohibition authorities. Up to today the federal enforcement squad here consisted of seven men.

Rhode Island is the second New England state to repeal its state enforcement act, Massachusetts having shown the way some time ago.

The Sherwood bill provides for 3 per cent beer by weight or 3.75 per cent by volume. Democrats who opposed the measure say it is a distinction without a difference, since neither is really legal.

PETER A. WALLER DROPS DEAD IN KEWANEE HOTEL

Kewanee, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Peter August Waller, president of the Boss Manufacturing company, glove makers, and Democratic leader, dropped dead in the Parkside hotel here tonight as he was dancing at a hard times party of city leaders. Death was attributed to an apoplectic stroke.

Mr. Waller was 64 years old. He was born in Sweden and came to Kewanee in 1885, where he entered the employ of the company he later headed. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1920 and was seeking that post at the coming primary election. He was a candidate for the Democratic nomination as United States senator in 1920 and for nomination as lieutenant governor in 1928.

Mr. Waller was a director of the Union State Savings Bank and Trust company and president of the Kewanee Real Estate and Improvement company. He was a member of the Union League, Iroquois, and Swedish clubs of Chicago. He is survived by two sons, Ellis Julian and Harold Everett, and a daughter, Mrs. Emerit Anson of Minneapolis.

Law Takes "Dough" to Bank; It's Wrong "Dough"

Memphis, Tenn., March 1.—(AP)—Joe Law, a deputy in the county trustee's office, planned to foil any lurking bandits by carrying a $20,000 deposit to the bank in a loaf of bread. Two policemen went along as an escort for Law and the loaf. When they got to the bank Law broke the loaf. It was all dough and no cash. He had carried off by mistake a second loaf of bread somebody had left in his office.

Banker Ends His Life After Story of Girl

Frank E. Lackowski, 47 years old, 2954 Logan boulevard, who was formerly president of the Second Northwestern State bank and chairman of the board of the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank, both of which are closed, committed suicide late last night by leaping into the lake from the jackknife bridge in Lincoln park opposite Center street.

Accusations made during the day in the court of Judge Michael Feinberg by Miss Harriet Shosky, 5235 Wrightwood avenue, once Lackowski's secretary, are believed by investigators to have been influential in causing him to kill himself. On the stand Miss Shosky declared that he had tried for five years to make love to her and, being repulsed, had compelled her to sign a note for $55,700, found among the bank's assets.

Leaves Note to Notify Wife.

The banker's automobile and his coat and overcoat were discovered near the bridge. In the coat pockets were notes instructing the finders to call his wife and to move his body "if found" to Peter Kowaczek's undertaking establishment at 3630 George street. There was no explanation of why he was taking this means to end his life. Lincoln Park Policeman John Sweeney found the body at 1:30 a. m. in the lagoon.

A native of Manitowoc, Wis., Lackowski came to Chicago in 1906 to engage in the real estate business. He was for years a banking associate of John F. Smulski, his uncle, who committed suicide while temporarily insane in March, 1928.

Girl Makes Charges.

At the court hearing yesterday Miss Shosky was asked to explain the $55,700 note, to which were affixed her signature and those of her mother and an aunt. Lackowski faced her as she testified that he had demanded that she sign the obligation. She was then asked if she believed she had been made the victim of a frameup and replied she did.

"Who would be likely to perpetrate such a frameup?" asked the judge.

Miss Shosky, a divorcée, answered with seeming reluctance.

"During the five years I worked for him," she said, "Mr. Lackowski continually made advances to me. He insisted that a secretary and an employer could never be close in business unless there was an intimate personal relationship. I never submitted, however."

Banker Tells His Story.

Judge Feinberg called Lackowski to the stand. He testified briefly that Miss Shosky had worked for him and that he had become suspicious of her accounts, suspecting that she was embezzling bank funds to play the market. He discharged her on that ground, he said.

The story of Miss Shosky about the note was involved. She said that three years ago a customer known to her as Gus Engstrom entered the bank and told her he wanted to purchase securities to the sum of $55,900. He paid down $200 and she entered purchase order.

A few days later, when the market value of the securities slumped, Engstrom could not be found. She then told Lackowski of the transaction, she said. He told her, she continued, that it was a grave mistake which must be concealed from the directors, and added that she must beg, borrow or steal enough money to make up the loss.

She testified that she borrowed $30,000 in securities from her aunt, Mrs. Marie Karetski, 5209 Cornelia avenue, and took them to the bank. She was then required, she said, to sign the $55,700 note, the indebtedness to be reduced when the securities were sold. She signed for herself, she said, and her mother signed both for herself and the aunt.

Starts Quiz on Vets' Funds.

Assistant State's Attorney Elmer N. Holmgren yesterday announced that on Monday he would begin an investigation of former officials of the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank. Trust officers of the institution, which was closed last June by the state auditor, are to be called to the state's attorney's office and questioned concerning the practice of the bank in investing approximately $250,000 of trust estates belonging to disabled war veterans without court orders.

SEIZED WHILE SLEEPING IN HOME AT HOPEWELL, N. J.

COLONEL TELLS KNOWN DETAILS OF HIS LOSS

New York, March 2, 2:30 a. m.—[Special.]—Maj. Charles Schoeffel of the New Jersey state police issued the following statement on behalf of Col. Lindbergh at the Lindbergh home about 2 o'clock this morning:

"The baby was discovered missing at 10 o'clock. He was put to bed at 8 o'clock by his nurse, Betty Gow. At 8:30 Miss Gow returned to look at the baby and he was safe. She did not return until 10 o'clock and the baby was not there. It had been lifted from its crib and carried out in its night dress, a sort of baby bunting affair.

"There were two windows in the room unlocked. Entrance had been gained through a window with a wooden shutter which was unlocked. The reason the shutter was unlocked was because it was warped. The colonel had tried to fasten it, but was unable to do so.

"On the sill of the window were found dirt tracks made by either hands or feet. On the floor beneath the window was a small box. There were more tracks on the floor to the crib and back to the window. Underneath the window were prints made by ladders. There were also footprints, presumably made by a man in slippers or in his stocking feet. There were no heavy heel marks.

"These prints led to a wooded rocky section about 70 feet west of the house. At this point we found a makeshift ladder. There were footprints which continued from the ladder toward Hopewell road and these footprints were followed a distance of two miles by Col. Lindbergh and state police before they lost track of them. This shows that no automobile was in the vicinity of the home. They lost the tracks in a wooded section with underbrush and rocks scattered about."

While Maj. Schoeffel was speaking Col. Lindbergh walked into the room, and half smiling, said:

"I hope you boys will excuse me but I would rather that the state police answer all questions. I hope you will excuse me if you will."

He then walked out of the room.

Troops and Police of Many States Join in the Search.

New York, March 2, 3 a. m.—(Special.)—Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., 20 months old son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was kidnaped some time between 8:30 and 10 o'clock last night from his crib in the nursery on the second floor of his parents' home at Hopewell, N. J., near Princeton.

Apparently the kidnaping was carried out either while Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were at dinner or soon afterward. The baby's nurse, Miss Betty Gow, visited the nursery about 8:30 p. m. and found everything in order there. When she returned at 10 o'clock the crib was empty.

Muddy Tracks in Room.

Muddy footprints that trailed across the floor from the crib to an open window bore mute testimony as to how the baby had disappeared. Miss Gow dashed downstairs.

"The baby's been kidnaped," she shouted.

Col. Lindbergh was on his feet in an instant. He raced up to the nursery, followed closely by Mrs. Lindbergh. Mrs. Lindbergh recalled that earlier in the day she had tried to fasten a screen on that very window and had been unable to do so.

Colonel Calls Police.

Realizing that the baby actually was gone, Col. Lindbergh telephoned Chief of Police Charles Williamson at Hopewell. Williamson drove to the house, accompanied by another officer. Outside the door they met the colonel. He was bareheaded and wearing an old black leather jacket such as he frequently wears on his flights.

Briefly he told Williamson what had occurred. The chief telephoned first to state police headquarters at Trenton. Then he and his fellow officer and the colonel began searching the grounds outside the house.

Find Ladder in Bushes.

Beneath the nursery window were marks where a ladder had stood and footprints. There were no shoe prints, and prints of but one person. The kidnaper apparently had worn socks or moccasins.

Sixty feet away in a clump of bushes at the edge of a woods, they found a makeshift ladder. Its rungs were caked with mud.

Footprints End at Road.

The searchers had no difficulty in following the footprints across the muddy ground. A second set of tracks joined them near the edge of the woods. They were much smaller in size. The two officers thought they might be those of a woman.

A strong detachment of state troopers arrived from the barracks at Lambertville. The tracks were followed to the main highway about a half mile from the house where they disappeared. The kidnapers evidently had entered an automobile at that point.

Armed with a flashlight and still in his aviator's jacket, Col. Lindbergh stuck to the searching party until long after midnight. Once or twice he returned to the

FIND ABANDONED CAR IS NOT ONE USED BY LINDBERGH KIDNAPING

Atlantic City, N. J., March 1.—(AP)—A green sedan stolen tonight from Herbert Allen and at first reported to have been the machine used by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby was recovered by Atlantic City police several hours later.

It had been taken, police said, by some boys who had driven it around until the fuel supply was exhausted and then abandoned it. The car's license number, A-1153, New Jersey, had been broadcast over police teletype systems as the possible kidnap machine.

Police announced that its recovery, however, definitely eliminated it from the kidnap search.

SISTER-IN-LAW OF LINDY ONCE RECEIVED THREAT

New York, March 1.—(AP)—The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby tonight recalled that Constance Morrow, 18-year-old sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, received several threatening letters while attending the Milton academy at Westwood, Mass., three years ago.

The letters demanded $50,000 upon pain of death or mutilation. After an investigation police attributed them to a "crank."

Meanwhile, however, Miss Morrow as a safety precaution made a secret journey to New York and flew to the Morrow summer home at North Haven, Me., with Col. Lindbergh and members of the Morrow family.

Similar attempts to extort money from various other prominent persons in the east were reported at the time.

Mrs. Lindbergh Expecting Another Baby in 3 Months

Englewood, N. J., March 1.—[Special.]—It was revealed tonight by Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, that her daughter is expecting another child in three months. Members of the family fear that worry over the kidnaping of her son may seriously affect her health.

house. But he declined to discuss the kidnaping with newspaper men. Instead, he referred them to Maj. Charles Schoeffel of the state police, who told the story in detail.

"You'll have to excuse me," he told them. "I'm sure you'll understand how I feel."

Mrs. Lindbergh, though greatly shocked by the baby's disappearance, was reported to be "bearing up as well as might be expected."

Within a few minutes after word of the kidnaping reached state police headquarters at Trenton all available troopers were ordered out to search automobiles along the highway and an alarm was flashed over the police teletype system in New Jersey and adjacent states.

The alarm read:

"Col. Lindbergh's baby kidnaped from Lindbergh home at Hopewell between 7:30 and 10 p. m. Boy, 19 months old, dressed in sleeping suit. Search all cars."

Guards were posted immediately along all main arteries of traffic leading from New Jersey into New York and Pennsylvania. City and county police coöperated with state troopers in searching all automobiles leaving the state as well as in cars on highways for miles around the Lindbergh home.

New York Car Nearby.

Princeton police learned that men in a black or dark blue sedan bearing New York license plates had been heard on a nearby road inquiring their way to the Lindbergh home just before the kidnaping and a general alarm was sent out for the car.

When word reached New York, Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney was at home in bed. He was notified and hurried to police headquarters to take personal charge of the hunt here. He ordered special guards posted at once at the entrance to the Holland tunnel and the George Washington Memorial bridge, as well as at all ferry terminals. He also mustered all available police cars and sent them out with orders to search automobiles whose occupants looked suspicious.

Long after midnight the Lindbergh home at Hopewell was ablaze with lights while Col. Lindbergh was kept busy discussing the kidnaping with officials of the state and county police. A trooper stood guard at the entrance of the lane which leads back from the highway to the house. Two more troopers stood guard at the entrance to the house, while at least a score of others were scattered over the vicinity hunting clews.

Intruders Heard by None.

Col. Lindbergh conducted police officials personally to the nursery, explaining at the same time how he and Mrs. Lindbergh had first learned that the baby was missing.

The colonel agreed with the police that the persons responsible for the kidnaping apparently had been well acquainted with the layout of the house. Neither he nor Mrs. Lindbergh, nor any other of the occupants of the house had heard any sounds of prowlers, he said.

Maj. Charles Schoefel of the state police who took charge of the investigation announced that he had obtained from the contractor who built the Lindbergh home a list of every man employed there during the building, and that all of these men would be questioned by police. State Trooper Michael Hullfish of Hopewell, who was foreman of the construction gang, aided in this task.

Widespread Alarms.

While the first troops were speeding from the barracks at Morristown, to the north, and from Trenton, to augment the searchers on the scene, additional details were posted at every crossroad to complete a cordon about the neighborhood and stop all cars for questioning.

Through the agency of the teletype the alarm reached the police of New York, Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Camden, and Philadelphia within a few minutes of the receipt of the first news at Trenton. All of them quickly swung into action, as did the New York and Pennsylvania state police.

Orders were flashed to every precinct by the police telegraph system to be on the alert for suspicious cars, while the new police radio station WPEG flashed word to the short wave station of the patrolling detective cars to join in the watch.

Similar steps, though on a smaller scale, were being repeated simultaneously in every city for many miles around the Lindbergh home. Posses of motorcycle and bandit squad policemen from Philadelphia, Pa., and New Jersey state troopers, clamped down a heavy guard on every bridge over the Delaware river.

Boulevard Traffic Halted.

The Roosevelt boulevard, as that part of the Lincoln highway route leading into Philadelphia is known, was closely patrolled and the busy stream of traffic which it always carries was slowed down almost to a snail's pace as the searchers satisfied themselves on the cars which passed.

The special police who patrol the Holland tunnel and the new George Washington bridge over the Hudson took similar precautions in New York. Every car was examined before it was permitted to pass from New Jersey into New York, and as result traffic was considerably delayed about midnight.

Baby 20 Months Old.

Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. was born at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, the late Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, in Englewood, N. J., June 22, 1930, on Mrs. Lindbergh's 24th birthday.

Perhaps no time in history had an unborn child been so widely publicized

LINDBERGH KIDNAPING RECALLS ABDUCTION IN 1874 OF ROSS CHILD

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Among the tragic crimes in the annals of police history throughout the United States have been the numerous kidnapings of young children, often of prominent parents. Many—in fact, most—of these crimes have gone unsolved, and seldom have the pathetic victims been restored to their parents.

Perhaps the most memorable was the abduction of Charley Ross, the four-year-old son of a Philadelphia merchant, who was lured from the lawn of his home in Germantown on July 1, 1874, with his older brother, Walter, by two men in a buggy who promised to buy the boys firecrackers.

A few blocks down the street, the men sent Walter into a store with money, and when the little lad returned, the buggy and Charley were gone.

Within three days the entire nation was alarmed by the case, and no stone was left unturned by police or the father, Christian K. Ross, to find some clew to the missing boy. Countless letters arrived at the Ross home demanding ransom. A score or more of apparently certain "tips" on the boy's whereabouts proved false. Year after year passed, and when the boy's father died in 1897 it was estimated that he had spent $60,000 in the vain search for his son. Persons still appear today claiming that they are Charlie Ross. The mystery has never been solved.

as was Baby Lindbergh. Long before his arrival newspapers in all parts of the world printed rumors of the child's coming.

At 3 p. m. on that June day the news was announced that the Lindbergh baby, weighing between 7½ and 7¾ pounds, had arrived, and the word was flashed round the world, by telegraph, cable, and wireless.

Reporters, who had waited at the gate of the Morrow estate for several days, raced to the nearest telephones and telegraph offices. Radio broadcasters sent the message out over chains of stations.

Well Wishes from Everywhere.

Within an hour after the child was born messages began to pour into the Morrow home from everywhere from people in all walks of life. Everybody seemed to be interested in the birth of the son of the most famous young man in modern history. Strangers came in long motor processions to the gate of the estate to offer their congratulations.

An hour after the news of the baby's birth became known a song, based on his arrival, was sung from one of the broadcasting stations, a paid program being interrupted so that it might be put on the air while the news was still hot. From Mexico City, where Lindbergh wooed and won Miss Anne Morrow came hundreds of telegrams of congratulation.

President Ortiz Rubio sent his personal congratulations and that of his people. And in far off France, where the name of Lindbergh was cheered whenever it was mentioned, the nation "adopted" the Lindbergh baby. It was the favorite topic on the boulevards and in thousands of French forts.

Baby Kept Out of Limelight.

For a month the world got few details about the famous baby, but late in July the colonel said he and his wife, contemplating flying to the Morrow summer home in Maine and might take the child with them. The nation waited expectantly, but the trip finally was made without the baby. Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh changed their plans at the last moment.

Cheated of the vicarious thrill of reading about the baby's flight, mothers throughout the world watched for details of the baby's development. Was it to be trained as their children were? A dispatch from Washington in September, 1930, gave the first clew. His first book was to be "The Painted Pig," a work of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Morrow.

A month later Colonel Lindbergh announced the baby would be permitted to choose his own life work. At the same time it was learned that so many gifts had been sent to the child that the Lindbergh's could not find room for them all. They came from every part of the world.

Gifts of Toys Swamp Parents.

"To acknowledge them individually," said a writer who had interviewed Colonel Lindbergh, "was completely out of the question. To have returned them without a personal explanation would have seemed an ungracious act, while to send the gifts to charitable organizations might also have appeared as lack of appreciation." The baby's toys became a real problem and they kept mounting with each new batch of mail from the more distant parts of the globe.

On Oct. 17, 1930, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh moved into the home of Harold M. Van Horn near Princeton, N. J., to stay until the home they were building near Hopewell should be completed.

Baby Lindbergh's first Christmas was spent at the home of his grandparents in Englewood.

SOUTHERN FLIGHT BRINGS ROMANCE TO 'LUCKY LINDY'

Good Will Tour Results in Marriage.

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—A good will flight and a good will mission, both identified with international policies, brought Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow together, and remained the background of the romance that was their courtship until their marriage on May 27, 1929.

It all began in Mexico City in December, 1927, when the flyer dropped down there in his plane on the air tour of Central America, the Caribbean littoral and the West Indies. Miss Morrow and other members of her family were with her father, the late Dwight W. Morrow, then ambassador to Mexico.

Met at Embassy.

Col. Lindbergh met Miss Morrow at the embassy and they saw a great deal of one another during the weeks that followed, when Col. Lindbergh was fêted not only by the ambassador, but by President Calles, other Mexican dignitaries, and the American colony. At the time it appeared to observers that the flyer distributed his interest between the sisters, Miss Anne and Miss Elizabeth Morrow, quite impartially.

The friendship between Lindbergh and the Morrows continued after the Caribbean tour was finished and the sisters were back in the United States. Englewood grew accustomed to the roar of an airplane motor dipping in salute over the Morrow estate, and also to the sight of Col. Lindbergh at the wheel of an automobile on his way to or from the home.

Then the romance began attracting notice, for the flyer, shy by temperament and one known to his earlier associates as having "fled from women," was not a frequent visitor at the home of many debutantes. In autumn of 1929, rumors crystallized to an extent that an engagement was whispered.

Betrothal Is Announced.

Oddly enough, the rumor first named Miss Elizabeth Morrow, older than her sister and a teacher in the Dwight school for girls in Englewood, as the colonel's fiancée. Ambassador Morrow denied the report. Less than two months later, however, definite announcement of the betrothal was given to the press at the Mexican embassy, to which the ambassador had repaired with Mrs. Morrow and Anne.

"Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

Col. Lindbergh maintained his customary silence, while word of the bethrothal excited the press of the world.

Periled In Crash.

But the romance was not to be without a perilous moment. Col. Lindbergh had the harrowing experience of involving his fiancé in an air crash. The couple had taken off from the Mexican capital the morning of Feb. 27, ostensibly for a picnic luncheon by themselves. The Lindbergh plane had figured in the courtship just as the Lindbergh motor car; they left without incident.

But when the plane appeared over the field again, attendants and persons about the hangars watched with interest. One of its landing wheels was missing.

While the colonel strained at the controls, the plane fluttered down. It struck the ground at forty miles an hour. For an instant, luckily perhaps, it coasted precariously over the field and then tilted over on the useless axle.

The craft went forward on her nose, but was not seriously damaged. Miss Morrow emerged dazed but unhurt. Questioners surrounded her, but, looking at Lindbergh, who did not reveal that he was suffering from pain, she referred the interviewers to "Augustus" for a statement.

Col. Lindbergh called the affair a "mishap." Like Miss Morrow, he emerged smiling, but he did not jest about the occurrence; it was far too serious a matter for him. He was found later to have dislocated his shoulder and physicians set it that night.

Undaunted, the next day the couple took the air again, the bride to be sitting at the pilot's side without concern. A few days later Col. Lindbergh left Mexico and in late April his fiancée, with Mrs. Morrow, came north. The wedding followed at Englewood.

WOMAN KILLED BY GAS.

Mrs. Blanche Shogren, 37 years old, was found dead yesterday in the kitchen of her home at 243 Englewood avenue. She had been killed by gas flowing from burners of the kitchen stove.

HOME OF LINDBERGHS IN CENTER OF DENSELY WOODED JERSEY TRACT

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—The home of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, near Hopewell, N. J., from which their 20 months old son, Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., was kidnaped tonight, is on Sourland mountain, about ten miles north of Princeton in the center of the colonel's 350 acre estate.

Built of native field stone, covered with a white cement wash, the house, a rambling two and a half story structure, overlooks Hopewell, which is three miles away. It was not completed until late last October and the Lindberghs did not move into it until about five months after they had cut short their Asiatic tour, after the death of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, the late Sen. Dwight W. Morrow.

The interior is simply furnished, in keeping with the distaste of both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh for display. The house contains ten rooms, including several bedrooms overlooking the Hopewell valley. On the ground floor are the living rooms, connected through French doors with a large porch, a dining room and a wing in which the kitchen is located.

For miles around the territory is densely wooded, very little of the district, known officially as the Sorrel mountains, being cultivated. A number of other estates are in the neighborhood. Two small clearings of farm land are contained in the Lindbergh estate.

The Lindbergh's picked the site of their home from the air as they were flying over the Jersey forests seeking a suitable spot. It was selected for complete privacy, an aim which was achieved. It is far off the regular highways and can only be reached by dirt and gravel roads which wind through dense woods. The only nearby neighbors are farmers who live a simple rural existence and with whom the Lindberghs have had little to do.

In the back of the house are dense woods through which passage can be made because of the undergrowth only by following the long unused paths. In front and on both sides is open country. A quarter of a mile away from the structure the meadows form a natural landing field for airplanes. However, the colonel since moving to his new home has made it a practice to motor back and forth to his New York office.

Fifteen miles to the west is the Delaware river, which is bridged there at Lambertville. A few miles to the south two of the main highways, routes 29 and 31 cross. Also a few miles away to the east is the old main line road which connects New Brunswick and Princeton.

SIX GUNMEN HOLD UP BERWYN BANK; FLEE WITH $3,500

Six masked bandits, armed with submachine guns and revolvers, robbed the First American National Bank and Trust company at 6801 West 22d street, Berwyn, of $3,500 yesterday. The raid on the bank was carried out with speed and precision.

Arriving at the bank in two automobiles, five of the gunmen went into the building, while the sixth man remained in one of the machines. One of the band entered the office of the president, Francis Karel, who was talking with John L. Tupy, a building contractor of Riverside.

Two other men stood with machine guns on either side of the entrance. The leader of the band, with leveled revolver, stood guard over Charles Zitnick, cashier, while another robber went through each cage, systematically scooping up all the money in sight. Then they walked out, followed by the machine gunners. They escaped in one of the cars, abandoning one that had been stolen.

Kane county authorities continued their search yesterday for the four bandits who obtained $2,600 in a robbery of the Burlington State bank at Burlington on Monday. The bandit car, found abandoned in a gravel pit several miles from Burlington, had been stolen on Sunday night from the Chicago municipal airport. The owner is Edmund Ronske, 126 Kenilworth avenue, Elmhurst.

CERMAK WARNS TEACHERS ON TAX WARRANTS

School Workers Advised Not to Take Them.

Mayor Cermak warned school employés yesterday that the city will stop dipping into its funds to pay them in cash if they accept the tax warrants the school board is distributing in payment of salaries.

As his statement was issued, several hundred employés, including a large group of teachers, were lined up in the old City State bank building, 126 North Wells street, exchanging the "N. S. F." checks, which the board had given them for their December pay, for small denomination warrants. About 1,500 employés took a total of $850,000 warrants during the day.

Earlier in the day the school employés received checks for half a month's pay in November, about $2,500,000, backed by cash furnished by the city. Many of the teachers said they had to run a gantlet of bill collectors on their way downtown for the tax warrants.

Pay Police and Firemen.

Pay checks for the first half of January were sent to fire and police stations last evening, and their distribution to members of those departments was started at midnight roll calls. The fire and police pay rolls will use up $800,000 of the $1,200,000 which remained in the city's corporate fund. Controller Szymczak expressed hope that banks will buy $2,000,000 more of 1930 tax warrants from the city within a day or so, which will make it possible to give all other city employés and those of the public library and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium half a month's pay.

The statement on the payment of school wages in warrants from Mayor Cermak, who is resting in Hot Springs, was issued by Corporation Counsel Sexton. The mayor discussed the law, passed at the special legislative session, authorizing the board to meet salaries for which it has no cash with tax warrants bearing 6 per cent interest.

Teachers May Take Choice.

"It is not on my recommendation or advice that the warrants will be issued, if they are issued," Mayor Cermak stated. "I am bound to sign the warrants if they are properly drawn and presented to me for my signature. In case they are not acceptable to the teachers, if there is cash in the city treasury it will be distributed so that the teachers will share it the same as all other city employés.

"If the teachers do accept the warrants, obviously it will not be possible to give them both cash and warrants—they must take their choice. The fact that the teachers accepted scrip to some extent prevented the payment of cash during the period for which they accepted it.

"When the teachers stopped taking scrip, the city's officials paid them along with other city employés. This will continue to be the policy, so far as I can control it in the future, if the teachers do not accept tax anticipation warrants in lieu of cash."

Trustees Are Indignant.

School trustees were indignant at the mayor's statement.

"I think the purpose is too apparent to require any comment from me," said President Myers of the school board.

Other trustees construed the mayor's statement to mean merely that the city will not provide cash for pay periods for which warrants have already been issued.

"We will stop the issue of warrants when they get some cash in the city hall," said one.

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday turned $1,456,793 in 1930 tax collection, in cash and tax warrants, over to five local governments. The city got $1,000,000, of which $656,620 was in tax warrants.

FAMOUS CHILD KIDNAPINGS OF HALF A CENTURY

Kidnapings, spotted with ransom, gold and death, have aroused the country at periods during the last fifty years. Among the more conspicuous:

1874—Charlie Ross, stolen in Germantown, Pa., never recovered and supposed to have been killed.

1898—Gerald Lapiner, Chicago abducted and found later in Ohio.

1900—Edward Cudahy was kidnaped by Pat Crowe, who served a prison sentence. Cudahy was returned.

1907—Rose Giordiano, New York, returned. Abductors arrested two years later.

1909—Billy Whitla, Sharon, Pa., recovered after $10,000 ransom was paid. Kidnapers imprisoned.

1910—Michael Scimeca, New York. Held for $8,000. Believed slain.

1911—Baby Hencks, Chicago. Believed slain. Abductors in Joliet prison.

1911—Lloyd Trezke, Cleveland. Found in California after fifteen years.

1913—Catherine Winters, kidnaped in Newcastle, Ind.; never found.

1917—Baby Lloyd Keet, Springfield, Mo., slain.

1924—[illegible] Borth, kidnaped by moron in Chicago. Found unharmed after a week.

1924—Bobby Franks, kidnaped and slain in Chicago by Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, who are serving life sentences in prison.

1927—Marian Parker, 12 years old, Los Angeles, kidnaped and slain by William Hickman, who was captured and executed.

1927—Billy Gaffney, 4 years old, Brooklyn, kidnaped for ransom and never found. Believed to have been slain.

1928—Billy Ranieri, 10 years old, kidnaped but later restored to parents. Two kidnapers sentenced to 25 years in prison.

1930—Adolphus Busch Orthwein, 13 years old, grandson of millionaire brewer, kidnaped from home near St. Louis but released 20 hours later. Kidnaper sentenced to prison.

1931—Marian McLean, 6 years old, Cincinnati, kidnaped and assaulted, and later found dead in basement. Slayer captured and confesses.

SENATOR FIGHTS FOR U. S. LAW TO HANG KIDNAPERS

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Immediate pressure for early passage of the measure making kidnaping a federal offense is held certain to be the result of the kidnaping of Col. Lindbergh's son.

Senator Patterson of Missouri recently introduced a bill to this effect. It provides a death penalty, which would be by hanging. The measure would give authority to the government when the kidnaped person is removed from one state to another.

The bill was approved unanimously two weeks ago by the senate judiciary committee and its supporters are confident that it will be adopted by the senate.

A companion bill introduced by Representative Cochran of Missouri, chairman of the committee on expenditures, has been before the judiciary committee in that branch for about ten days. The hearings were scheduled for completion soon and the portents, before news of the Lindbergh kidnaping came out, were for a favorable report.

"It is a shock to me to hear of this outrage," said Mr. Patterson of the Lindbergh case.

On Jan. 23 a telephone message was received from Chicago to the effect that there was a plot to kidnap Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who had just been appointed president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Mr. Patterson then said that this information came from a newspaper correspondent. It created excitement in Washington official circles, although the general refused to take it seriously. However, it spurred the efforts of those behind the legislation.

As a result, when the house judiciary committee began hearings Col. Robert Isham Randolph of Chicago, head of the "Secret Six" of that city, and former Representative Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis came to Washington to urge early action.

DEFICIT IGNORED BY CONGRESS ON SPENDING SPREE

House Fails to Heed Need for Curtailment.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Although there has been a radical decline of the national government's revenue, producing enormous treasury deficits, congress up to date has failed to institute any drastic reduction of government expenditures.

Revenue failed to equal expenditures to the extent of 900 millions last year and prospectively will fall short 2 billion 100 millions this year and 1 billion 700 millions next year.

Still Spending Millions.

So far the house has passed bills appropriating $338,801,738 for the expenditures of the departments of agriculture, interior, commerce, labor, state and justice for the fiscal year 1933. The 1932 appropriations for these departments aggregated $471,643,172. The President's budget recommended reduction to $397,904,264.

In the face of a 1933 deficit of one billion, 700 millions, therefore, there has been a reduction up to date of only $132,841,434 from the expenditures of the current year, which are abnormally inflated by the outlays on numerous forms of depression relief.

In a time of financial stringency, when a further enormous decline of revenue from income and corporation taxes is expected to materialize on March 15, the house has voted appropriations which represent not less, but actually $24,470,238 more than was expended by these departments in such a year of overflowing government coffers as 1929.

The 1929 appropriations for these departments compared with the 1933 allotments made by the house are shown in the following table:

Department—	1929.	1933.
State	$ 14,466,236	$ 15,192,148
Justice	26,808,062	*39,472,275
Commerce	38,375,536	43,935,242
Labor	11,078,340	14,346,827
Agriculture	154,723,793	175,408,814
Interior	†68,789,539	50,446,432
Total	$314,331,500	$338,801,738

*Exclusive of $11,369,500 for prohibition enforcement, which was not under this department in 1929.

†Exclusive of pension bureau, transferred from this department in 1931.

A few senators and congressmen have demanded a sweeping curtailment of the paternalistic, subventionary, and regulatory functions of the federal government representing invasions of the jurisdiction of state government as originally conceived which are costing the taxpayers more than 800 millions a year.

But these warnings and demands have been ignored by the vast majority of the legislators, whose intent is to preserve the bureaucracy intact and tide over the period of stringency by increasing taxes and issuing bonds.

Fight to Hold Jobs.

The bureaucracy of nearly 700,000 pay rollers has swung into effective action against salary cuts, reductions of bureau appropriations, decrease of personnel and elimination of any of the present activities of the central government.

At times the house has resounded with soulful outcries over such cheese paring economies as were being proposed. The house, upon recommendation of the appropriations committee, voted to abolish the offices of appraisers, surveyors and controllers of customs at all ports, except New York—29 in all—in order to effect an estimated saving of $153,800 a year, but not until several members had strenuously opposed the cut.

Representative Leonidas C. Dyer [Rep., Mo.] unsuccessfully pressed an amendment to except the St. Louis appraiser, a woman with a salary of $4,600. Mrs. Florence P. Kahn [Rep., Cal.] tried with no more success, to save all 29 on a point of order.

Representative Fred C. Gilchrist [Rep., Ia.] proposed an amendment reducing a 3 million dollar appropriation for reclamation to 30 cents, arguing that reclamation of arid lands is only increasing the farm product surpluses that are beggaring farmers. The amendment was defeated, 4 to 37.

Patman at Bat.

Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.] called attention to a periodical called "The Federal Architect," published by the Association of Federal Architects, 410 Treasury building, Washington, under the editorship of Edward B. Morris, chief architect for government buildings. The publication was started with the launching of the huge public building construction program for relief of unemployment.

Mr. Patman was exercised over articles appearing in the publication urging the use of aluminum in building construction. One article was by an officer of the Aluminum Company of America owned by Andrew W. Mellon who was then secretary of the treasury. So much aluminum was specified for the federal reserve bank building at Pittsburgh, said Mr. Patman, that the Mellon-Steuart company, by virtue of the Mellon "monopoly on aluminum" outbid all competitors.

Set 50c Minimum for Haircuts in Loop Shops

A minimum price of 50 cents for haircuts in loop barber shops was established last night by the Loop Master Barbers' association. The present standard price in downtown shops is 60 cents. At last night's meeting it was decided that shops could charge the present scale if they wished but that the lowest permissible charge was to be 50 cents. An ultimatum was issued to 23 shops, now charging less than 50 cents, that they must charge at least the minimum or be outlawed.

HAWAIIAN RAPIST GETS LIFE SAME DAY OF HIS CRIME

Ex-Convict Confesses Assault on Maid.

HONOLULU, March 1.—(AP)—John Fernandez, 21-year-old former convict, was sentenced to life imprisonment late today when he pleaded guilty to an assault earlier in the day on a Japanese servant woman.

Sentence, pronounced nine hours after the attack upon Mrs. Miwa Watanabe, mother of four children, was the first under the new law passed by a special session of the legislature increasing penalties in such cases. Answering criticism that he should have imposed the death penalty, Circuit Judge Albert M. Cristy said that under his construction of the law life imprisonment was the maximum.

Quick action by police and citizens resulted in the capture of Fernandez, who was identified by the woman as the one who had raped her this morning near the home of Harold Castle, her employer. Mr. Castle is a cousin of William Castle, undersecretary of state at Washington. He lives on the opposite side of Ohau island from Honolulu.

Trial of Americans Nears.

The assault came three days after an attack on Mrs. Kathleen Hope, wife of a navy enlisted man and nine days before the scheduled trial of four Americans charged with the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, one of four accused of attacking the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie on Sept. 12.

The trial of Lieut. Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville B. Fortescue, American society matron, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, naval enlisted men, set for March 10, probably will be delayed awaiting the arrival of Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminal lawyer. He said today he would leave Chicago March 15 for Honolulu to participate in the defense. Montgomery Winn, defense counsel, said he would file a motion for a continuance until April 1.

Malone Joins Defense.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Dudley Field Malone, international lawyer, tonight announced he would go to Honolulu to join Clarence Darrow in defending Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three others charged with second degree murder.

MEET TO PLAN LUTHERAN WORK FOR YOUNG FOLK

Representatives of the youths' organization of six Lutheran synods met yesterday at the La Salle hotel to prepare a program of religious education for the coming year. The Rev. P. N. Sjogren, general secretary of the Luther league of the Augustana synod with offices in Chicago, said the work prepared by this committee will reach 1,500,000 young people of the nation.

BOYS HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE.

Edward Joyce and Fred Dowl, both 19 years old, who were captured in a drug store when an alarm was set off, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $20,000 each by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Boys' court yesterday on charges of burglary.

TAX COLLECTIONS TO TAL $5,500,000; PAY ON PERSONALTY

Several large personal property 1930 tax payments were made yesterday. So far the tax collections have amounted to $5,500,000, of which $500,000 are on realty. Yesterday's personalty collections included a payment of $13,480 on the estate of Nettie F. McCormick, 30 North La Salle street; $45,619 for H. F. McCormick, 675 Rush street; $60,711 for Cyrus F. McCormick, 20 East Burton place, and $32,352 for the trustee of the estate of Mary V. McCormick, 30 North La Salle street.

The Northern Trust company, 50 South La Salle street, paid $99,332 on account of two pieces of real estate, and James F. Porter, 105 West Adams street, paid $45,754 on five pieces of real estate. Pixley & Ehlers, 22 South Clark street, paid $3,282 in full on four real estate parcels.

COUNTY OFFICERS WONDER IF THEY STILL HAVE JOBS

Members of the county board were bewildered yesterday as they tried to discover if their failure to adopt a budget at midnight Monday had made county offices nonexistent. County Attorney Hayden N. Bell repeated his opinion that the board's failure to pass a budget before March 1 had wiped out county offices and endangered the entire county tax levy.

A contrary position was taken by Charles Center Case, former attorney for the county board, who expressed the view that the board had until March 7 to enact its budget. The fiscal year does not end until March 7, according to Attorney Case.

Still another view was taken by Attorney Urban Lavery, employed by the board, who insisted that the bill signed by Gov. Emmerson Feb. 19 extends the time for passage of the budget until May 1. This measure has been declared illegal by Attorney Bell on the ground that no emergency is stated in the bill.

Confronted with these differing opinions, the commissioners confessed themselves baffled. They directed Attorney Bell to look further into the law and give a formal opinion at a meeting of the finance committee at 11 o'clock this morning.

GAMBLING DEBT LEGAL IF STAKE, A JURY DECIDES

Greensburg, Pa., March 1.—(AP)—A jury decided today a gambling debt is legal, especially when a loser is "staked" and then fails to pay back the loan.

Joseph L. Lee claimed he loaned $550 to K. I. Shaffer during card games. He said Shaffer later issued two checks to cover the amount, but before Lee could cash the checks, Shaffer stopped payment on them.

A jury returned a verdict for $550 in favor of Lee.

CRIPPLE INSURES FIRST WET TEST VOTE IN HOUSE

145th Signature on Plea Silences Dry's Jeers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—A crippled man spun his wheel chair around in front of the clerk's desk in the house of representatives today, wrote his name as No. 145 on the petition to bring the Beck-Linthicum bill to the floor of the house, and thereby assured the first real test vote on prohibition in the house since the dry law was adopted.

The man in the wheel chair was Representative Joseph J. Mansfield [Dem., Tex.], who had said he did not want to join in any idle gesture, but had promised he would be on hand when the final signature was needed.

His name and the names of the 144 representatives from 26 states who preceded him mean that on March 14 the question automatically before the house will be whether or not the house judiciary committee shall be discharged from further consideration of the wets' resolution calling for a modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Gives Power to States.

Under the terms of the resolution the prohibition amendment would be revised to permit congress to regulate traffic in liquor, but with the reservation that states which decide to be wet may set up their own method of regulation.

The wet forces in congress were jubilant over their showing of strength. At the last congress, though there was no test vote, it was estimated that representatives favoring repeal or submission of the question to the people did not number more than 80 or 90. Today wet leaders' predictions of the final vote ranged from 160 to as high as 190 in the affirmative.

Even the most optimistic, of course, do not look to see the resolution successfully reported out, since a majority of the house is 218. Actual passage, since the question will be one of amending the constitution, would require a two-thirds vote.

Blanton Jeers at Wets.

The last minutes before the final signature was placed on the petition were dramatic. Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.], most vocal of the fanatic drys, was in the process of jeering at the wets for being one man short, when Representative Mansfield rolled through the door and signed.

Representative La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] was quick to seize the opportunity for a retort.

"Any time that this house has the experience of seeing the distinguished gentleman from Texas get unduly excited we may know that it is because he becomes panicky on the eve of a defeat," he declared. "I submit to the gentleman from Texas, in all kindliness, that it is no idle gesture when 145 members of this house, representing over 14,000,000 citizens, petition the congress to consider a proposition to let the people of this country reconsider the matter of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution.

"We have arrived at a time when we must reason, when we must discuss this question of prohibition normally, clearly and rationally and not under the fanaticism of the past.

NATION DOOMED UNLESS EXPENSES ARE CUT—SNOW

Tells Taxpayers Spending Orgy Must End.

The American nation is doomed to destruction unless the voters rebel against the orgy of government spending, Bernard W. Snow told a meeting of taxpayers in St. Columbanus hall, 71st street and Calumet avenue, last night.

Mr. Snow spoke as the Chicago organizing director of the new National Federation of American Business, which has as its purpose the election of federal officials who will keep the government out of business and who will stop squandering the taxpayers' money.

"We are facing a greater crisis today than we faced in 1860, when it was just a question of whether we should have one or many governments," said Mr. Snow. "It is not too late to remedy the situation, but we are far along the primrose path of dalliance that leads to destruction, and if we don't begin soon we shall never leave the security and hope for the future to our children that our fathers left to us."

Blames Government Interference.

Mr. Snow said one of the principal reasons for our present financial distress is the constantly increasing activity of the federal government in business enterprises, a departure, he said, from one the basic principles of the constitution.

"We are gradually acquiring a government of state socialism," said the speaker, "with the government conducting businesses on the taxpayers' money in competition with individual citizens. The federal and state governments have invaded more than 160 lines of private endeavor. There is no record of a single success, but profit means nothing to government, for it merely reaches into your pocket and makes up the deficit."

Summarizes Activities.

Mr. Snow summarized the government's business activities and the increase in appropriations since the beginning of the world war, when, he said, the principle of individual enterprise was forgotten.

"The government," he said, "lost $1,600,000,000 by operating the railroads 32 months, and you are called upon to pay that. It lost $3,000,000,000 building up a merchant marine during the war, and we are still trying to run a merchant marine with a deficit of $60,000,000 a year. A government railroad in Alaska cost $70,000,000, and it hasn't begun to pay the operating costs."

National Debt Greater.

Denouncing the indiscriminate creation of bureaus and commissions, Mr. Snow said the congressional appropriation for all these "tax suckers" in 1913 was $114,000,000, and that this increased to $556,000,000, exclusive of the farm board, in 1931. In a little more than three years, he said, congress has increased our national indebtedness from $16,000,000,000 to more than it was at the end of the war, some $22,000,000,000. In less than 60 days the present congress has appropriated more than $2,500,000,000 without putting through a single bill for the ordinary running expenses of government, he said.

"And only yesterday there came the report of the President's recommendation for an appropriation of $850,000,000 for the Columbia river irrigation project, $400,000,000 of which would be used for irrigating 1,250,000 acres of land. They say we can't afford to grow wheat on $40 land, but that will be $333 an acre land for the raising of wheat."

COURT VOIDS DRY RAID MADE WITH FAKE LODGE CARD

U. S. Judges Upset Seven Padlocking Cases.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—[Special.]—Methods of Federal prohibition agents in procuring evidence on "fake" membership cards which resulted in the padlocking of seven Eagle lodges in Pennsylvania by the federal court at Pittsburgh last June were condemned as "unethical and illegal" by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today, in a decision which orders the padlocks removed.

Two federal prohibition agents, representing themselves as Eagles and producing as credentials real membership cards they had in some way obtained, but on which fictitious names had been written, gained admittance to the headquarters of the seven lodges, bought beer and whisky, and afterwards procured search warrants on which they made raids.

An Important Ruling.

The decision of the Circuit court, upsetting the closing orders against the lodges and sustaining an appeal by the Eagles' lodges, was carried by a vote of two to one of the three judges who heard the case. It is considered one of the most important rulings made by any federal appellate court on the limits to which prohibition agents may go in obtaining evidence for the reason that it affords to fraternal organizations and private clubs almost the same protection bestowed on private homes by the fourth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The controlling opinion was written by Judge J. Warren Davis, a former Baptist minister, who studied law while engaged in religious work, became United States district attorney of New Jersey, later judge of the federal court of that state, and finally was appointed by President Wilson to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. It is concurred in by Judge Victor B. Woolley of Wilmington.

Makes It Test Case.

Raids made by agents working under Commander John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator, were on Eagles' headquarters in Johnstown, Altoona, Pittsburgh, and New Kensington, and on three other lodges. The case against the New Kensington lodge was made a test for all the others, and the ruling of the court affects all of them. Judge Davis, in his opinion, concurred in by Judge Woolley, says, in part:

"In deciding this exact question, we are not concerned, in general, with the illegal acquisition of testimony by tricks, artifice, fraud or unethical methods; nor are we concerned with entry by prohibition agents, by like means, to such places as saloon, night clubs and speakeasies whose doors are open to all persons who desire to enter and purchase intoxicating liquor. We are concerned only with the search and seizure based on information secured through the deceptive entrance into the lodge. Was it an invasion of the indefeasible right of personal liberty and private property secured to the appellants [the lodges] by the fourth amendment?

"The government may not make an entry by means of false representations, search as fully as possible without arousing suspicion and later make the fruit of that entry and search the basis of what otherwise might be a legal search and seizure. When it appropriates the benefits, it must bear the burdens of its own illegal acts. The grafting of the original entry and illegal search upon the later search and seizure did not cure what was unlawful in the first entry and search, but on the contrary made the whole illegal.

Declares It's False Entry.

"This search and seizure growing out of the false entry was an invasion of the indefeasible right of the personal liberty and private property of the appellants and a violation of the fourth amendment.

"If the procedure in this case may be practiced by government officials, then no home in the land is safe and the fourth amendment fails to accomplish its primary object in establishing the 'right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures.' Such practice would enable zealous government officials to do indirectly, and by subterfuge, what they may not do directly."

Sues Oak Park Wife for Divorce in Reno

Harry N. Hunnewell of Boston yesterday filed a bill for divorce in Reno, Nev., against Mrs. Helen C. Hunnewell of 533 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, according to a news dispatch from that city. CHINA FINDS HER BEST WEAPON IS TRADE BOYCOTT

Has Used It for Centuries to Protect Self.

Armed forces of Japan and China are fighting a bitter "unofficial war." A large section of Shanghai, China's richest city, is a shambles and more than a half million Chinese are homeless largely because Japan wants China to drop its boycott of Japanese goods.

The Chinese declared the boycott as a protest against Japan's seizure of Manchuria. Japan quickly felt the pinch and the "war" around Shanghai, now more than a month old, was ordered in an effort to force China to drop its most ancient and effective weapon.

Employed by the Chinese people for many centuries to drive out or "swallow up" their conquerors, the boycott has in recent years attained such efficiency as to exert a highly effective influence in determining China's status in the world, all the more so perhaps because, as the Chinese learn to use foreign goods, the more influential becomes their nonuse of them.

Effective as Weapon.

Directed against all foreign countries, but chiefly and with most telling effect again Great Britain and Japan, Chinese boycotts in the last ten years have been potent. They have:

1. Driven Japan from the Kiaochow territory in Shantung province [1922].
2. Secured the admission of Chinese to the Shanghai Municipal council [1926].
3. Abolished British concessions at Hankow and Kiukiang [1927].
4. Secured the right to tax foreign companies [1928].
5. Forced recognition by foreigners of Chinese tariff autonomy [1929].
6. Ousted the British from Weihaiwei city and port [1930].
7. Obtained recognition of a Chinese District court as a vital step toward legal jurisdiction in Shanghai [1930].
8. Reduced Japan's exports to China by 36 per cent [1931].

Japan Stung by Boycott.

In addition, the Nationalist government has been able to bargain with most of the twenty odd countries which have held treaty rights of one kind or another on Chinese soil to gradually relinquish those rights, or to make new treaties on a basis of equality. Even the great powers, with the exception of Japan, have been indicating a willingness, when coaxed, to give up their extraterritorial privileges. And especially so when they have sensed the dreaded boycott lurking in the offing.

The boycott stung Japan soon after the world war. In November, 1897, the Germans had seized Kiaochow and the surrounding territory in the Shantung peninsula from China. After Japan declared war on Germany in 1914 she pounced on this Germany colony, "with a view to eventual restoration of the same to China."

When the Versailles treaty was signed Kiaochow still belonged to Japan. China protested, refused to sign the treaty, and followed up with a boycott of Japanese goods, enlivened by many meetings and demonstrations throughout the country.

Retires from Kiaochow.

Consequently, when China brought the question before the Washington conference on Pacific and far eastern questions in 1921, Japan evacuated Kiaochow with as much grace and by salvaging as much materially and facially as was possible.

In 1925 the shooting of Chinese students in Shanghai by foreign police of the international settlement precipitated another well-organized boycott. The ever smouldering resentment at foreign control and exploitation flamed throughout China. As a result, three Chinese in 1926 won seats on the Shanghai municipal council. Two more Chinese seats were added later, making a council of five Chinese and nine foreigners.

But the Chinese were far from satisfied. They chafed under the foreign financial and economic control of their principal ports. They felt the extraterritorial privileges as so many thorns in their side. They regarded bitterly the imposition of tariff laws advantageous only to foreigners.

Rage at Foreign Troops.

They considered a rank injustice the police authority wielded by foreigners over Chinese citizens on Chinese soil. They raged at the stationing of foreign troops in China, pointing out that the powers would not even think of sending armed forces into Spain, for instance, allegedly to protect their nationals.

Stimulated by a growing spirit of nationalism, hate of foreigners came to a boil in January, 1927, and a flourishing anti-foreign boycott was launched. The British bore the brunt of the attack since Great Britain was recognized as the leader in Chinese financial exploitation.

The British concessions at Hankow and Kiukiang were seized. Strikes were called at Shanghai and other ports. Transportation was tied up. Rioting developed. Anti-British parades were held. Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, characterized the British as conducting an "invisible conquest" of China. Nationalist leaders demanded the abolition of all British concessions.

Alarmed at such manifestations, the powers, led by Britain, sent troops and warships to Shanghai, the center of anti-foreign sentiment. When the Chinese Nationalist troops entered the city in March they found 12,000 British troops, 1,500 American marines, 2,000 Japanese marines, 200 Italians, and smaller units of French, Portuguese, and Spanish troops.

Court Chinese Good Will.

Meanwhile, British officials were dickering with the Chinese to call off the boycott. They announced they were ready to return British concessions to China and to grant tariff autonomy. The Chinese refused to treat, however, until Britain "puts down her gun." They insisted that the British disposition of troops was a violation of Article X. of the league of nations covenant.

At this point it was generally realized that the powers had either to make concessions to China or to use force. Unlike the Japanese more recently, the decision on that occasion was to regain Chinese trade by courting Chinese good will.

This decision became evident in January, 1928, when foreign interests, particularly American and British oil and tobacco companies, agreed to pay Chinese taxes. This amounted to nullification of old treaties which circumscribed the fiscal autonomy of the Chinese republic.

Great Britain signed a treaty in December, 1928, granting China the right to fix her own tariff laws. On the same day similar treaties were concluded with Portugal and Sweden, leaving Japan the only nation holding out against the Chinese demands for tariff autonomy.

It was noted at the time that the British action in officially recognizing the Nationalist government had the effect of enhancing British prestige in Chinese circles.

Finally, on Oct. 1, 1930, Weihaiwei, a British leasehold of 285 square miles in northeastern Shantung since 1898, was returned to China.

Inroads were also made on foreign legal control by the boycott, especially at Shanghai, China's commercial and financial center. In 1930 a district court entirely under Chinese control was recognized. It deals with all cases in which the foreign consular courts do not have jurisdiction. A governmental decree in 1930 required all foreign companies to register. Enforcement was made possible by denying all firms which refused to register the right to sue in the Chinese district court.

A new Chinese boycott, increasing swiftly in intensity, developed last fall with Japan as its prey, as a result of Japanese seizure of Manchuria.

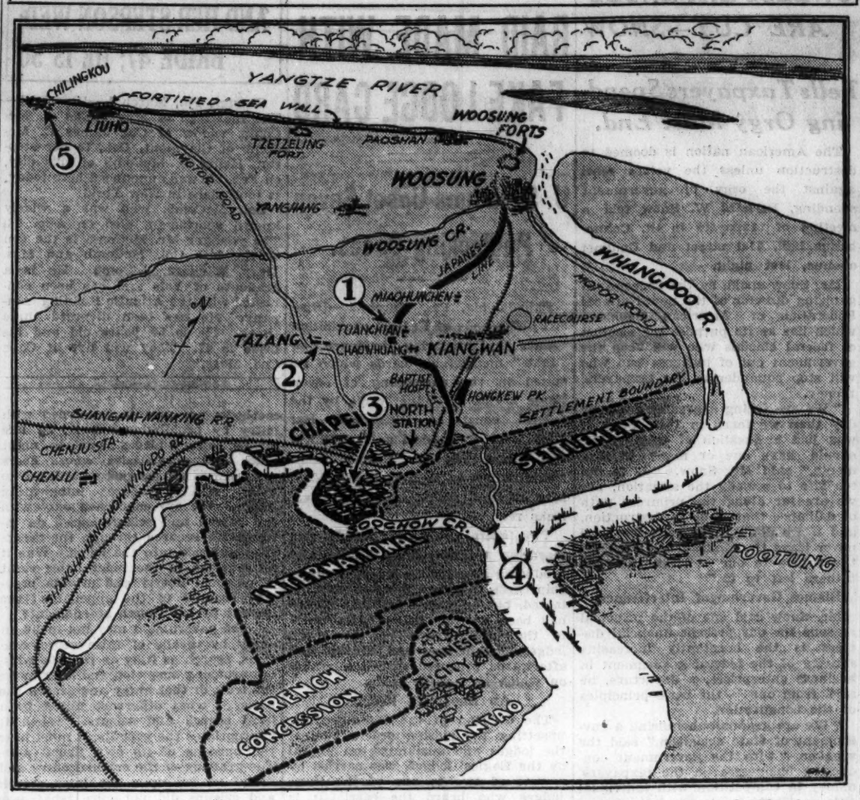
Japan's Exports Tumble.

Japan's exports to China in 1931 were reduced to 36 per cent, according to one estimate. As a result of the boycott, 800,000 tons of Japanese goods are lying idle in Chinese ports, representing orders which have been refused. The loss to Japan by the boycott on goods, both shipped and unshipped to China, was estimated recently by the chairman of the Japanese chamber of commerce at Shanghai as $90,000,000 in gold. He put losses to Japanese steamship companies at $17,000,000.

To relieve this certain economic strangulation, the Japanese government chose force. China, although it has an army in the field, continues to place ultimate reliance on the boycott, as was indicated recently by Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the 19th route army.

"Japan may, by sheer weight of numbers and modern armament, crush the Chinese army," he said, "but this will not end China's resistance. China will never become another Corea. The Chinese will merely withdraw to their farms and villages, produce for their own needs and cease all world intercourse."

Japanese Sweep Forward as Chinese Lines Break



The Chinese lines on the Shanghai-Woosung battle front were broken by a terrific Japanese offensive yesterday and today and the Japanese army moved its positions forward. The map shows:

1. The Kiangwan front, where the break in the Chinese lines occurred. The Japanese swept through Tuanchian and Chaowhuang towards Tazang. One report this morning said Tazang had been captured by the Japanese.
2. Tazang, from where the Japanese are expected to sweep south on the Chinese positions in Chapei.
3. Chapei, where a terrific artillery duel is in progress between the Chinese and the Japanese in the Hongkew section.
4. Two mines were exploded in the Whangpoo river near Japanese warships yesterday. The entire city was rocked.
5. Chilingkou, where Japanese are reported to have landed thousands of reinforcements.

U. S. Stand Likely to Halt League's Boycott of Japan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Washington officials in close touch with the league of nations' attitude on the Shanghai crisis do not anticipate that the assembly will take the drastic step of voting an economic blockade against Japan at the special Japanese-Chinese session scheduled for next Thursday. Lack of enthusiasm for the boycott idea in the United States and Great Britain is believed to have at least temporarily sidetracked the economic blockade plan.

While administration officials deny that this country has been sounded out by the league on the economic boycott question, all indications today were that the state department has found a way to make it clear to the powers that the majority opinion here is opposed to invoking a general world embargo against Japan.

Stimson Silent on Action.

Whether the department has advised world powers that the Hoover cabinet is opposed to a boycott is not known, although it was learned today that a majority of the department heads believe it would be thoroughly unwise for us to attempt to take such a step.

The opinion expressed here today was that the league powers will grasp at the opportunity afforded by the truce discussion at Geneva to postpone all talk of a boycott until a future date.

American officials continued today to coöperate closely with the league in the move to effect a truce which would end the hostilities at Shanghai. The optimism which prevailed yesterday in military and state department circles was somewhat dampened today, however, by dispatches from Tokio and Shanghai disclosing that the fighting was still going on and that Japan apparently has not yet signified a willingness to modify her original terms which called for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Shanghai.

U. S. Ready to Help.

Department officials kept in constant touch with Hugh Wilson, American minister at Geneva, and as far as could be ascertained here the United States is prepared to aid in every way possible to arrange for an ending of hostilities at Shanghai. This country, however, is represented as opposed to using its good offices to effect an agreement which would be more favorable for one side than for the other. From the beginning, officials have said this government would not urge China to accept a truce which called simply for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Shanghai.

Navy officials declined today to comment further on the orders sending two additional warship squadrons through the Panama canal to the Pacific for the March maneuvers. It became apparent today, however, that the navy's action was prompted by a desire to give every war vessel the best training possible in view of the abnormal conditions in the far east. It is known that high navy department officials believe that every effort should be made at this time to put the fleet in the best possible condition.

JAPANESE FREE GENERAL SEIZED IN FOREIGN AREA

SHANGHAI, March 1.—(AP)—Gen. Ken Wang, Chinese graduate of West Point, who was arrested by the Japanese in the lobby of the Astor House Saturday, was released today, although the Japanese declared they had "legal reasons to recognize him as a spy."

Rear Admiral Shimada said the release had been ordered because naval officials desired to accord Wang the "courtesy befitting his rank." Shimada explained that the Japanese had "no intention of making him a prisoner of war because this is not a war." The admiral said Wang's behavior around the Japanese flagship Idzumo provides the "legal reasons" for considering him a spy.

Observers here expressed the opinion that Wang's release had been caused by an apparent rising tide of sentiment among foreigners against the "open flouting" of the authority of municipal officials. The Wang case, these observers said, was the same as hundreds of others, but because Wang happened to be more prominent, public attention was directed to the incident.

Yanks Warned to Leave Area Threatened by Japs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 1.—Edwin S. Cunningham, American consul general, today warned all Americans to evacuate immediately towns and villages along the two railways radiating from Shanghai, which the Japanese have threatened to bombard tomorrow to prevent Chinese troops movements. The number of Americans still remaining in these towns is uncertain, but according to consular officials there are some 50 or 60, chiefly missionaries. Most of them are at Sungkiang, Hangchow, and Kashing.

Chinese Powder Magazine Blows Up; 100 Casualties

TOKIO, March 1.—(AP)—One hundred persons were killed or injured last night by an explosion in a Chinese powder magazine on the southern outskirts of Harbin, a Rengo [Japanese] News agency dispatch from that Manchurian city said today. Police thought the plant had been blown up intentionally. The blast set fire to buildings in the vicinity and the flames were spreading.

NEW MANCHURIA REPUBLIC IS BORN 'MID FLAG WAVING

Will Notify Pu-Yi He Is Head.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, March 1.—(AP)—This was the first day of the first year of the era of "Tatung"—the great unity—and it was so designated because the new Independent Manchurian republic was formally proclaimed as a nation.

HENRY PU-YI. [A. P. Photo.]

Everywhere Manchuria's five colored national flag was flown, and all the newspapers were dated in accordance with the new dispensation.

A committee of the founders of the young state left last night for Port Arthur to notify Henri Pu-yi, the former boy emperor of China, that he had been selected to head the government.

Changchun New Capital.

Mr. Pu-yi will be installed some time between March 5 and March 10 with a ceremony at Changchun, the capital of the new state.

Chang Ching-hui, representing the northeastern executive committee, proclaimed the birth of the independent government in a flowerly declaration couched in several thousand obscure classical Chinese words. The proclamation extolled the virtues and prospects of the new nation and it, too, bore the date indicating the beginning of the period of great unity.

Will Live Up to Pledges.

The most important item in the declaration was an acknowledgment by the new state of all the obligations and commitments to which Manchuria was bound under the Chinese government.

Minister of War Araki of Japan said recently it was most important that New Manchuria carry out existing agreements for the construction by the Japanese of a railroad linking the Corean coast to the heart of Manchuria.

BEAUTY CULTURE ADMINISTERED TO 15 ORPHANS

Fifteen children at St. Vincent's orphanage received a treatment in beauty culture yesterday at the orphanage. It was the semi-monthly visit of the instructors and students of a beauty culture school to the orphanage, and the scissors began snipping and the shampoos and waves were administered to the orphans in a row of fifteen high chairs. The little boys—ages 18 months to 3 years—wiggled when the haircuts were in progress, but the little girls, also under 3 years old, proudly displayed their new finger waves.

WAS LEAGUE PUT 'ON THE SPOT' BY JAP PEACE TALK?

Every One Mystified; War Gets Bigger and Better.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 1.—Japan tonight accepted the league of nations' council's proposal for an international conference in Shanghai to end the Chinese-Japanese war. The conference was made contingent by the council on a truce.

The Japanese delegation informed the league that the idea of a round table conference, which originated in Tokio, and the conditions set down by the council for such a conference, which also originated in Tokio, were entirely agreeable to her, but no mention was made of a truce.

For the council it was very clearly stated through its president, Joseph Paul-Boncour, and the lucid British barrister, Sir John Simon, that the conference would be held only subject "to making local arrangements for the cessation of hostilities." The council trusted last night that this speedily would be brought about.

Japan Gives No Hope.

But the Japanese acceptance carried no fuel for such hopes. In fact, the council members learned from Japanese sources that two divisions of 24,000 troops had landed at Shanghai within the last 24 hours and, although negotiations for a truce might be going on, as the council hopes, something like another big push is impending.

All this proved very confusing after yesterday's hallelujah session of the council. What really happened here yesterday was not at all clear today. There are some who feel very strongly that the league was taken in by the Japanese, who are pictured as having precipitated the peace move for its effect on the eve of the league assembly meeting and then to have gone ahead, with an olive branch in hand, in a final attempt to win that face saving victory so long desired.

Why Did Japan Delay?

Japan's 24 hour delay in adhering to the council's proposal, which they themselves had inspired, caused much speculation. It is pointed out that this proposal did not, like many other proposals here, come from the Japanese delegation, but direct from Tokio.

Many others feel that the Japanese really are in a quasi suppliant mood and that the council really meant to bring further pressure on Tokio to accept even a disagreeable truce.

One thing is clear. That is that the big powers, who fear complications in the assembly and who don't forget that they would be the goats if any coercive measures were taken against Japan, sought by their activity yesterday to spike the guns of the little powers, who, it is considered certain, will demand that the assembly take positive action against Japan. The Chinese and their friends among the smaller powers insist that the assembly take up the Manchurian problem as well as the Shanghai situation.

PEACE HOPE FADES

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 2.—[Wednesday.]—Although news reports from Washington, London, Paris and Geneva tell of peace movements in the Shanghai situation, little information is available here and little credence is placed in the good faith of the reports, particularly since the severest fighting since the beginning of the struggle is now going on.

The semi-official Japanese Rengo news service in a report from Tokio quoted War Minister Araki as declaring:

"Even if diplomatic negotiations are opened, we cannot withdraw our forces immediately. It is impossible to do so in dealing with China's undisciplined and treacherous military forces. We can only withdraw our troops after witnessing ourselves that the Chinese forces have been withdrawn definitely to a certain designated point. We can keep our promise, but there is no guarantee that the Chinese will keep theirs."

"Not Interested in Peace."

A Japanese military spokesman here today declared:

"Neither Gen. Uyeda nor his successor, Gen. Shirakawa, are interested in any peace movements excepting one that envisages complete withdrawal of the Chinese troops to the border of a 12½ mile zone and complete fulfillment of all our other conditions."

An official Chinese report today declared that China is willing to accept a proposal for simultaneous withdrawal of the opposing forces, but can not accept the Japanese demand for permanent dismantling of Chinese forts.

"Since the Japanese have rejected four previous peace proposals, the world should not expect too much from the present efforts to end the hostilities and should not be disappointed if they again end in failure through Japan's lack of good faith."

JAPS THREATEN SEIZURE OF U. S. WHEAT IN CHINA

Flood Relief Supply Is Put Under U. S. Flag.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 1.—In order to prevent a threatened Japanese seizure of some 40,000 tons of American wheat and flour purchased from the United States farm relief board by the China national flood relief commission, the directors of the commission today transferred its assets to an American registered company known as the Flood Corporation, Inc.

T. V. SOONG. [Acme Photo.]

The corporation is composed of six local Americans engaged in commercial, banking, and missionary enterprises. A Britisher, Sir John Hope Simpson, will serve as executive vice president.

Japan Threatens Seizure.

The creation of the emergency American corporation was taken following a Japanese threat to seize the Pootung district of Shanghai, where the wheat and flour are stored. Another 150,000 tons, now en route to Shanghai, will be unloaded in the Pootung district soon. It is understood that T. V. Soong, Chinese finance minister, who is president of the national flood relief commission, was largely responsible for the action placing all the commission's assets under the protection of the American flag.

According to William P. Hunt, a shipping operator, who is president of the new corporation, the food relief commission also has large stocks of wheat and flour stored at Hankow, Kiukiang, Wuhu, Nanking, Chinkiang and elsewhere along the Yangtze which is being used to feed refugees in exchange for work done in reconstruction of the dikes, levees and roads within the areas which suffered in the floods last year.

Work is Paralyzed.

The Japanese military activities in the Shanghai district, however, have paralyzed the work of extending relief to some 230,000 refugee laborers now engaged in dike construction along the Yangtze.

When the flood relief commission was formed the Chinese government ordered a 10 per cent surtax on customs revenues and railway receipts as a means of financing the distribution of wheat and flour to needy areas. It was expected that the surtax would realize about $975,000 monthly. However, the Japanese activities have paralyzed trade and stopped railway travel, causing the customs surtax to drop below $350,000 monthly, which is inadequate to meet the standing expenses of food distribution.

As a result of this situation, the new Flood corporation today appealed for contributions. One cablegram was sent to John D. Rockefeller Jr. appealing for $1,000,000 on condition that the corporation would raise a similar sum from other sources.

Fear New Floods.

One of the directors said that unless funds are received the dikes and levees needed to prevent a recurrence of the floods next year cannot be completed.

He said the Grand canal already is flooding and it will not be long before the Yangtze again reaches the flood stage.

The officers of the new Flood corporation include, besides Hunt and Sir John, John Earl Baker, Leonard Everett, F. B. Lynch, J. W. Carney, and the Rev. E. C. Lobenstine.

BRITISH SEE U. S. FLEET ORDER AS WARNING TO JAPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 29.—The transfer of the American naval fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean has attracted much attention here. It is interpreted as a warning to Japan that America will not stand for an aggressive policy in China.

Japan Shows Little Interest.

TOKIO, March 2 [Wednesday.]—(AP)—Although the Japanese newspaper Nichi Nichi reported the concentration of American naval forces in the Pacific ordered by the navy department at Washington, the newspaper displayed little interest in the fleet movement. Officials had explained that it was merely part of a long scheduled program of annual maneuvers.

CHINESE LINES BROKEN; CLAIM ARMY IN FLIGHT

Japanese Planes Blow Up Shanghai Railways.

high Japanese officers were killed on the Kiangwan front. They were Col. Hayashi, commander of the 7th regiment, who fell with a bullet through his abdomen and died on the way to the hospital, and Capt. Sakai, a battalion commander of the 35th regiment, who was riddled with machine gun bullets.

Aside from a few batteries of small caliber artillery, consisting chiefly of trench mortars, the Chinese are totally unequipped to match Japan's modern machine. However, despite the lack of heavy equipment, the Chinese commanders threw column after column of cotton clad soldiers, mostly boys not more than 20 or 25 years of age, against the Japanese steel. As soon as one line was wiped out another advanced, only to break and scatter before the Japanese death machines.

Wounded Pour Into Shanghai.

One hundred sixteen wounded Chinese soldiers were brought into hospitals within the settlement on long lines of trucks bearing Red Cross emblems.

Chinese newspapermen arriving from the front said the Chinese casualties probably are a thousand. One reporter counted 200 bodies in one village, located on a road intersection, where strong resistance was put up until the last man was killed.

A Chinese report today said that at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, under the protection of an artillery barrage from a fleet of destroyers in the Yangtze, the Japanese attempted to land a large force of soldiers three miles northwest of Liuho. A squadron of Japanese planes rained explosives on the Chinese troops ashore. The Chinese report said the Chinese troops poured a withering fire into the Japanese barges and forced their withdrawal.

Japanese Contradict Report.

Japanese reports contradicted this. They said trops of the Japanese 11th division had landed near Liuho.

The Japanese Rengo news service reported that the 11th division sent a strong force on a steamer up the Yangtze and landed at the village of Chilingkou.

Other reports said a fierce battle was raging this morning near Liuho, where 10,000 Japanese troops were said to be fighting their way through Chinese fire in an effort to join their comrades on the Kiangwan front.

The Rengo report said the Japanese general staff intends to establish the 11th division headquarters at Liuho, indicating that the Japanese plan extensive operations along the Yangtze between Shanghai and Nanking.

Two heavy mines exploded yesterday within 20 and 50 yards of two Japanese cruisers anchored adjacent to the Japanese consulate in the Whangpoo river. The entire city was rocked by the explosion. The population was terrified, believing an earthquake had struck the city. The explosions sent geysers of water 100 feet in the air, but caused no damage to the Japanese warcraft or other shipping.

3 SUBURBS SEEK FUNDS TO KEEP SCHOOLS OPEN

Three suburban school boards yesterday took drastic action to obtain funds to keep their buildings open and their teaching forces at work.

The plight of the New Trier high school in Winnetka was placed before the 2,000 pupils yesterday. They were urged to explain to their parents that the sale of tax warrants must average $75 a pupil if the school is to remain open until June.

Des Plaines has designated tomorrow as a half holiday. After a parade of school children there will be a campaign to sell warrants and if this fails, it was said, the schools will be closed next Monday.

In Glencoe it was announced that the school board had slashed $24,000 from the teachers' pay roll for next year by eliminating kindergarten, art, music, physical and manual training and domestic science instruction. Already all teachers' salaries have been cut 10 per cent. This will remain in effect and the school board will place a cancellation clause in all contracts, so that teachers can be let out at any time funds become short in the future.

According to Trustee E. Arthur Robertson, a total of $55,000 will be cut from the Glencoe school budget next year. The resignation of Frederick L. Redifer as superintendent has been accepted and Gordon MacKenzie, principal of the Central school, will be acting superintendent.

Glencoe has set a goal of $300,000 in a tax warrant sale. If this is reached the schools will have funds to carry on until March 1, 1933. So far $222,000 have been sold.

In the New Trier auditorium, Trustee Otto Barnett told the students that $150,000 is needed to keep the institution going until June and that only $32,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants have been sold to date. The school board can pay the teachers their March salaries, but unless more money comes in, Mr. Barnett said, the school must close on April 1.

Des Plaines seeks to sell only $12,000 worth of warrants. With that and funds on hand teachers can be paid 35 per cent of their salaries for the rest of the year. There will be a mass meeting of citizens, called by Mayor Hammerl, in the city hall tomorrow at 2 p. m.

IDENTIFIED AS ROBBER.

James Rosenthal, 34 years old, 1021 South Marshfield avenue, was identified at the Marquette police station yesterday as one of three robbers who held up a paint plant at 1362 West 37th street and took $1,000 on June 6, 1931.

Bad Blood Puts Many a Man On His Back

Toxic Poisons, Torpid Liver, Constipation and Nervousness Ruined His Health. New Medicine Quickly Put Him on His Feet.

Pale, Weak, Impoverished Blood lacks the Vital Red Corpuscles so necessary to carry off Impurities, and thus Toxic Poisons accumulate in the system, weakening your resistance to infection and Disease; making you feel Tired, Run-Down, Depressed and Worn-Out, and often results in Indigestion, Terrible Gas Pains, Torpid Liver, Constipation, Sallow Skin, Pimples, Blotches, Rheumatism and Nervousness due to functional inactivity.

Purify your Blood. Rich Red Blood builds new strength, wards off disease and restores Pep and energy. What you need is a medicine that will keep these Toxic Poisons out of the Blood Stream and Vital Organs, thus enabling nature to assert itself and put you on the road to glorious health and happiness.

Grateful people everywhere are praising the New Master Medicine, Wenvo, because of the marvelous results and the amazing speed with which it combats their ailments, often after many other medicines have failed. Read the true statement of Mr. D. W. Jonagan, a traveling man of Sedalia, Mo., who spent $2,000 in a vain search for health before he found Wenvo. He says: "I was bothered with indigestion and took physics often. My system became saturated with Toxic Poisons—my liver became torpid and I had a bad color. Could not get a good night's sleep and was very nervous. I spent over $2,000 to overcome my ill health but found nothing until I took Wenvo. Now my nerves are strong and the aches and pains have left my body. My liver functions properly and I have a good color and clear eyes. Constipation is corrected and I feel a new Vitality surging through my system. Wenvo alone brought about this fine change in me."

One of the 28 active ingredients in this Master Medicine has amazing power in building up Impoverished Blood and each other ingredient has a specific function to perform in toning up the Vital Organs and in giving new strength and energy.

No matter how long you have suffered, how discouraged you may be, or how many other medicines have failed, we want you to try the New Master Medicine, Wenvo, under our Guarantee that it must satisfy you completely or we will refund the small purchase price without question or argument. EXCESSIVE COST OF CANAL LABOR SHOWN IN SURVEY

Million Savings Possible, Figures Indicate.

An investigation of labor conditions in the sanitary district has disclosed that more technical employés than are actually needed are carried on the pay roll, and that the prevailing wage scales are much higher than current rates for such work.

T. J. BOWLER.
[Tribune Photo.]

The investigation showed that the taxpayers are forced to pay a labor bill for the operation of the district which is twice as high as would be the case if the work were done under current rates. The annual labor cost for running the district is aproximately $2,350,000, and a saving of more than a million dollars might be made, the investigation indicated.

Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, has appealed for aid in meeting past due salaries and wages to D. F. Kelly, chairman of the citizens' committee which is seeking funds for some of the municipal taxing bodies. Mr. Kelly insisted that the sanitary district must show that every possible economy has been effected.

Can Do Only One Job.

Under the rules enforced at the district many technical employés are not permitted to use any part of their leisure time to lend a hand at other work. An operating engineer must not throw a switch. An electrician must not adjust a pump. Neither may he oil an engine and an oiler must not invade the sacred precincts of the other mechanics.

This practice has resulted in the employment of more of these employés than would be justified if a coöperative system were in force, it is declared. It was pointed out that the same criticism does not lie against the engineering department.

The mechanical employés are paid an average of $280 a month—many of them as high as $350 a month—whereas the current rates for men of the same or better caliber, it was stated, average $190 per month.

Laborers Paid $210 Monthly.

Common laborers, who polish rails, sweep and scrub floors, and scoop up sewage from the screens are paid $200 and $210 per month. Many thousands of unemployed men in Chicago would be grateful at taking the same jobs at a wage of $125 a month, it was found.

At the present time the sanitary district pay roll carries approximately 757 of this type of employés, of whom 204 are laborers.

Under a temporary arrangement the district has now provided in its budget for a 10 per cent reduction of all wages paid by the district, but because of a general understanding that the reduction order will be rescinded when the financial affairs of the district improve. The temporary reduction has not been taken into account in the statistics quoted below.

Could Cut 25 Per Cent.

On the estimated average of $280 per month paid to each of the 553 technical employés, they receive a total of $154,840 per month. The investigation indicated that the number of employés could be cut 25 per cent if efficient business methods were adopted.

Thus, the work performed now by 553 employés could be done by 415 men. To pay these men on the existing scale, averaging $280 a month, would enforce a saving of $48,640 a month. But if they were paid the average of $190 a month, the current rate for such work, the total cost of this technical labor would be $78,850 per month, a saving of $75,990 per month.

The 204 laborers on the pay roll receive an average of $205 monthly, a total monthly aggregate of $41,820. If this force were cut 25 per cent, to a laborers' staff of 153, the savings on the present high wage scale would be $10,425 a month. But if the wages of the 153 laborers were cut to $125 a month, the total cost would be $19,125, a reduction of $22,695 per month.

Yearly Savings of $1,184,220.

The saving of $22,695 per month on the laborers' pay roll, and $75,990 per month on the technical labor roll, would total $98,685 per month, or an annual savings of $1,184,220 on the total labor pay roll of $2,359,920. All of the figures quoted in the investigation are necessarily estimates, but they were arrived at by close reckoning.

If the 10 per cent temporary wage cut is considered, the labor pay roll for one year would be reduced by $235,992, to a total of $2,123,928, but even this figure is $948,228 higher than the annual cost of $1,175,700 figured on a basis of current rates for the same type of work.

In arriving at the conclusion that the present working efficiency of sanitary district mechanical employés is 75 per cent, an analysis of the employés at each of the district's plants, showing what work was done by each employé, was made.

Cite Cuts Called Possible.

At the north side disposal plant, for example, there are employed in the pump and blower house 2 operating engineers on each of three shifts, at $350 per month; 2 electrical operators on each shift, at $230; 2 oilers on each shift, at $260 a month; a chief operating engineer, and a chief electrical engineer. Investigation proved that the plant could be maintained efficiently with one electrician, one engineer, and one oiler, instead of two of each, if the three employés were not forbidden from helping each other. Thus, counting the three shifts, 9 men could do the work now done by 18.

In the main building at the north side treatment works three technical men are employed on each of three shifts, an electrician, an operator, and an oiler. The work could be done by two men, sharing all the labor, and here one employé on each of three shifts could be eliminated, it was reported.

In the service building, or boiler plant, two men, an operating engineer and a fireman, work on each shift during winter months. During the summer the same employés are used to relieve other employés on vacation periods. It was pointed out that if the employés were not paid by the month, but were paid on an hourly basis, as is the current practice, they would not be credited with vacation time, and the cost of the services of the relief men in summer time would be eliminated.

The pay roll at the north side plant lists 48 "technical" laborers, and the inquiry reveals that this number, under an efficient business régime, could be reduced to 40.

List Technical Employés.

The general technical employés at this plant include 4 machinists, 4 steamfitters, 2 plumbers, 2 painters, and 4 electricians. This force, it was estimated, could be reduced 25 to 30 per cent if union rules and conditions were not enforced.

Similar conditions prevail at the west side and Calumet disposal plants, and at the pumping stations maintained by the district, the investigation showed.

HOTEL MAN FOUND SLAIN

Patrick J. Gallagher, superintendent of service for the Edgewater Beach hotel, whose body was found at Granville and Kedzie avenues. He is shown with his wife and their 3 year old son, Daniel.

Reject Suicide Theory

Discovery in a prairie yesterday of the body of Patrick J. Gallagher, 46 years old, superintendent of service at the Edgewater Beach hotel, presented a mystery to police. He had been shot through the right temple.

Police advanced a theory of suicide at first, but assertions by the family of the dead man that they were certain he had been murdered led Capt. Richard Gill of the Summerdale police to say that while he still inclined toward the suicide theory, he would give the family full coöperation in investigation of the case.

Investigation disclosed no motive for either murder or suicide. Discovery that $15 and a wrist watch had not been taken from the body established that robbery could not have been the motive for a murder.

The body was discovered at Granville and Kedzie avenues. A .38 caliber revolver lay nearby. One cartridge had been discharged. Gallagher's widow, Catherine, told police that her husband left their home at 1538 Thorndale avenue at 8 o'clock Monday night. He was going to the hotel, he said, to forward a package to the hotel owner, who is in the south. He did not reach the hotel.

NORTHUP, AID TO PROSECUTOR, TAKING LEAVE

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who successfully prosecuted Timothy J. Crowe, former president, and other officials of the sanitary district, announced yesterday that he is taking a leave of absence without pay from the state's attorney's staff. The prosecutor, who was recently sentenced to five days in the county jail and fined $500 for his fiery outbursts during a habeas corpus hearing for one of the defendants in the graft conspiracy case, is a Republican candidate for attorney general.

Northup said that he has some legal business that must be taken care of. This and the fact that he wants to make a tour of the state in the interests of his candidacy are his reasons for the leave. The prosecutor also has to prepare his appeal on his own contempt case.

"This does not mean that I cannot return to the state's attorney's office from time to time to look after the unfinished sanitary district cases," he said.

JAPS JUSTIFIED IN MANCHURIA, DR. STARR SAYS

Defends Invasion on Treaty Rights.

Japan has been acting within her treaty rights in invading Manchuria, according to Dr. Frederick Starr, associate professor emeritus of anthropology at the University of Chicago. He expounded his views yesterday in a lecture in Bond chapel on the campus.

Manchuria has never been a part of China, nor under Chinese control, Dr. Starr declared. He pointed out that more than 2,000 years ago the Chinese built the great wall to keep the hardy men of the north from their fertile provinces.

Manchuria the Conqueror.

"Only twice," he said, "have Manchuria and China been parts of the same empire, once when the Mongolians swept down and conquered the Chinese and again 260 years ago, when the Manchurians again overran them. On each occasion there was a Manchurian empire with the Chinese as subjects, rather than a Chinese empire with Manchuria as a part."

Prof. Starr asserted that Japan was defrauded of her Manchurian rights in 1895 by Germany, France, and Russia, but regained them in 1905 after the Russo-Japanese war. In 1915 Japanese interests were further strengthened by the twenty-one demands made of China.

Based on Treaty Rights.

"It is clear," he said, "that Japan's rights are based on treaties, and that she was within these rights in the invasion. It is not even clear that the famous twenty-one demands did not originate with the Chinese.

"I hope the Japanese intervention will result in the establishment of an independent Manchurian government, managed by Chinese, but independent of the Chinese republic. Although thirty million of the thirty-five million residing in Manchuria are Chinese they are not Nanking-minded.

"The Japanese propose to set up a democratic government in Manchuria. I think they should establish a strong one man government."

Prof. Starr resided for some years in the orient.

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—[Special.]—If the recommendation of the board of health is followed thousands of pigeons in the downtown area will be trapped and killed and given to the city's poor for food. The death penalty was voted by the city council.

JUDGES RE-ELECT EDWARD J. KELLY TO PARK BOARD

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, was reëlected yesterday to another five year term as park commissioner by the judges of the Circuit court. The commissioners elect their own president.

For the first time in eleven years there were no other candidates nominated for the post, and Mr. Kelly received the unanimous vote of the judges, it was stated after their meeting. He was first elected a commissioner in 1922, and has been president of the board since 1924.

There have been reports that John Bain, indicted banker, has written his resignation as south park commissioner, placing it in the hands of his attorney, Charles S. Deneen, for such action as Mr. Deneen deems fit. Chief Justice William V. Brothers of the Circuit court said yesterday that the judges have received no official notice of the existence of a resignation. Bain's term as commissioner has two years to run.

R. H. McCREARY DIES; CORONER ORDERS INQUEST

Circumstances of Death Puzzle Officials.

Robert Hughes McCreary, 63 years old, authority on marine law and for 38 years, until his retirement last Dec. 31, deputy collector of customs, died suddenly in his home at 25 East Walton place yesterday afternoon. After an investigation Coroner Walsh said he was of the opinion that the death was due to a stroke which was brought on by poison. He directed that an inquest be held at 10 o'clock this morning.

The investigation was ordered when Dr. A. F. Stevenson, 104 South Michigan avenue, Mr. McCreary's physician, reported the cause of death as a paralytic stroke, but added that his patient had probably taken bichloride of mercury. When the doctor said his patient had been kept to his bed by a previous stroke, suffered on Feb. 14, officials questioned the family in an effort to determine how the poison had been taken.

Doctor's Story of Case.

Dr. Stevenson said he was called to the home at 10:40 o'clock yesterday morning and found McCreary ill and nauseated. He said he used a stomach pump because the previous stroke had been brought on by similar illness while McCreary was recovering from bronchial pneumonia.

"Though Mr. McCreary had been unable to speak since the first stroke, I had been able to move about in the last two days," Dr. Stevenson said. "When I questioned him as to the seizure he pointed to a drawer. He seemed to point out a bottle containing bichloride of mercury tablets.

"I am not sure, however, whether he took the mercury tablets or medicine. As a poison bichloride of mercury could not have brought on death in a few hours. Mr. McCreary died in a coma at 1:40 in the afternoon."

Family Affirms Story.

Dr. Stevenson's story was supported by a nurse, Miss Constance Bergendahl; the widow, Mrs. Alice McCreary, and a son, Robert Newberry McCreary. All were in the home at the time of the death. Miss Bergendahl reported she had left the patient alone for several minutes before the attack.

Mr. McCreary was born on April 16, 1868, the son of James Bennet McCreary, who was congressman, senator and governor in Kentucky. He attended Center college and was graduated from the Yale university law school, but never practiced. He became a deputy collector of customs here in 1894. In addition to his son and widow he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gatewood Gay of Lexington, Kentucky.

AUSTRALIA STUBS ITS TOE ON OWN TARIFF BARRIER

Finds It Hasn't Paid, but Still Hangs On.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

Copyright; 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, Australia, March 1.—The study of Australia brings the investigator up against the tariff at every turn. It is in the tariff that the most militant economic nationalism in the world has found expression and it is the tariff which has made Australian social experimentation possible.

Today the Australian is up against hard facts and the lack of overseas credits to buttress his falling revenues is causing him to count the cost of every move. But in the prosperous yesterdays he did not halt to check up on the chances for the future. He was too busy to share the spoils.

A famous case is used to reveal how the Australian tariff has worked. The match industry in the commonwealth demanded and procured such a degree of protection that it has been calculated that if the country were to pension every employé in the industry at full wages it could still save money on the lowered cost of matches.

How Tariff Worked.

The Australian tariff is a product of this century and of the growing sense of the country's independence. Its high points are the ultimate agreement to uniform action by all the states and the final conversion of the renegade New South Wales from her free trade beliefs. These were the factors which allowed the nation to become isolated from outside commercial competition. The position of the customs yields in relation to commonwealth finance is revealed by the following figures of customs and general federal revenue:

	Customs Revenue.	Total Revenue.
1925	$126,000,000	$253,000,000
1926	133,000,000	260,000,000
1927	147,000,000	288,000,000
1928	143,000,000	271,000,000
1929	141,000,000	270,000,000

Here again the example of the United States misled Australia for this country copies the United States as much as she dislikes Uncle Sam. The prosperity of America and Germany was attributed to their tariff policies, no account being taken of the huge internal market and great natural resources of both countries.

Justified by copying the United States and German policies in its beginning thirty years ago, the tariff policy is still justified today. Critics of the tariff structure have always aroused enmity. The visit of the British economic mission, most important investigation of recent years, was countered by high tariff propaganda.

Brought Larger Loans.

Admittedly, the tariff has granted Australia possibilities which enlarged the field for immigration, but immigration has merely brought with it larger responsibilities and larger loans. The price of the tariff has been an increase of a minimum of eight per cent in costs of export industries, according to the special tariff commission of 1927, and the expansion of protected industries has been at the expense of unprotected ones. Available capital has gone from the export trades to the protection of the high wall of duties, which has given some fields of industry a bonus of $231,000,000 a year.

Yet in spite of this nursing Australian manufactures have never been a national asset in overseas trade. In 1927 only $150,000,000 out of a total of $1,990,000,000 of manufactured products found their way overseas and of $150,000,000 of that sum almost $114,000,000 was represented by foodstuffs treated by manufacturing works. Less than two per cent of other Australian manufactures were able to stand competition in world markets.

Tied Hand and Foot.

Inevitably this policy led to smaller returns to the manufacturers, because higher earnings my industry brought greater demands by labor. Industry, said Sir Thomas Henley, previous member of the cabinet and legislative assemblyman of New South Wales, was bound hand and foot. Yet, at the same time industry was receiving with both hands.

When the federal government decided to disregard the tariff recommendations in the Niemeyer report and fight the depression by raising customs duties all round to an intolerable peak, it voted rates to the galvanized iron industry which would equal $23 a week for each man employed. The works operate only in one state and have only 500 men on the pay roll, with an output of up to 30,000 tons a year. Up to date, that industry has received bonuses of almost $2,000,000 and in one year alone its protective bonus from the government was more than $1,000,000.

Protection in Australia has operated without check. There has been no guarantee of efficiency or even of an approach to it. Bonuses have been paid not only to manufactures, but also to sugar and butter industries, without which they have found it impossible to hold markets within or without Australia. Butter alone has carried an export bonus of 6 cents a pound and to provide this the price was raised at home.

Efficiency Stands Still.

Less than 20 persons work in the average factory in the country and while the factory total has climbed from 11,000 to 22,000 in 25 years of full operation of the protective policy, size and efficiency have not moved forward.

Land values have been depressed by the operation of this inefficient and clumsy instrument and marginal farms have been kept out of production. In a country which was dependent on primary industries for 96 per cent of its exports in the past ten years, chances of higher exports of primary industries have been thrown away.

The reason is obvious enough. Labor has gained political power and its party, drawing its strength from the manufacturing areas, supports the tariff. That was why Sir Otto Niemeyer's argument that costs must be cut and the primary producer given a chance to develop the land was answered by an upward revision of tariff rates which was less protection than prohibition.

FISH SING, BIRDS BARK, SO BEEBE WILL HUNT FIRE SPITTING DRAGON

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—"Fire breathing" dragons will be south in the Atlantic depths off the Bermuda islands this summer by a scientific expedition headed by Dr. William Beebe, noted deep sea explorer.

"During our work last year," said Dr. Beebe, "we saw huge shapes floating up from the depths. I feel sure that work at deeper levels will reveal unknown monsters. "We have already found creatures that shoot a luminous substance out of their mouths and answer all the descriptions of medieval dragons."

Dr. Beebe spoke at a reception which coincided with the return of two scientific expeditions, one from South America and another from the Galapagos islands. Stories of fish that sing, birds that bark and snakes that fly were brought back by the expedition to the upper Amazon river.

SENATE PASSES ANTI-INJUNCTION MEASURE, 75-5

Limits Court Restraint in Labor Disputes.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—By a vote of 75 to 5 the senate today passed the Norris anti-injunction bill.

Urged for the last several years by radicals and liberals in congress and demanded by organized labor as an essential addendum to the Clayton act of 1914, the bill sponsored by Senator George W. Norris [Radical Rep., Neb.] for the first time seeks to write a declaration of policy with respect to labor into the statute books.

It outlaws the "yellow dog" contract—that is, any agreement whereby workers promise not to join a labor union during the term of their employment, or to give up their jobs if they do join. Under the terms of the Norris bill such a contract may not be made the basis of any legal or equitable relief in any United States court.

Limits Power of Court.

It sharply limits the cases in which federal injunctions may issue in a labor dispute, giving workers the right to organize, to strike, and to support strikes without restraint from the federal courts. It provides for full hearings before injunctions are issued, and limits the term of restraining orders to five days.

In the field of contempt cases the Norris bill goes far beyond the field of labor disputes. It proposes that in all cases where a person is charged with indirect contempt of a federal court the defendant shall have the right to a jury trial. It also provides that in cases in which the contempt grows out of an attack upon a federal judge's character or conduct the defendant shall have the right to a change of venue.

As was explained during the six days' debate on the measure, the two sections dealing with contempt were broadened with the intention of including cases in which newspapers criticize the actions of a court.

Ultimate Fate in Doubt.

Despite the overwhelming vote in favor of the Norris bill, its proponents are admittedly uncertain about its eventual fate, and in the absence of prohibitive legislation in three cases the Supreme court has upheld the validity of the "yellow dog" contract. Cases were also cited to show that such legislative limitation as the Norris bill seeks to impose upon the authority of the courts to punish for contempt may be of questionable constitutionality.

There was no mistaking the favorable attitude of the senate, however. During the lengthy arguments over the bill restrictive amendments proposed by a minority led by Senator Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.] were rejected by large majorities.

When the vote was taken, many, including Senator Hebert himself, who had voted for the amendments, voted for the bill as it stood.

Among these was Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Penna.], who said he would vote "with shame" because he believed the bill if finally passed might take from labor more rights than it granted.

ROCKFORD MAYOR ATTACKS GAS TAX LAW AS INVALID

Test Suit to Be Filed in Winnebago County.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Plans for an attack on the constitutionality of the Hunter law which provides for the expenditure of gasoline tax funds for the maintenance and construction of streets in Illinois cities where they coincide with established state highway routes on the ground that the law is discriminatory were announced by Mayor J. Herman Hallstrom today.

The test suit, which will be viewed with interest by every municipality in the state, will be filed in the Winnebago county Circuit court. Mayor Hallstrom as vice president of the Illinois Municipal league, with mayors and officials of other cities throughout the state, led an unsuccessful fight during the last session of the legislature to secure a three way split of the state gas moneys between the state, counties and cities. The Hunter law sponsored by State Representative David Hunter of Rockford was passed by a compromise after the municipal league measure had been defeated.

Would Build Rockford Streets.

Mayor Hallstrom, who with former Mayor Greene of Aurora bitterly attacked the Hunter bill as a measure which denied large Illinois cities which contribute most of the gas taxes to the state treasury, has just received an offer of $10,000 from state highway department officials under the terms of the Hunter bill. The money would be allocated by the state for maintenance and construction on Rockford streets which are links in state highways.

The mayor announced today that he would advise the Rockford city council to refuse to enter into any agreement by which the state would be given control of city streets on the ground that the state has no constitutional right to regulate Rockford's streets and usurp municipal home rule.

Illustrating his claim that cities are not getting a "fair break" under the recent gasoline tax distribution law, the mayor pointed out that the city of Rockford paid in 1931 and will pay in 1932 approximately $250,000 more in indirect taxes and fees for maintenance of township, county, and state highways than the entire cost of city government, schools excluded.

Pays $1,000,000 Gas Tax.

After draining more than $1,000,000 annually from Rockford in gasoline tax money and state license fees, the state offers to pay $5,000 annually for the maintenance of streets under the Hunter bill, according to Mayor Hallstrom.

"The bookkeeping alone under the state's maintenance system would cost more than the money they will pay us," the mayor said. "It would be necessary to keep track of all work done on the state controlled center 20 feet of Rockford's streets, as the remainder would have to be paid by the city."

HELD ON U. S. BOOZE CHARGE.

Frank J. Schroeder, 4234 West Washington boulevard, waived examination and was held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500 by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on charges of violation of the prohibition law.

WIDOW'S ESTATE LOSES $30,000,000 IN LAST 2 YEARS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1.—[Special.]—Deflation of real estate and security values during the last two years cost the estate of Mrs. Anne Weightman Penfield, known as one of the country's richest women, many millions of dollars it was revealed when the will was filed here today.

Mrs. Penfield, the widow of Frederic Courtland Penfield, formerly in the diplomatic service, died in New York last week. At one time she was worth $50,000,000, having inherited the great chemical business of her father, the late William Weightman, but today her holdings are estimated as worth between $16,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Two bequests provide trust funds of $100,000 each for New York university and the University of Pennsylvania.

Badenoch, Grain Veteran, Former Police Chief, Is Ill

John J. Badenoch, 81 years old, who has been a member of the Board of Trade since 1874, is ill at his home, 502 Washington boulevard, Oak Park. He declared it was not serious and that he expected to recover from a heart ailment soon. Mr. Badenoch was chief of police of Chicago from 1895 to 1897. He was at one time president of the board of election commissioners and has been a member of the board of education.

Marshal Pilsudski Goes to Rumania to See King

WARSAW, March 1.—Marshal Josef Pilsudski, accompanied by his doctor, left for Rumania today. After a conference with King Carol of Rumania, Pilsudski will go to Egypt and later to Palestine.

SCHOOL SAVING OF $30,000,000 AT STAKE TODAY

One Vote Is Needed to Stop Big Budget.

tion of land for future school buildings; saving of $250,000 by closing the Chicago Normal school; a reduction perhaps of $400,000, in the playground appropriations, and further reductions in the architectural department.

"These things would save $2,000,000,'" Mr. Carr said. "By closing the schools two weeks earlier and opening them two weeks later in the fall, we can save approximately $5,000,000 in salaries. That would put our budget in the neighborhood of $83,000,000 or $84,000,000, and I will vote for any budget about there, for I believe we can raise that much revenue."

The other trustees who are expected to attend today's board meeting are Walter H. Brandenburg, Oscar Durante, H. Wallace Caldwell, John A. English, and Carter Blatchford.

Plan to Get Tax Data.

A subcommittee of the Kelly committee met in the chairman's office yesterday morning, and again yesterday afternoon. Those present were Mr. Kelly, Mr. Fairweather, John O. Rees, George W. Rossetter, Victor Petterson and M. J. O'Connor. They decided to ascertain accurately the appropriations, expenditures and tax incomes of the various governments for 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931. Forms on which to obtain this data were decided upon.

This information when collected and correlated will contrast vividly the difference between the expenditures and the incomes. Most of the governments have been spending more than they have been able to get in. That was one of the chief causes of trouble when the citizens' committee headed by Silas Strawn was pressed into service two years ago. Since then the difference between the expense and income has been larger.

Three Armed Bandits Rob Glen Ellen C.A.&E. Station

Three armed and masked men entered the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad station in Glen Ellyn last night about 10:30 o'clock and forced the station agent to surrender about $350. The Glen Ellyn police said they had no clew to the identity of the bandits, who fled in an automobile.

Revolt Leader Eludes Trap Set by Finnish Soldiers

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, March 1.—Maj. Gen. Martti Wallenius, general secretary of the Lapuan party and leader of the Fascist rebellion in Finland, today informed the Estonian newspaper Vega Maa that he had sent a letter to Helsingfors demanding that the government of President Svenhufrud resign. Veba Maa located eGn. Wallenius in the village of Hameenlinna by telephone. The Lapuan chieftain said that all Finland is supporting the Fascist movement. The Finnish military intelligence department listened in on the conversation and, in fact, assisted the newspaper in locating Wallenius. A few hours later a company of heavily armed troops invaded Hameenlinna, but a house to house search failed to discover the general who had disappeared.

Rebels Still Hold Town.

Five thousand armed rebels are reported to be still holding the town of Mantsala, located about 35 miles from Helsingfors.

The Finnish government tonight broadcast the folowing ultimatum:

"The rebels until midnight will find only one road open from Mantsala. They may leave by this to return to their homes and demobilize before 12 o'clock. If the town is not evacuated by then the last road will be barred and a military attack will be ordered."

Wallenius already has mobilized forces in the three districts of Kuopio, Mikkeli and Hameenlinna, isolating Helsingfors from the remainder of the country. The government has summoned part of the garrison stationed near the soviet frontier and the capital tonight is surrounded by the army. Troops so far have remained loyal to the government, although another report today said that some officers of the Finnish general staff have joined the rebel movement.

Leaders Seek Truce.

Several members of the Finnish government left Helsingfors yesterday by airplane for the residence of Vihtori Kosola, leader of the Lapua party, to negotiate a truce in the conflict which is threatening to develop into a civil war. The plane was expected back in Helsingfors today, but was delayed by fog.

More Troops at Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 1.—The military garrison here was reinforced with tanks today and additional troops were called from the provinces to protect the capital against attack by Fascist rebels. The exchange value of the Finnmark has not been affected by the rebellion.

Members of the Lapua telegraphed President Svinhufvud, Commander Lauri Malmberg of the civil guards and the army commander, Gen. Aarne Sihvo, demanding that the cabinet resign.

Three cabinet ministers resigned today. They were Kyosti Jarvinen, N. Solja and the Rev. K. E. Kilpelainen. They represent the consolidation party which is sympathizing with the Lapua.

"You'll be glad you chose a Kelvinator"

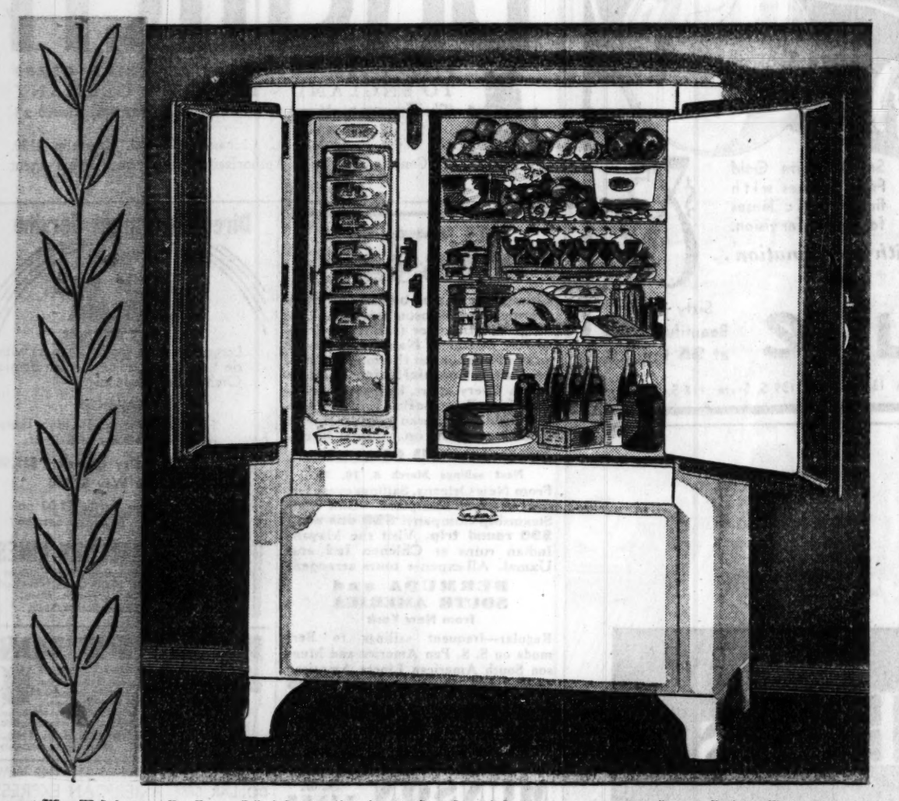
IN MAKING an investment in an electric refrigerator, years of satisfaction and economical service depend upon a wise choice. Just as motor cars and radios differ, so do electric refrigerators. Some are better than others—more economical—more dependable—and more completely satisfying—for a longer span of years.

You will find that Kelvinator, during 18 years devoted entirely to electric refrigeration, has developed more worthwhile engineering features than any other manufacturer. And consequently, the Kelvinator Product has more important, exclusive features.

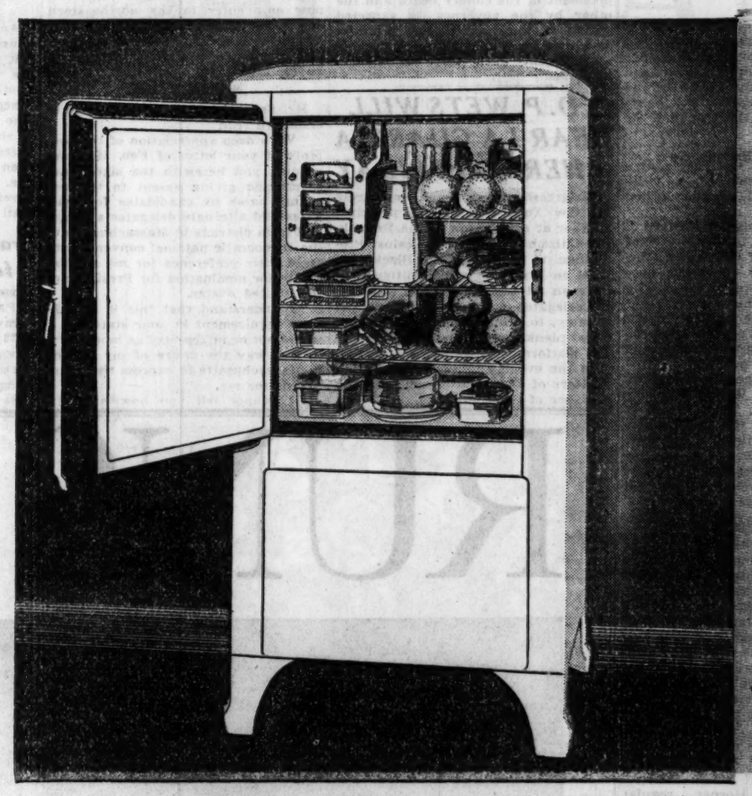
Fully automatic operation is a case in point. The Kelvinator De Luxe and Standard Models are the only fully automatic electric refrigerators. There are no dials to set. Nothing to remember or forget. Kelvinator alone has four distinct temperatures, each serving a different purpose and each automatically controlled.

In addition to these two Models the Kelvinator Line includes the new low-priced "K" Model. Here again, Kelvinator's long experience and craftsmanship are reflected in the quality and value this low-priced Model offers. It is, we believe, the finest electric refrigerator built in the low-priced field.

We invite you to see the new Kelvinators—to inspect them carefully—and compare them with all leading makes. And then, if your selection is a Kelvinator, we know that you, like all other Kelvinator owners, will be glad your choice was a Kelvinator. Kelvinator Sales Corporation, Detroit, Michigan.



The Kelvinator De Luxe Model 11—the finest electric refrigerator money can buy. It is fully automatic and has many other exclusive features. Available in five sizes, from 6 to 22 cubic feet food storage capacity. Porcelain inside and out, with the distinctive French Gray trim.



Kelvinator quality, performance and value are offered in the new LOW-PRICED "K" Model. Four different sized cabinets, from 4 to 7 cubic feet food storage capacity, are available. Furnished in all-porcelain or with porcelain interior and lacquer exterior. Small down payment and easy terms.

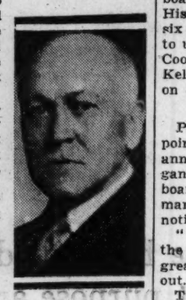
BRUNDAGE CALLS G. O. P. CONTEST PAY ROLL BATTLE

Assails Forces of Small and Custer.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Edward J. Brundage, Republican candidate for governor, called attention yesterday to what he referred to as "the battle of the pay roll brigades" in the primary contest of the party.



EDWARD J. BRUNDAGE.

"There is unusual silence for a campaign at this stage six weeks before the vote," he said, "and it is easily explained if the taxpayers will look into the question of how some of the candidates are campaigning.

"By even brief scrutiny they will learn that there is underway a battle of the pay roll brigades—the brigade of 1928 when Len Small was governor and the brigade of 1932 which is backing the state administration candidate. The former is trying to get back to the rich pickings, and the latter is trying to hang on to what it has now.

Cites Pay Roll Workers.

"Visits to the headquarters of Small and Custer have established the facts. One need to spend only a brief time in the Custer rooms at the Morrison hotel to discover that they are manned almost entirely by employés of the state and the west parks.

"This is a striking situation when the taxpayer recalls the plaints of the tax spending bodies that they are broke. And it is extremely interesting to note that there has been no sign of cutting down expenses in these quarters.

"There also is another pay roll group—not a brigade but a regiment perhaps—supporting Attorney General Carlstrom for nomination for governor, and I am told his offices are extremely busy on campaign matters without any suggestion of retrenchment in harmony with the spirit of the times.

"Those three are considered strong candidates for the governorship, and if the taxpayer is to have a chance in this situation he must get out and support some one who hasn't behind him a pay roll brigade that he is pledged to keep at the trough if he is elected."

Speaks for Brundage.

A similar tone marked a radio speech by Robert I. Randolph last night.

"I am going to vote for Edward J. Brundage," said the former president of the Association of Commerce, "because his candidacy offers the only leadership that I care to follow and the only assurance among the present list of candidates that my party is not going to be delivered up to the machinations of the political bosses and prostituted for their profit."

Brundage's candidacy was indorsed last night by the 43d Ward Republican Citizens' association. Ald. James B. Waller, president of the organization, presented the resolutions, which were adopted unanimously. The meeting was held in Prudential hall, Halsted street and North avenue. About 600 men and women were present.

Custer Meets His Workers.

Omer Custer was the guest of honor last night at a demonstration of ward leaders, precinct captains, and workers from the west side in the Kedzie theater. The meeting was arranged by President W. R. James of the west park board and it was said that representatives of all the west and northwest side wards were present.

The Deneen group's headquarters in the Great Northern hotel, it was announced, will be in full swing today under command of Jacob D. Allen, manager of previous campaigns, who this year is himself a candidate for clerk of the Superior court.

Judge Henry Horner, regular Democratic organization candidate for governor, will open his downstate campaign on Monday. His itinerary, it was announced, will take him to Kankakee, Watseka, and Danville on that day and will wind up in Mattoon, Shelbyville, Pana, and Decatur on Saturday.

Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, Democratic aspirant for state's attorney, and the only local candidate admittedly on the Igoe ticket, followed the lead of his chief in a statement condemning the organization under Mayor Cermak for picking a ticket of its own.

"One of the important questions of the fight," he said, "is whether Illinois Democracy is to be returned to the hands of the people or fall under control of any individual that happens to hold the reins of official power."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

JACOBS' SALARY AS ASSESSOR IS $15,000 A YEAR

County Acts Quickly on Appointment.

The county board was notified at its meeting yesterday of the appointment of J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer for the city and county, to the new post of Cook county assessor. The board acted immediately to fix his salary at $15,000 a year.

The appointment was announced after Gov. Emmerson had concurred with President Whealan of the county board in the selection of Mr. Jacobs. His appointment was the result of a six weeks' search for the proper man to undertake the reorganization of the Cook county tax system under the Kelly bill, passed by the legislature on Jan. 21.

A Big Job, Says Jacobs.

Pending official notice of his appointment, Mr. Jacobs would make no announcement of his plans for reorganizing the present machinery of the board of assessors. He will take command there as soon as he gets official notification.

"Things are in a terrible mess in the office," he said. "It will take a great deal of work to straighten them out."

Two commissioners, Mrs. Edward J. Fleming and George A. Miller, voted against the motion to pay the assessor $15,000, which was made by Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the finance committee. Mrs. Fleming termed the salary "outrageous and excessive."

Commissioner Amelia Sears, President Whealan and several other commissioners countered with the assertion that the salary, if anything, was too low.

"It should be $30,000," said Miss Sears. "The assessorship is the biggest job in Cook county right now. It is worth $30,000 a year for a man qualified to handle it to drop his private business in order to do so."

Gets Same Salary as Sexton.

The salary is the second highest paid any public official in the county. Corporation Counsel Sexton receives the same pay, and Mayor Cermak, at $18,000 a year, is the only official receiving more.

The county board also fixed the salaries of the two members of the board of tax appeals, who will sit with the assessor in performing the functions formerly assigned to the board of review, at $9,000 a year. Members of the board of review, abolished by the Kelly bil, get $10,000 a year.

Appointment of these two officers, one of whom will be selected by the president of the county board and the other by the governer, is expected within a week. President Whealan said that he would not announce his appointment until Gov. Emmerson made his.

G. O. P. WETS WILL HEAR LA GUARDIA HERE ON FRIDAY

Congressman Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York will be the principal speaker at a luncheon of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against Prohibition, to be held in the Blackstone hotel on Friday. The committee is to have an all day conference, attended by delegates from all parts of the country, to discuss plans for putting a wet plank into the national Republican platform.

In the evening Congressman Ralph A. Horr of Washington will speak at a dinner of the committee.

SMITH FORMALLY ENTERS PRIMARY IN OLD BAY STATE

Sends Permission Under Massachusetts Law.

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today formally entered the Massachusett primaries as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Frank J. Donahue, Democratic chairman of that state, over the telephone from Boston today, revealed that at his own personal request he had received a letter from Mr. Smith in which the former governor gave permission for the use of his name. The giving of permission for the use of his name was a technicality which the Massachusetts law required.

The first state primaries in which there is a Roosevelt-Smith contest is in New Hampshire. However, the real Smith-Roosevelt battle will be fought out in Massachusetts, a state which Mr. Smith carried in 1928 and where he is still hailed as the "idol of Democracy."

In his letter to Mr. Donahue Mr. Smith said he hoped that the state chairman there would "convey" to all his friends there how he valued their "friendship" and the honor which Massachusetts has done him.

Governor for Smith.

Mr. Donahue is a Smith man. So are Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts and United States Senator David I. Walsh. On the other hand, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston is a Roosevelt man, one of the first to jump aboard the Roosevelt band wagon.

The Smith people are confident that they will get the bulk of delegates from the Bay state.

The Smith campaign, a campaign in which Mr. Smith, himself, maintains he is not taking an active part, is being conducted by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City. It will, from now on, center in the northeastern states, particularly in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire. New Jersey, of course, is certain to go for Smith.

Smith's Letter.

Mr. Smith's letter to the Bay state chairman read:

"With deep appreciation of the contents of your letter of Feb. 26, I am sending you herewith the signed authorization giving assent to the use of my name by candidates for delegates and alternate delegates at large and from districts in Massachusetts to the Democratic national convention to state their preference for me as candidate for nomination for President of the United States.

"I understand that this is a technical requirement in your state and I would not be interpreted as hampering in any way the desire of my friends in Massachusetts to express their sentiment for me.

"I cannot tell you how highly I value the friendship and esteem the honor which the state of Massachusetts seeks to do me. I hope, through you, to convey this to all my friends in the state of Massachusetts."

Hoover May Enter Ohio.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—A definite decision as to whether President Hoover's name will be entered in the Ohio preference primary will be announced in the near future, officials close to the White House said today. These officials said that while it appeared probable the President would allow his name to be used, no final definite decision had been reached. If the President's name figures in the primary his written consent must be on record with Ohio state officials.

Under the Ohio laws the Hoover delegates cannot name him as their first preference unless a letter giving the candidate's consent has been filed with state authorities.

The meeting at the senate today of Chairman Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] of the Republican national committee; William M. Butler, former chairman, and Postmaster General Brown of Ohio prompted reports that the President definitely had decided to allow his name to be used in Ohio. Mr. Brown is handling the Hoover preconvention activities.

'LAME DUCK' ACTION OF CONFERENCE WINS APPROVAL IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—The conference report reconciling differences in the "lame duck" resolution as passed by the house and senate was adopted by the house today.

The resolution, which proposes a constitutional amendment to abolish the present short session of congress, is virtually certain to meet with senate approval, as that body has ratified similar measures seven times in nine years.

As a constitutional amendment, the "lame duck" resolution does not require the President's signature, but will go to the state department to await ratification by the states within seven years.

Under the provisions of the proposed amendment, congress would convene each year on Jan. 3 for an indeterminate session. Congressmen would take office on Jan. 3, two months after the November elections, instead of thirteen months later, as at present. The terms of the President and vice president would begin on Jan. 20 instead of March 4, shortening the time which elapses between a President's election and his induction into office from four to two months.

Bandit Shot, but Escapes in a New Pair of Shoes

An unidentified bandit escaped in a new pair of shoes after being shot last night when he attempted to rob the Universal Shoe store at 3265 South Halsted street. He held up Joseph Martin, partner in the store, who had just fitted him with a pair of shoes. From the rear room, Anton Zaleski, another partner, who had been watching the bandit, opened fire. Zaleski and the bandit exchanged several shots. The fugitive left a trail of blood.

France's Budget Provides for Army of 626,000 Men

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 1.—France's total army effectives provided for in the 1932 budget amount to 626,000 men, Francois Pietri, minister of defense, declared during the debate on the war budget in the chamber of deputies today.

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY GILDAY FOR SHOOTING BOY

Speedy Trial Is Due for Reformer.

Selection of a jury to try Daniel Gilday, gun toting superintendent of the Englewood Law and Order league, on a charge of assault to commit murder, was completed yesterday afternoon before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court. Testimony in the case will begin today.

The victim of Gilday's gunfire was Herman Knol, 17 years old, who has recovered from the wound. Young Knol was shot when he tried to direct Gilway's wavering steps on the night of Nov. 29.

Accompanied by his attorney, William Scott Stewart, Gilday appeared before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday morning and asked for a jury trial. Attorney Stewart has defended many criminals and hoodlums, among them Dr. Amante Rongetti, once convicted of murder by abortion, and Willie (Baby Face) Doody, slayer of a policeman. Since Judge Fisher hears only nonjury trials the case was assigned to Judge Prystalski, who ordered that the trial begin immediately.

Indicates Speedy Trial.

Assistant State's Attorneys Mal Coghlan and Daniel Covelli told Judge Prystalski that the case would probably take about ten days. "Not in my court!" replied Judge Prystalski.

In his questioning of the prospective jurors Attorney Stewart asked the men if they had any prejudices regarding prohibition. He said he wanted his client tried on the assault charge, without any "collateral issues" entering into the case. In the qualifying of the jurors each said he had never contributed to any prohibition reform organization.

To Fight Rum Evidence.

Attorney Stewart has announced that he will move to suppress any evidence concerning the bottle of moonshine whisky, star, and tear gas fountain pen that Gilday was carrying on the night of the shooting.

Gilday, who is gray haired, listened attentively to the proceedings. Occasionally he thumped his fingers on the table before him.

Before the trial started a præcipe in a suit asking $20,000 damages from Gilday for the shooting was filed in the Superior court by John Knol, father of the victim.

200 HOMELESS AS FIRE SWEEPS TOWN IN JERSEY

45 Dwellings Destroyed; Loss $500,000.

Penns Grove, N. J., March 1.—[Special.]—Fire swept eight blocks in the heart of this borough's residential and business section today, leaving in its wake 200 homeless, the débris of 45 dwellings, six business buildings and a church and more than thirty other damaged structures.

For four hours a wall of flame, driven from the Delaware river to the center of the borough by a 35 mile westerly wind, threatened the remainder of the town with destruction. Then the wind died down, but for an hour and a half more the fire defied the effects of 500 firemen and several thousand volunteers.

No Serious Casualties.

The loss was estimated at more than $500,000 by municipal and fire officials.

Despite the confusion caused by the routing of all residents from homes near the stricken area, there were no serious casualties. More than fifteen persons were felled by the smoke and several others suffered minor injuries.

The casualty list would have been larger but for deeds of heroism by firemen and residents. Four bed-ridden children were carried from the path of the flames, one from a house already ablaze, and two elderly women who had been confined to their homes were rescued just before the fire reached them.

Children March Out Safely.

Warning of the danger was sent to the Harmony street public school, where more than 400 children were in their classes. A routine fire drill tapped out on the school's alarm system and the children quickly marched into the street in orderly files. Then those whose homes were not yet menaced were sent to their parents to aid in removing valuables.

DRUG INDUSTRY ACTS TO PROVIDE 3,000 JOBS HERE

The employment drive of the Chicago drug industry got under way yesterday on the program of furnishing 3,000 jobs in thirty days for pharmacists and drug clerks now unemployed. Representatives of three associations and the major drug manufacturing concerns pledged their organizations to bring employment back to that of normal years, 1928 being taken as an average.

Under the present plan there will be no increase in hours worked, men now employed giving up part of their working time to provide a proportionate share of work to the registered unemployed. The plan will be carried to retail houses not affiliated with the associations through the medium of manufacturing salesmen.

The three associations represented were the Chicago Retail Druggists' association, the Chicago Drug club, and the Druggists' post of the American Legion.

Gas, Pain, 3 Yrs. Stops It Quick!

"I had a mean case of acid indigestion for the past three years," writes Miss Adeline Beljean, Brooklyn, N. Y. "Tried everything with little if any results. Then heard about ACIDINE and got some. It is wonderful. I can eat everything without gas or pain. Sleep fine."

"For ten years I had been distressed with heartburn," says Mrs. E. M. Patterson of Hartford. "I decided to try ACIDINE about two months ago. I started taking 4 doses a day and found great relief, gradually reduced to 3 and now am taking only 2 doses. I can't begin to tell you what a relief it is to be free from that distressing heartburn."

End gas, sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Maker guarantees ACIDINE ends your stomach troubles or money back. All druggists have ACIDINE.

Why blame stockings when YOU may be at fault?

Are you washing away the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear?

"ANOTHER PAIR GONE!"—but don't blame the stockings. Do you know YOU may have caused those costly runs?

New stockings give under strain—stretch and spring right back again—because they are elastic.

But if you wash away the elasticity, the lifeless threads, instead of giving, break. The slightest little strain—then a wretched run!

With Lux, you preserve this precious elasticity. That is why this easy way of washing makes even your sheerest, loveliest stockings wear and WEAR.

The Lux Way to save the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear and fit

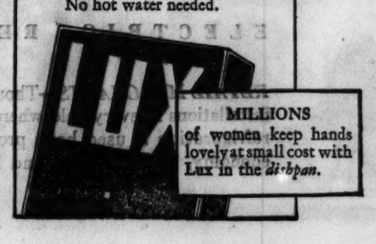
Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity. With Lux there is no rubbing.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens silk threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Don't use too-warm water—it fades color. With Lux you use lukewarm water. No hot water needed.



MILLIONS of women keep hands lovely at small cost with Lux in the dishpan.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

INTO THE ABYSS.

The President has modified, but he has by no means abandoned, his proposals for a federal appropriation for the improvement of the Columbia river. If he gets his way, the taxpayers of the United States will be called upon to produce $350,000,000 for the construction of dams, power plants, and reservoirs. In theory the government will get some of its money back some day in payments for the power generated. No one with any experience in such matters expects that all or even any considerable part of the outlay will ever be repaid.

The Hoover dam to provide a domestic water supply and cheap electricity to Los Angeles is costing $165,000,000. The southwest having been fed, the northwest is now at the trough. And the administration at Washington is giving encouragement.

No one knows precisely how much money the United States government is going to spend this year in excess of its income, but it is safe to say that the deficit will not be less than a billion dollars and it may be more than two billions. The combined deficits of the present and the last fiscal year are estimated at $3,000,000,000. No one knows just how that deficit is going to be met. Much of it will have to be borrowed. The borrowing must take place in a year in which the Reconstruction Finance corporation may borrow as much as $1,500,000,000 if it wants to. The debentures of the corporation will be guaranteed by the United States government and must therefore be regarded as a direct drain upon the amount of credit which the treasury can command. Some day—and, if spending continues at the present rate, some day in the near future—the limit will have been reached and passed as it has already been reached and passed by governments throughout the world.

There is talk of higher taxes and of new taxes, but together they will not come near to closing the gap between income and outgo, though any increase in taxation on existing business and industry must inevitably retard recovery from the depression. If the taxation is heavy there may be no recovery, and if it is light we may look forward to bankruptcy as assured. Unless, of course, the government reduces its expenses, as it is showing no inclination to do.

All the signs would indicate that the government of the United States is the victim of a suicidal mania. If it persists in its present course it cannot survive. It will drag business and industry with it into the abyss of bankruptcy. Never before in time of peace and seldom in war has the future of this country appeared as dark as it does today.

A government of vain men, a government of rattled brains, indecisive in thought and weak in action, is engaged in a colossal gamble with fate. When every consideration of prudence demands retrenchment all along the line, neither the President nor congress is giving more than lip service to the ideal of economy. The President talks of economy and advocates another $850,000,000 treasury raid. Congress talks of economy and adds millions to the appropriation for prohibition enforcement.

Nowhere is there the slightest realization of the outstanding fact of the times: if our governments do not halt their orgy of extravagance no sober mind can view the future with confidence. We may, with good reason, fear the bankruptcy of our government and in consequence its overthrow, and we cannot stop there. No man can predict what effect that might have on the world beyond our shores or what form of government, if any, would replace the one which had destroyed itself.

In this sense it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the fate of our civilization, the civilization of America and western Europe, is the pawn in the game being played in Washington. Throughout the country a growing number of citizens is becoming aware of the danger, but as yet there is little reason to believe that the sentiment of the country has made an impress on the minds of the country's representatives. Living, as our politicians do, in a city removed from the economic life of the nation, in a city of jobholders where there are few bread lines, they legislate and appropriate in a vacuum. They look upon the palace of the department of commerce as an achievement when, in reality, it is the symbol of a deadly disease.

How deadly will be revealed in a fortnight when the income tax returns for 1931 are filed. Treasury officials have hesitated to predict what the returns will show. Unquestionably incomes in 1931, both personal and corporate, were far smaller than in the depression year of 1930. Meanwhile federal appropriations have continued to mount. Any lessening of revenue under these circumstances must both increase the deficit (and therefore the need for borrowing) and reduce the security behind United States bonds and notes. That security, when all is said, is nothing more than the prosperity of the people of the United States. As the income of the people dwindles, the worth goes out of their joint obligations. Obviously the process symbolized by the commerce building, constructed out of borrowed money, cannot continue indefinitely. Obviously, as the income returns will show, the process cannot continue for more than a few months or years at most without bringing ruin upon our heads.

Some encouragement might be found if it could be shown that other countries which have taken the same road to ruin had escaped the consequences of profligacy. But that showing cannot be made. A halt was called in Australia when it was already too late. Heroic efforts are being made to restore solvency, but what good, if any, will come of them remains to be seen. England fell from the gold standard and in so doing destroyed London as the international banking center. England is in eclipse, and so, too, and for much the same reason, is most of central Europe.

Profligacy in government is producing the expectable results in our state and city governments. Illinois has learned so little that its routine appropriations in 1931 were $5,500,000 larger than at the peak of the whoopee era in 1929. The 1931 appropriations of $128,000,000 were more than double those of 1919. Illinois is not, unfortunately, an exception. State government throughout the United States cost $2,290,000,000 in 1931, as against $2,060,000,000 in 1930 and $517,000,000 in 1917.

To mention Chicago in this connection is to belabor the obvious, but it is, perhaps, worth while to point out that, though the doctrine of economy has been preached here with more vigor than in any other city in the Union, and has won virtually unanimous approval among taxpayers and citizens, the officeholders are indifferent. The board of education has known for months that it will receive scarcely enough income to pay off its outstanding anticipation warrants. If it can find lenders to advance as much as it repays, it can pay its teachers what is due them for services already rendered, but it will then have only enough left to operate the schools for a few months at the pace set in the tentative budget.

The board's ultimate decision is, for the moment, of secondary interest. Attention here is directed only to the fact that the board has resisted with all the stubbornness at its command, week after week, the plain implications of the simple arithmetic of income and outgo. That is typical of the attitude of the tax eaters in all our governments. The United States government differs in degree, but not in kind, from the school board of Chicago or its sanitary district. The spenders hold themselves above prudence and above public opinion. They invite the citizens to bear the consequences in human misery and degradation.

MONARCHIST HOKUM.

That Prince Lennart of Sweden should be compelled formally to renounce his right of succession to the throne because he proposes to wed the daughter of a commoner will remind Americans that monarchism still survives in Europe and clings to formalities belonging to another age. In the complicated politics of the age of kings there were substantial reasons for prohibiting the marriage of royalties with commoners. First of all, it somewhat disparaged the dignity that doth hedge a king and the theory of noble blood, of superior and special clay. Base blood could not but vitiate the sang azur. There were notable exceptions in even the greatest days of kingship, as in the case of William the Conqueror, whose mother was the daughter of a tanner. Roman emperors had wives of worse than common blood, but the theory of blue blood had not yet been planted and emperors themselves were often adventurers sprung from the lowest walks of life.

Then there was the practical reason that marriage with powerful princes was a source of profit to any prince and, perhaps, to his realm. The fabric of monarchism was strongly sustained by these intermarriages among the dynasts.

But little remains of all that today. No one but a snob takes the theory of noble blood seriously and the majesty of kings goes about in a bowler hat, blushes not to sell goods like a supersalesman, and tries sedulously for good fellowship. The Swedish royal house itself is parvenu, sprung but yesterday from one of Napoleon's generals. Its virtues have none of the glamour of antiquity or the mystic claims of divine right. Some advantage might come to the house of Bernadotte or to Sweden by marrying Prince Lennart to another royalty, and if that dubious system is worth anything it may be useful in the long run to penalize departure from it, discouraging young princes from heedless adventures in love. But on the other hand, it is not unlikely that to bring the fresh blood of a wholesome commoner into the veins of the family of Bernadotte might invigorate it and produce some day a great king. Looking at the charming picture of Prince Lennart's chosen, we see no reason why her contribution to the royal strain should not be welcomed.

Sweden is a very democratic monarchy and depriving Prince Lennart of his succession rights must seem, at least to modern minded folk, the rather stupid survival of a rule which has lost its meaning and now offends common sense and the spirit of the age.

WAR AND DECLARATIONS OF WAR.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Dr. Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, insists that the hostilities at Shanghai and in Manchuria do not constitute "war." He declares flatly: "Japan and China are not at war, because neither has expressed an intention to make war." From the professorial point of view the bombing of unfortified places, the wholesale shelling of noncombatants, the landing of an army of 22,000 men in a neighbor's country mean no war at all.

Dr. Wright is one of the few modernists who hold a declaration of war essential. Most modernists do not. In 1895 Dr. T. J. Lawrence wrote, "Modern writers are inclined to hold that declarations of war are not needful." He noted that among civilized nations after 1700 there had been sixty wars, and only eleven declarations. Nor was war without declaration a new thing in 1700. In 1588 Philip II. of Spain sent the Armada against England, with no preliminary announcement of warlike intentions. In 1812 the United States seized British ships in our harbors before the ambassador on either side had received passports. In the former war between China and Japan there was no declaration of war by either party.

Nevertheless, we could well wish that the principle Dr. Wright sets forth could be made universal and every departure therefrom be outlawed. Swifter communications and greater preparedness for war have altered old conditions. Now, irreparable damage may be done to an unprepared or peace dominated foe in a few days. War without declaration ought to be impossible. It is not impossible at present.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MARCH came in like a lion yesterday, considered from the standpoint of our gentle June-like winter weather. Still, it was not exactly the sort of lion we used to know before the climate changed. March this time was like a very old, tame lion with the pip and the stringhalt. Likewise the gout, hob nailed liver, and hardening of the arteries. However, it means that March will go out like a lamb, which, of course, will be indeed delightful. What little cold there was yesterday was not enough to injure the young date palms and the fig, lemon, and orange trees that have been set out all over Chicago and which are an absolute necessity now that Chicago has become tropical in its climate. Yes, it snowed, we admit it, but we enjoyed the strange experience very much and were really sorry that the beautiful snow lingered only about fifteen minutes. The Festival of Flowers will take place in Lincoln park next Friday, with wonderful prizes for the best decorated autos. But, remember, the flowers must be from your own gardens here in Chicago. Oh, what a climate! What a climate! (Los Onglaize and other southern California papers please copy.)

SEEKERS.

Each of us must treasure
When nights grow old
(And the best in us
Is spent or sold),
A dream that costs nothing,
Except for the knowing
That man must envy
The river its flowing,
Its flowing that runs
Composedly free,
To bring home a dream
To the heart of the sea.
For rivers must carry
A scrap of blue sky
To patch the sea's heart
Before they run dry.
And man, too, must hurry
(He knows not where)
To find a gold halo
For his thinning gray hair.

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

FOR CENTURIES MANKIND has been aghast at Nero fiddling while Rome burned. And yet a congressional committee, when the country is admittedly in the worst condition financially it has ever been, when it must borrow money by the billion to meet its expenses, and when there is immediate necessity of finding work for our army of unemployed, decides to summon the dramatic critics of the country to Washington to answer charges that their criticisms are harmful to the legitimate theater. Nero was a piker. How long, O Lord, how long?

AND AFTER CONGRESS gets through grilling the dramatic critics they probably will summon the office boys of the country to ask why they tell the boss their grandmother died in order to get off to go to the ball game. "Little boy, do you not know it is horrid to tell a falsehood?"

AND THEN after congress gets through with the office boys they will summon the little wrens and sparrows who flop down in springtime and snap up the poor little earthworms as they crawl out to enjoy the sunlight and the warm air. "Naughty birds, do you not know that fishworms have the same right to life that you have? Fie, for shame!"

CONGRESS is becoming more comical every day. But we can't laugh; we've got to pay too many taxes.

AND, ANYHOW, jumping on dramatic critics at this time when there isn't very much drama left to criticize is like stealing its milk bottle away from a baby riding in its little push buggy in the park. Oh, congress, how could you?

IT IS NOW SAID that while Mr. A. Capone will reside in Chicago for at least another month his private office in the county jail has been discontinued and his telephone cut out. Some of our older citizens may recall that Mr. Capone was sentenced to the government penitentiary at Leavenworth. And Leavenworth is in Kansas. However——

SOMEBODY HAS SUED Rudy Vallee charging he stole the song "I'm Just a Vagabond Lover." How horrible it must be to be charged with stealing that thing! We always thought Rudy sang it on a bet.

YESTERDAY "The Japs Hammered Foes on Entire Line." But today is Wednesday. Let's see, what headline do we have on Wednesday? Ah, yes—"Chinese Hold Back Japanese Advance." Oh, hum—what a dull world! Wish there'd be a good war somewhere just to give us a little excitement.

AND NOW WE CAN ALL GO to Europe or around the world; the steamship companies have begun selling tickets on the installment plan, starting to pay sixty days after you get back. Which sounds pretty good. After we've been and have failed to pay the installments—well, let 'em try to get the trip back, that's all.

YOU WILL BE PROUD.

Why must you be arrogant as wind blowing through the thinned and broken tree?

You will be proud,
your mouth so bravely red,
even when you are dead and in a shroud.

And your cold brow
will pity me for living while I stand near, forgiving, as I do now.

OXYGEN THERAPY.

THE use of oxygen inhalations in treating diseases and conditions is only fifteen years old. In that time the method has been made safe and reasonably efficient. We have discovered where it helps, and where it does not, and the machinery for using it has been perfected and simplified.

The air is a mixture of about 1 part oxygen and about 4 parts nitrogen, with small proportions of other gases, including water in the form of vapor. For all ordinary purposes, and in all ordinary conditions of health, these are the best proportions. The oxygen content needs to be cut with nitrogen in order to get the best mixture for the use of the human animals.

We should understand that too much oxygen, by the name of ozone, among others, is harmful except under special circumstances; and all aviators and mountain climbers know that too little is also a source of trouble. Therefore, when we vary the proportions supplied by nature we had better know what we are about. We should know that the disease or condition to be met is one in which there is a need for more oxygen before we supply more, and we should know that the method of supplying additional oxygen will do just what is wanted, and in a safe and satisfactory way.

There are just nine diseases and conditions in which oxygen treatment has a place. At the head of the list come the pneumonias. There is a general agreement as to the value of oxygen, properly given, in pneumonia. Its use saved some lives that would have been lost had it not been used. It is also used in collapse of lungs after operation, failure of good lung expansion in a newborn babe, asthma, emphysema, hardening of the lungs. Oxygen treatment is of service only during attacks of acute air hunger. In asphyxia from any cause it is usually best to combine 5 per cent carbon dioxide with the oxygen mixture. It is also used in congestive heart failure—those cases of heart disease where the lungs and other tissues rapidly fill with water—and some cases of the combination commonly called angina pectoris.

When oxygen is called for it is desirable to give an air which contains somewhere between 30 per cent and 70 per cent oxygen instead of the usual 20 per cent. The percentage must rise to 35 before the patient gets the benefit of the increase. If it goes over 70 per cent harm rather than good results. The aim is to hold the oxygen air mixture at 50 per cent, and modern apparatus accomplishes this.

There are several ways of using these mixtures. Some of the best hospitals are equipped with oxygen rooms in which the atmosphere is a proper oxygen mixture. Others make use of oxygen tents. Dr. A. L. Barach, who has used this method as much or more than any one else, devised a special oxygen tent for the head, neck, and shoulders. In other places masks are used, but this is only for short exposures. And, finally, the gas is sometimes given through a catheter which has been passed through the patient's nose and to the upper reaches of his breathing apparatus.

ON HAIR GROWING.

D. H. writes:

1. Is it true that if a man has his hair shaved off it will grow in thicker? thicker?
2. I would also like to know if or how I can make the hair around my temples grow in as thick as it is on top of my head.

REPLY:

1. No.
2. You cannot.

NO CAUSE FOR PIMPLES.

A reader writes: Does eating an excess of fruit, especially pears and bananas, tend to cause reddish pimples on the face?

REPLY:

No.

SUSPECTS TAPEWORM.

Z. H. writes: What might be the symptoms of tapeworm in a young woman other than being hungry so much and which occurs mostly in the night?

REPLY:

There may be some anemia and some eosinophilia. In some cases there are abdominal pains and disturbed appetite. Diarrhea is rare. The only dependable sign is finding sections of the worm.

IT IS NEARLY NORMAL.

P. writes: I had a basal metabolism test which read plus 5.6. I am 31 years old, 160 pounds, 5 feet 7 inches. Is this normal?

REPLY.

It is nearly normal. It is within the limits of normal fluctuation, as generally accepted. Not even body temperature is free from some degree of normal fluctuation.

NEGOTIABLE NOTE.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A makes a negotiable note to B, for which the consideration eventually fails. B makes an outright gift of the note to C, who takes it in good faith. C then sells to D, who becomes a holder in due course. After maturity C repurchases the note from D. Can C become a holder in due course and succeed to all the rights of D, under Section 58 of N. I. L., since he was never a party to any defense? Or does his holding revert to his original position and subject him to any equities existing between A and B? E. J. M.

"The notes in question were endorsed by Rumely & Co. to appellant Sept. 1, 1892, and endorsed by him to the First National Bank of Paris about the 11th or 12th of September, but were afterward, and before the commencement of this suit, reëndorsed to the bank by appellant. It is contended, therefore, that even if it be held that there was a failure of consideration by reason of the breach of the warranty, and the condition for notifying Rumely in writing within one week after starting the machine was waived, then such defense cannot prevail because appellant, when he received the notes from the bank, received them purged of all defense. In other words, the position is that a party having full knowledge of the defense which a maker may have to a promissory note at the time he received it may purge it of an equitable defense by merely assigning the notes to a third party and receiving them back at a subsequent time. We cannot give our countenance to such a doctrine." [Appellate Court Reports of Illinois, vol. 72, case of Dollarhide vs. Hopkins, pp. 511 and 512.]

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUST BE PAID.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Shortly after renting an apartment I was taken ill and spent three months in the hospital. I was then moved to another, where I spent six weeks longer. Doctors ordered me back to my father's home in order to restore my memory. During this time the landlord had my husband sign a promissory note and collected $65. Now that the firemen haven't received any pay, (1) could we force return of this money, especially when there is sickness? 2. Could we be held for the lease? 3. What steps shall we take? A. M.

1. No.
2. Yes.
3. You would remain liable.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A Shanghai dispatch says Admiral Ting, acting under imperative orders, has so disposed his smaller vessels of the Chinese fleet as to prevent the Japanese from landing troops in Chinese territory. The stronger vessels are openly crossing in the Gulf of Pe-Chi-Li ready to fight the Japanese, but up to this time they have not had the good fortune to meet them.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21.—Gen. Tfo, commanding the Feng-Tien division of the Chinese army, telegraphs as follows: "The Chinese on Aug. 17 attacked the Japanese forces at Ping-Yang, driving them back with a heavy loss a distance of eleven miles to Chung-Ho. The Chinese made a second attack the next day and drove the Japanese from Chung-Ho, which is now in Chinese hands. The Japanese again lost heavily in that fighting. Another great battle is expected today." The Chinese force which occupied Vashan has evacuated that place and marched eastward in the direction of Seoul. The Chinese forces are converging in Ping-Yang and 9,000 Japanese troops have left Seoul and marched in the direction of that place.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A dispatch from Shanghai says the court of inquiry has established the fact that the commander of the Japanese warship Naniwa ordered the destruction of the drowning men when it torpedoed and sank the transport Kow Shing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Japanese legation has received intelligence that it is reported in Tokio that the finding of the British naval court of inquiry which investigated the sinking of the British steamer Kow Shing, when acting as a transport for Chinese troops, by the Japanese cruiser Naniwa, is favorable to Japan. The British admiral officially stated to the government he considers the sinking under the circumstances equivalent to the sinking of a Chinese vessel and advised that no claims be made.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1904.

TOKIO.—The general staff has taken the field and Japan is ready to strike. The advance of the Japanese army is expected to begin almost immediately. All Japanese troops at Chemulpo and Seoul left for the front several days ago. This indicates that an immense army will march northward toward Ping-Yang. Japan now has 120,000 troops north of Seoul, facing the Yalu, and the Russians are in force on the north bank of that river. It is believed the Japanese army's first move will be to drive the Russians back from the Yalu.

CHEFOO.—The Russian squadron at Port Arthur has been taken into the inner harbor where it is announced it will remain until the land forces are properly quartered. All commercial houses have been removed to Harbin. All aged and infirm persons, women, and children have been taken away on the plea that their presence will weaken the resistance of the soldiers and add to the burden of feeding them. Famine prices prevailed immediately after hostilities began. Astounding stories are told of the unpreparedness and lack of provisions for both Port Arthur and Vladivostok.

LONDON.—A Paris dispatch says that the movements of the Chinese are causing great uneasiness at the French foreign office, where it is feared that Japan will follow her domination of Corea by inducing China to join a yellow combination against Russia.

WASHINGTON.—Russian Ambassador Count Cassini in an interview declares that hostile feeling in Russia and the United States toward each other must be checked at once or grave consequences may ensue.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1916.

PARIS.—The remnant of the famous Brandenburg corps, flower of the kaiser's armies, which bore the brunt of the assault of Verdun, is trapped in what remains of the fort at Douaumont. French forces surround it on all sides. Guards have been placed about the fort. The French are not wasting lives in attacking it but are waiting until hunger compels the kaiser's crack troops to run up the white flag or come out and fight.

LONDON. — The Germans have ceased their infantry attack against Verdun but are engaged in a terrific artillery bombardment of the French lines, perhaps preparatory for a new rush forward. The bombardment is centered on three positions. These are between Melancourt and Forges, west of the Meuse and northwest of Verdun; between Vaux and Damloup, near Fort Douaumont, northeast of Verdun; and in the Woevre district southeast of Verdun. Artillery duels and minor infantry engagements are in progress at various points on the entire western line, especially in Belgium, in the Champagne, and in Alsace.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson served notice on congress that he will accept nothing from it except complete compliance with his plans in regard to the German submarine controversy. He demands a record vote on the anti-administration resolution to warn Americans off armed ships of European belligerents before he goes on with the German submarine negotiations.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

FROM PROF. SIMPSON.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—Mr. Malone's letter to THE TRIBUNE in the "Voice of the People" a few days ago leads me to make this comment:

It seems to me that the one most important issue before the people of Illinois at the present time is that of taxation and public expenditure. Prohibition, league of nations, or what not may be of more importance in the national field—I question whether they are. But in any case, in our own state situation, these matters are twaddle in comparison with the question of taxes and expenditure.

I have watched eagerly for the statements of the various other candidates for the governorship and other public offices, but unless I have failed to catch all of their rambling remarks none of them has offered anything but milk and water comment on the tax question. We have had milk and water solutions of the tax question in Illinois ad nauseam, and I would judge that a respectable proportion of the voters of the state have come to feel that way about it.

Isn't it possible to get support for some one who will talk brass tacks on this question? Mr. Malone has so far come nearer doing this than any one else. I notice that he spoke frankly of the new income tax, in which it happens that I agree with him. It seems to me this income tax has a good many vicious elements.

I hope you won't feel that this is presumptuous or that my comment arises from any partisan interest in Mr. Malone. I have no personal interest in his candidacy whatever. But if THE TRIBUNE or the groups it represents could bring support to Mr. Malone or to any one else who will make taxation the real issue in this election and who will take a positive and vigorous position on this issue, it seems to me it would be a genuine service to the people of the state.

A WASHINGTON DOCUMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—I am taking the privilege of mailing to you a paragraph taken from a letter written in George Washington's own handwriting, addressed to the earl of Buchan. I had the privilege of recently reading this letter, which is at present in the files of the British museum. The paragraph reads:

"I believe it is the wish of the United States of America to have nothing to do with the political intrigues or the squabbles of European peoples, but on the contrary to exchange commodities and live in peace and amity with all the inhabitants of the earth. This I am persuaded they will do if rightfully it can be done."

It may be that this letter, written in Philadelphia on April 29, 1793, has been published in full in some of the writings dealing with Washington's biography, but I have not had the privilege of reading it in print. The sentiment in this letter as expressed by him is apparently so aptly put and so applicable to the sentiments of many people at the present time I thought it worth while to call your attention to it again.

GEO. W. HALL.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 19.—The article in the morning TRIBUNE by Paul Potter on the farmers' institute is a very illuminating presentation of facts regarding this old moss-covered agricultural institution. It should be terminated in the interest of the tax reduction program now being generally promoted by good citizens. AGRICULTURIST.

A SOLAR HALO.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Mr. J. E. Patterson's comment upon having seen fragments of a rainbow in the western sky from 4:30 to 4:45 p. m. several days ago is of considerable interest. He goes on to state that "the sky was clear, except for occasional fleecy white clouds, and the weather was crisp and cold, the temperature being 14 degrees above zero."

The phenomenon he was fortunate enough to witness was a partially formed solar halo. A halo may appear around either the sun or the moon. It takes the form of a narrow luminous band some twenty degrees away from—in this case—the sun. The colors exhibited will be those of the rainbow, although rarely are they so well defined or so vivid. They are a product of the diffraction of the sun's rays passing through high, veil-like clouds (cirrus stratus). These clouds form at an average altitude of about five miles—although not necessarily so high in extremely cold weather. Their elevation is so great that even during summer months they are composed of tiny crystals of ice which act as small prisms, thus breaking up the light into its component colors. If the clouds form in a thin sheet over a large area of sky between the observer and the sun a complete halo will be visible. From Mr. Patterson's description one would conclude that the fragments visible were caused by light diffraction through the "occasional fleecy white clouds."

Rainbows occur as a result of the sun's rays shining on a spray of falling water and not through it. For a rainbow to be visible in the afternoon it would necessarily have to be arched across the eastern sky—they always appear in the sky opposite the sun.

ARTHUR R. CAHILL.

A LETTER TO MR. GLENN.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—I have just sent the following letter to Senator Glenn:

If 100,000 letters should be on your desk when you get this one you would be amazed. Yet there are over 100,000 voters in Illinois who, if they had easy facilities and were used to writing to their representatives would write just as I am doing now to praise you, encourage you and urge you to go through the fight for cutting federal expense. You will get no encouragement in Washington from the very highest to the very lowest federal teat sucker on cutting down expenses. All the rooms are soundproof against such a noise. If you continue as you started it will make you famous and perhaps President.

GEORGE FRYHOFER.

FILLING STATION PREMIUMS.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Amongst the gasoline filling stations in Chicago competition for business has led to the point where a large number of stations are giving away premiums to stimulate or gather business. This is a general condition in the city and applies to all grades of gasoline purchased in 7 gallon lots. Some of these gifts as candy, glassware, bacon, etc., are more or less useless to the motorist, but in value I judge to be about 15 cents for each purchase. The funny thing about it is that no station seems to throw in an extra gallon of gasoline with a purchase of 7 gallons or more. Why not give the motorist something he can use?

Sherriff Pens British Version of 'Main Street'

"The Fortnight in September," by R. C. Sherriff [Stokes]. Published tomorrow.

THOUGH "Journey's End" first greeted the world as a play, the author, R. C. Sherriff, originally conceived it as a novel. When the play appeared it aroused almost worldwide comment and received the unqualified acclaim of discriminating critics. The author in collaboration with Vernon Bartlett later converted it into a novel. Consequently this second novel is from the pen of an experienced and recognized artist, and is in no way the product of an amateur.

R. C. SHERRIFF.

The story of "The Fortnight in September" is simplicity itself. Mr. Stevens, an oldish, baldish clerk with all the smugness and the fineness of the eternal bourgeois, and his wife, a pallid little thing who lives for her husband and children, but has her private fears and desires, go with their three children to a seaside resort a few hours from London to spend Mr. Stevens' annual vacation. Fourteen days and nights pass under the scrutiny of Mr. Sherriff. Nothing much happens—perhaps a few mild excitements like taking tea with a client of the firm for which Stevens works or like meeting a new person—and the days go by only too hurriedly for the family, if not for the reader.

The canary is taken to a neighbor's, the window is left a little open for the cat to get in, the lunch is packed; the ordeals of getting off the trunk in time, of getting through the confusion of Clapham Junction, of getting seats in a third class compartment, are over. For 310 pages the author's fervent attention is given to such things.

Realism with a Vengeance.

This is realism with a vengeance. This novel is practically a Guy de Maupassant short story, containing 310 instead of 23 pages. Whether you like this sort of thing depends upon what you expect of a book. However, considering the purpose of the author, his novel is successful. It is an English "Main Street" without venom or satire. The maddening minutiæ, the detailed presentation of middle class pleasures and griefs, prejudices and limitations, intellectual and spiritual pettinesses, the faithful accounts of each dull day, all are effectively handled. The style itself is pitched low and it has a monotony, quietness, and inconspicuousness that are well adapted to the subject matter. Mr. Sherriff's attitude is both sympathetic and understanding, and there are occasional flashes of humor and pathos.

The characters are convincing. The story is exceedingly well plotted and the structure is unerringly handled. The occasional sentimentality is carefully restrained. And the atmosphere is earnestly and sincerely created.

Story of Young Love Published.

"The Devil in the Flesh," published here for the first time in a translation by Raymond Radiguet [Harrison Smith] was published on the continent six years ago. It was hailed by Cocteau in France, in England by T. S. Eliot and Aldous Huxley [who contributes a preface to this American edition]. It is an example of extreme precocity in the literary art. The author was only a boy when he wrote this record of his soul, but the qualities of maturity and of abnormal intellectual and spiritual development are significant as well as startling. The novel tells of the love affair of a boy of 16 and a young girl of 19 who is married to a soldier. The boy had experience far beyond his age, and that experience led to a sensitiveness and egoism, cruel and introverted beyond belief. The literary craftsmanship is so brilliant and sure that it is hard to believe a boy, chronologically an adolescent, could have written it. Delicately and sensuously written, the tragedy of this youthful love affair ends in disaster. The translation is by Kay Boyle, author of the exquisite "Plagued by the Nightingale."

Pocket Edition Jackets Smart for Young Girl

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — There are plenty of Paris dressmakers who believe that the pocket edition of the jacket will be smarter this spring than the life size kind. Among these is Mirande, and she opens her spring style parade with a pair of these half-portion wraps alloted to one dress. The idea is to provide you with variations in your ensemble by means of the wrap, and to adjust it to differences of temperature.

The two-jacket ensemble with double wraps, that are only bolero size, is particularly attractive for the young girl. There is a bolero with sleeves, and another inside one without sleeves. The pair are shown in our sketch together with the frock they accompany.

This Mirande dress is one of the new two-piece jumper frocks that abound in Paris styles. It is made of navy blue crinkly wool crêpe, and the jumper has short sleeves, as you can see by consulting the small sketch in the background. Six coral buttons give a double breasted effect to this jumper, and the twisted belt is made of coral colored cashmere wool. The sleeveless bolero is also made of coral colored cashmere, and so is the jacket shown on the large figure. This jacket has long fitted sleeves with buttoned cuffs, and is rounded in front.

There is no collar, but loops of navy blue crêpe are placed around the neck to allow the passage of a navy blue scarf. This scarf is tied in a cat bow.

A symposium on "The Way Out" will be held at 8:15 o'clock next Sunday night in the Sinai temple, sponsored by the Sinai Temple Sisterhood. "The Way Out of Our Local Dilemma" will be discussed by D. F. Kelly. "The Way Out of Our National Dilemma" will be discussed by Senator Robert M. La Follette. "The Way Out of Our International Dilemma" will be presented by Edward Price Bell. Tickets may be obtained from the Sinai center, 4622 South Park way.

Chicago Symphony to Disband at Close of Present Season

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, regarded by music lovers as the city's greatest artistic asset, will disband at the close of its 41st season this spring. This was announced yesterday by Charles H. Hamill, president of the Orchestral association.

The financial condition of the association compelled directors to take the action, Mr. Hamill said. The loss on operations for the current season will exceed $82,000, it is estimated. The pay roll of the orchestra is $268,822.

Conductor Frederick Stock will raise his baton for the last time April 9, unless funds are obtained to assure success of the 1932-'33 season before its scheduled opening in October. Mr. Hamill said the association does not contemplate a campaign for funds.

"The loss on operations after crediting the income from Orchestra hall and office building was $40,000 last year and will be $82,000 this year," he said. "Happily, accumulations from endowment funds enabled us to take care of last year's deficit and it is hoped that this year's deficit can be similarly provided for, but by the end of the season all accumulations of income available will have been exhausted.

"In the last ten years the annual pay roll of the orchestra has increased almost 50 per cent, going up from $180,705 to $268,822. With such deficits and with the existing agreement with the Chicago Federation of Musicians in effect, there is no alternative but a cessation of activities."

Notice of the action of the directors was served on James C. Petrillo, president of the musicians' union. Under a contract with the union the association can terminate the agreement for financial reasons at the close of a season. The contract provides for a minimum scale of $90 a week for musicians.

The orchestra was founded in 1891 by the late Theodore Thomas. It is ranked with the New York Philharmonic and the Boston, Philadelphia, and Minneapolis symphony orchestras. Last January it was rumored Mr. Stock would leave at the close of the season to affiliate himself with one of the eastern orchestras. The report has not been confirmed.

The orchestra is considered unique in that only a small portion of its income comes from endowments. Several times the orchestra has been near disbanding because of demands of the union. Each crisis was met by subscriptions.

Blackfriars Announce Dates for Annual Show

The 28th annual Blackfriars show, staged by men students of the University of Chicago, will be held May 6, 7, 13 and 14 in Mandel hall on the campus, Chest Laing, Abbott of the Order of Blackfriars, announced yesterday. The production will be "Whoa, Henry," a musical comedy written by Orin Tovrov, 8010 Langley avenue, editor of Phoenix, campus humorous magazine, and a senior in the university. The book was chosen by professors in the university and dramatic critics from ten presented by students and alumni.

Spring Fever for Clothes Is Easily Cured

Good Remedy Is Well Within Budget.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE safe, sane, and inexpensive way to satisfy a spring longing for new clothes is to buy some of these good looking, moderately priced dresses around town. They will be pinch hitters for the time being for the more expensive originals and copies that you will crave later on in the season when feminine fashions finally stop trying to decide what will, and will not, be smart.

Any of them will satisfy that gnawing sensation [since the sun shines and the days grow longer and warmer] to discard a dull and dreary winter wardrobe. These models are made especially for freaky spring days that have, despite the warmth in all sunny places, a chill and penetrating wind. True, they are made of wool similar to your winter frocks, but it all ends there . . . these dresses are brightly colored and show printed signs of being very new and springlike.

There are a lot of wool crêpe ensembles with tiny jackets, with the sleeves of the printed wool blouse showing below the short sleeves of the jacket. There are many two piece costumes of sheer wool that will be mere trifles in weight and bulk under a coat now, and thin enough and smart enough later on for street wear with or without a fur scarf.

Ensembles in Crisp Colors

All these light colored ensembles have a new way with them . . . skirt bands reach new highs, and as a spicy variety, the new colors are as crisp and hardy as fresh new spring tulips in the florist windows. Huge wide lapels continue to dash about with the new jackets and dresses . . . some suits have these lapels frosted, as it were, with contrasting colored moire silk, and what a marked difference that makes.

One clever navy blue suit, or rather two piece suit effect consisting of a smart slender dress worn with a semi-circular cape with fitted sort of dolman like shoulders (which, incidentally, is very new and Paris like) uses two dark, dusky red carnations made of pique for shoulder chic . . . the same model is available in light colors with flowers of white pique. Even though capes are not new, this model is different because the cape can be anchored to any trig waistline with an attached belt practically cut in one piece with the cape.

A wool lace blouse in a deep creamy ivory shade is the third important part of a brown tweedy looking sheer wool suit that was made to write home about, for the brown color of the jacket and skirt is a brown achieved by mixing and printing two shades of brown, a bit of red, and then another shade of brown. The word description may seem a bit misty, but so is the brown of the suit.

One-Piece Dresses Joyously Colored

If you must have one-piece dresses, you'll have difficulty in picking just one from all the joyously colored new frocks now being shown . . . these new knitted dresses are as gayly colored as they are nonchalantly knitted or pretended to be . . . one daffy-dilly yellow model restrains itself around the neck and down the right side with a five inch band of knitted brown . . . another is green and yellow and brown, sort of mixed, à la crazy quilt, and though it sounds hopelessly jumbled in print, it will be duly appreciated when seen.

Thin flannel dresses in all properly vivid shades for spring shoppers are lavishly buttoned, or tied with charming irregularity and dashing informality, with bows of self material, colored pique, ribbon, or anything else that makes for chic.

These are the dresses for that disgusted-with-your-winter-clothes feeling, priced and designed with proper respect for modest budgets.

Fred Stone Is Back in Town with a Costly Entertainment

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Fred Stone, who has been one of the master clowns of musical comedy for almost thirty years, offers at the Grand Opera house a copious and costly entertainment called "Smiling Faces," which may be mildly recommended to playgoers in search of lyric frolic. Its tunes have the pleasant tinkle that soothes the tired depression fighter; its girls have the looks and the legs that stir him to fresh endeavor, and its principals, captained by Mr. Stone with Da ter Paula as second in command, are a sprightly crew. "Smiling Faces" is not the most wonderful show of the year, but it will serve well enough for the enrichment of an evening in Lent.

Like the many other Fred Stone diversions, this amusement runs to a variety of scenes and carries a story that leaps from point to point, as skittish and erratic as the mountain goat. Its fable lacks the whimsicality that has accompanied Mr. Stone's tradition. The plot is a standard article out of the libretto factory, dealing with two young fellows and a chorus girl; and the veteran star's rôle is a sort of added entry rather than an integral portion of the mixup. He is not as happily placed, for drollery and character interest, as he was in last season's "Ripples," but, being a lively lad of 59 years, whose underpinning is still faithful to the dance, he does much to disguise that fact.

Mr. Stone bursts into the proceedings by falling through the side of a house in the character of a daffy director who has borrowed a swell country estate for a filming of a maniac's version of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." He wears a purple suit, a yellow sweater and a pink shirt in his endeavor to impart the atmosphere of Hollywood. Later on he puts on the khaki drapings of a would-be aviator, and monkeys recklessly with a property plane, about one-half life size. To prove that he is still fond of gymnastic exploits, he embraces the propeller of this machine and lets it take him for a whirligig ride.

When the plot shifts to Havana for the didoes of the second act, Mr. Stone blossoms out into a noisy golf costume of black and yellow checkerboard effect. He has fun with collapsible canes and flexible golf clubs; he pairs off with his Paula in a number called "Do Something New," with crisp effect; he makes merry with the Amazonian Hope Emerson, well remembered as the leader of the Spartan women in "Lysistrata." He is quaint and amusing in every appearance, although the fact cannot be denied that, like Jack Dempsey and many other famous entertainers, he is slowing up.

Paula Stone appears as a giddy young actress who, to baffle one of those musical comedy wills, marries one boy friend in order to acquire the hand and estate of another. She is the soubrette of the Stone progeny and romps merrily through the show as agile as a kitten with a ball of yarn. Her dancing is admirably in agreement with her pedigree.

Billy Taylor, who was the baby faced comedian of "Ripples," is a brisk contributor to the revels as Paula's best bet; and Roy Royston, another neat, swift "juvenile" of the song and dance troupes, is useful as the other third of the plot. They put the spirit of youth into the numbers. Lotti Loder, who speaks German without burlesquing the language, and who is a keen little article, bustles about attractively as one of those rowdy soubrettes who are always hunting for a man. Miss Emerson throws her weight into the comic structure now and then with excellent results.

A postscript on the ballet: It comes from the studios of the excellent Mme. Rasch; it is composed of handsome and vigorous girls who are skilled in the intricate and difficult patterns of the dancing art, classic and jazz; and it is richly costumed.

The fun in "Smiling Faces" is clean hearted. That is Fred Stone's way.

"SMILING FACES."

A musical comedy with Fred Stone as star; given at the Grand Opera house, March 1, 1932, under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. Libretto by Harry Clarke; lyrics by Mack Gordon; score by Harry Revel; dances staged by Albertina Rasch.

Brave Weather to Hear Lecture of Mrs. Bradley

Tells Interesting Story of Travels.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT really was a great tribute to Mary Hastings Bradley that such a good crowd braved the weather and attended her lecture in the Diana Court salon yesterday morning, for those who went already had bought their tickets [it was the second of two lectures for the benefit of the Lower North Community council] and so their attendance was not necessary to benefit the council.

But no one wanted to miss Miss Bradley's delightful talk and certainly it was well worth venturing out into the hail and wet to hear about the "Matriarchs of Sumartra" and the "Black Queens" of the eastern Congo district. As usual, Mrs. Bradley made her listeners exceedingly envious of her unusual experiences, but very glad that she is so able and so willing to share those experiences with others.

The matriarchal system of Sumatra has many points in its favor and I'm sure many of the women at the lecture thought that it was too bad we civilized countries had departed so far from the old, old system which probably antedated the patriarchal system of family life with which we are more familiar.

The Matriarchs of Sumatra have never been bothered with fighting for women's rights, for they always have had them, and although there is a chief at the head of each tribe, he really is only the interpreter of the law, and he holds his position only because he is the oldest brother of the oldest woman in the village, and there is so much power behind the throne that he is only a figurehead.

Daughters Stay at Home.

Daughters do not leave their mothers' homes when they marry—they and their children remain to be a part of the family into which the mother has been born, and when a husband speaks of "my children" in Sumatra he means the children of his sisters, for his own offspring are "my wife's children."

Mrs. Bradley said that there was no poverty, no homeless children, no old people who are in want, in this land of the matriarchs and the only drawback to the whole thing is that the relation between husband and wife is a bit unnatural, at least to our way of thinking, for husbands only visit their wives occasionally and each man legally is entitled to four wives. Divorce is easy to accomplish, but so that there will not be too much impulsive divorce getting with immediate remarriage when the quarrel is patched up, there is a law requiring that a woman cannot remarry a divorced husband until she has had another husband. This, like most laws of the sort, is gotten around fairly simply by employing "matrimonial gigolos," as Mrs. Bradley called them, although she said the Sumatrans designate them "blind Chinaman" for some unknown reason. They are men who sell themselves as husbands for a day and thus make it possible for a repentant wife who is sorry she has divorced her husband to marry a "blind Chinaman" the next morning, divorce him at noon and remarry her first love that afternoon.

Amusing and Touching Stories.

Mrs. Bradley told several touching little tales about the black queens of the cannibals, and some very amusing ones, too. Legitimacy tests are quite ordinary occurrences among the cannibal tribes, but since the test consists of the medicine man christening the child in question with the name of some noted ancestor of the dubious father and unless the ancestor's spirit resents this and snatches the child away no illegitimacy is proven. Mrs. Bradley said the tests never amounted to much. Having twins is considered the height of vulgarity and every respectable family will see that one of the twins does not live long.

Mrs. Bradley was introduced by Carroll H. Sudler Jr. Great interest and admiration was shown by those in the audience in the drawings and water colors done by Alice Bradley which were hung on the walls of the gallery where Alice's mother lectured, for many of the pictures were of the matriarchs and black queens mentioned by Mrs. Bradley. It is an amazing exhibition and especially so when one realizes that Alice is not yet 16. But go yourself and see it for it is well worth seeing.

Among those who listened to Mrs. Bradley with enthusiasm were Mrs. George Jaeger Jr., Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler Jr., Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Scott Bromwell, Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Miss Jane Schuttler, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, looking very well and rested after her eastern trip from which she just returned; Mrs. Waller Borden and her daughter, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson; Mrs. Frederick Hauck, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Mrs. Arthur Farwell and her daughter, Miss Elinor Farwell; Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, Mrs. Jay N. Whipple, Mrs. Henry L. Hollis, and Miss Margaret Quan.

Benefit Recital Big Success.

Another benefit which was carried off with flourishing success in the face of the bad weather yesterday was the recital given by Harriet Lowden Madlener and Charlotte R. Smith at the Grant hospital Nurses' home under the auspices of the woman's auxiliary of the hospital.

After the lovely program had been applauded and encored until the two pianists, who have been playing together since their school days, indicated that it was really and truly over, some of the younger members of the board served tea at a table laden with sandwiches, candies, nuts, and cakes donated by the auxiliary members. The "pourers" included Mrs. Taylor Strawn, Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, Mrs. Donald McMurray, Miss Paula Uihlein, Mrs. Clifford Templeton, and Mrs. John S. Coonley Jr.

There were so many luscious cakes

Steak and Kidney Pie Is Meal in Itself.

BY MARY MEADE.

Tomorrow's Menu.

French Omelet
Sausage Patties
Toast
Milk Coffee

NOON.
Cream of Celery Soup
Fried Croutons
Apricots Stuffed with Cottage Cheese
French Dressing

Several weeks ago we suggested an evening menu which had steak and kidney pie for its meat offering. Since that time we have received a number of requests for making it.

First of all you will want to prepare the kidneys. Buy five of these if you want a dinner to serve a family of six. Cut each in half and remove the white tubes before placing them to soak in cold salted water. Soak them about three-quarters of an hour. When you are ready for them, trim, and skin (if desired), and dry with a cloth.

Now take two pounds of chuck steak, which has been cut about two and one-half inches thick, and one quart of meat stock. If you have no stock on hand, use water. Put the stock in a kettle over a slow fire to simmer gently. Add to it one sweet onion, cut in two, with a clove stuck in each half, one kernel of allspice, one bay leaf, and a tiny piece of mace. Let the stock and spices simmer for an hour and then set aside to cool.

Take the kidneys from the water: prepare them for use, and slice for the pie. Set these aside. Cut the steak into pieces which are about two and one-half inches long and two and three-quarters inches wide. Have in readiness a shallow pan with flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Dust the pieces of meat separately with the flour. Place a thin slice of kidney on each piece of steak, and roll them tightly together—the tighter the better to insure their adhering to each other. Then press the meat so that it will hold its shape.

Make a rich pie pastry and line a casserole or baking dish with it. Put a small cup in the center to support the pastry and set the rolls of meat on end in the dish. Each roll should be packed close enough to its neighbor to hold the neighbor roll in position. Then take the soup stock and strain it carefully over the meat. Cover the pie with a thick top crust of the same pastry and brush the edges with a little raw egg yolk to keep them together. Crimp the edges with a fork and brush the top with raw egg yolk mixed with a tablespoonful of cream. Place the casserole in a moderate oven (325 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit) for one and one-half to two hours.

Steak and kidney pie promises such a substantial meal within itself that you need but very little to accompany it. You may complement it with cooked rice and a dainty dessert. The vanilla soufflé will serve your purpose nicely.

VANILLA SOUFFLE.

5 eggs.
½ cup of sugar.
½ cup of butter.
½ cup of flour.
1 pint of milk.
1 teaspoon of vanilla.

Rub the butter to a cream, and add the sugar and flour. Pour the milk, first heated, gradually over the mixture. Add egg yolks which have been slightly beaten. Cook the sauce together in the upper part of a double boiler, stirring smoothly. This will take about eight minutes. Beat the whites and fold into the soufflé about three-quarters of an hour before serving. Add the vanilla. Bake in a moderately slo woven in a pan of hot water for forty-five minutes. Serve with cream or a creamy sauce.

Too Much Heat Harms the Hair by Drying It

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A question is asked me about the advantages or disadvantages of the finger wave over the marcel wave. I don't feel qualified to answer for all women. I could inject my own preference for the marcel wave because it takes less time and in my case seems less drying to the hair.

But hair texture varies so. Some women find the finger wave, with the necessary warm air drying, just what their hair needs to keep oiliness in check, I find, and I know other women who find themselves after a hot air drying session with a head that feels like hemp.

It takes about one-third the time, really, to get a marcel that it takes to get a finger wave. And, of course, where there is an elaborate arrangement of curls for formal wear, the marcel waves seem more successful. Yet, as I say about permanents, some women's hair reacts badly to the heat test and the mixtures that go into the operation. Other women, in the hands of the same operator, may find most satisfactory treatment.

The point is that we have to know what our own hair needs and act accordingly. We cannot expect a hairdresser to have the same interest in us that we have, nor can we expect him or her to take the time to argue with our judgment, or even oppose our suggestions.

There's no question in my mind that the terrific amount of hair dryness that is complained of today is due in some part to the frequent hot air treatments and to the overheated marcel iron. Improvement has been made in recent times in hair drying machines so that one does not have to subject her hair to an intense baking process. And we can warn our operators that a cooler iron is what we'd like for our marcels.

In the meantime a certain amount of conditioning of the hair should be indulged in to offset any possible reaction from the heat of drying machine or iron. In fact, the scalp should be considered just as much in need of care as the skin on the face or the hands. In this we have all been more or less remiss. But one of these days women will be taking their hair conditioning treatments with the same regularity as they now get manicures and facials, and in the interim one can help with home aids, as we now are helping our complexions and nails with home treatment.

Fraternities at U. of I. End Freshman 'Hell Week'

Champaign, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—"Hell week" at the University of Illinois was on its way today to join other rough practices in the limbo of fraternity traditions. The interfraternity council ruled that the period during which neophytes are harassed prior to initiation shall be confined to 72 hours. Further, the degradation of pledges must be restricted to their respective fraternity houses. President Harry Woodburn Chase asked fraternities last year to curb excessive roughness at initiations.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

There are times when a compromise is not only wise but imperative. When negotiations reach that stage where you feel that you can get along, and get along rather well, with what is offered, it is foolish to insist on a little bit more when such insistence may destroy all possibility of getting anything.

Now in yesterday's play-a-problem South might have made an extra trick or two. He might at trick four have led a club and allowed West to take two more club tricks, and then hoped that West would make a lead which would allow South to make a little bit more than his game. And, of course, West might have obliged him. On the other hand, had West played properly from here on and seen through South's attempt, South might have lost the game itself. This was the hand:

NORTH
♥—K,Q,9,7,5
♦—10,9,5,4
♣—7,6

WEST	EAST
♠—K,J,7	♠—10,9,5,4,3
♥—10,8,6,4	♥—3,2
♦—A,Q	♦—8,3,2
♣—Q,10,8,2	♣—J,9,5

♠—A,Q,2
♥—A,J
♦—K,J,7,6
♣—A,K,4,3

South dealt and bid three no trumps. All passed.

West opened the ♣ 2, North played the 6, East the J, and South the K. South then led out the ♥ A and followed by leading the ♥ J. This left his dummy with three good hearts, but there was no way to get over to play them. It is here that South considered whether he should be satisfied with giving West four tricks and simply taking his game or taking a chance by putting West in the lead as I have suggested above. Realizing that after all the game was the thing, South led the ♦ K, which West took with the A. West then led back the ♣ 10, which South took with the ♣ A. To the sixth trick South led the ♦ J, which West took with the ♦ Q. West then proceeded to take in his good ♣ Q and ♣ 8. Regardless of what West now leads, the game goes to North and South.

If West should lead a heart, North would, of course, take it and play out three good heart tricks and two good diamonds. If, on the other hand, West should lead a spade, South would take the trick and then lead a small diamond over to the dummy, after which dummy would proceed to take in the rest of the tricks.

Now suppose instead of playing this way South at trick four had led out the ♣ A and then put West in the lead with a club. Then, of course, if West had obliged and led out the diamond or led a heart, South would have been quite all right. But if instead West led the ♠ K there would have been nothing for South to do but take it with the A and then lead a diamond, after which West would have led the ♠ J. If South takes this, West is then in with another diamond and can lead the small spade over to East's hand, setting the contract badly. Even if South stays off the spade it will not help any, and there is no way he can make game. Really discretion was far the better part of valor in this hand.

NORTH
♠—A,Q,10,9
♦—K,J,7
♣—3,2

WEST	EAST [dealer]
♠—8,7,6,5	♠—K,J,3,2
♥—2	♥—A,Q,J,6
♦—2	♦—A,Q,10,9,8

♠—4
♥—10,9,5,3
♦—6,5,4,3
♣—J,6,5,4

Bid and play this hand and compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Child Anxious to Earn Money Deserves Help

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I need some money to buy myself a hacksaw. I wish I could earn some," was the plaint of a boy who was making a collection of tools. It put his mother in a quandary.

Aside from its connection with an allowance, how do you feel about your children earning money? How have you worked it out? I'm not referring now to money they may make by working for some one else, but by working for you. Do you pay them for doing things about the house—or if you have grounds, outside the house?

It is important to look before you leap into this matter of paying your boys or girls for helping you. Opinions differ and perhaps yours will from mine. In any case, here are some conclusions I've reached as the result of personal experience, observation, and some thinking.

I do not believe children should be paid for helping in the usual way that children can help about the house. They know, if they're at all sensibly brought up, that everybody in a family owes something to the family life. It may be necessary, if there are lots of children and no maids, for the children to do a great deal. Or it may be necessary for them to do only a few things, like setting the table, or running errands, or drying dishes, or keeping the wood basket and kindling box filled, or sweeping the porch.

For any kind of work that some one else in the family would do if they did not, I do not believe children should be paid. This contribution to the family bears no relation to money. They don't do it because they're paid.

If your sons or daughters want to earn money, if they want or need more than the allowance you can afford, let them work at something either occasional or regular, for which you would otherwise have to pay outside help.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

. . . with Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. It may be an overloaded stomach, a starting cold, a little fever.

More often than not the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives.

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. And children take it without coaxing. They like its taste.

Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then come relaxed comfort and restful sleep! You'll know genuine Castoria—by the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package.

Wouldn't you like to boast the vitality that makes such vibrant living possible? Wouldn't you like the radiant complexion, the overflowing energy that make life really worth while?

Doctors estimate that nine out of ten people who miss perfect health do so because of one commonplace evil . . . constipation!

Does that surprise you? Here's why it's so.

Your body absorbs its daily nourishment from your intestines. But when intestines grow sluggish—when food residues accumulate there—your system has only waste material from which to draw its nutrient supply!

Thus dangerous poisons form . . . are fed into your blood. You feel listless, irritable. And as time goes on, you tire more easily—feel less energetic than before.

Isn't it strange that so many people endure this condition—when doctors all say we can correct it so easily, today?

"A food, fresh yeast has the remarkable power to 'tone' and stimulate sluggish intestines. It fosters internal secretions, purifies. Eaten regularly, it revives health and energy in a perfectly natural way." left over after everybody had been served that the members decided to sell them, thereby adding a nice little sum to the proceeds.

Although the attendance was only a little over 200, the ticket selling committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Catherine Bartholomay Osborne, sold more than three times that amount of tickets, so the total proceeds will probably be close to $1,000. The exquisitely toned pianos which were used were loaned to the auxiliary by Arthur Bissell.

Mrs. Osborne, by the way, managed to handle all of her work as chairman despite a bad attack of the flu and got out of bed to be present at the recital yesterday. Her mother, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, is president of the auxiliary and Mrs. Frank S. Porter is vice president.

Charity Tour to Be Today.

Mrs. Frank Hibbard's first sightseeing tour for charity will be today, the bus leaving "Conveniences," 106 East Oak street, at 10:15 o'clock. Let us hope the weather will be nice for this newest plan of Mrs. Hibbard's for raising funds for her pet charities. The tour will be repeated tomorrow, starting at the same time.

The Friends of Opera guarantee fund committee will meet this afternoon at Mrs. Waller Borden's, 1020 Lake Shore drive, from 4 to 5 o'clock, to report on the work which has been done in the last week. Mrs. Charles King Corsant is chairman of the committee.

The fashion show at Community house in Winnetka will be the leading attraction on the north shore this afternoon and undoubtedly there will be large crowds to see the prettiest and smartest of the north shore's girls and young matrons display new spring fashions at the afternoon show, which starts at 2:30 o'clock, and again for the evening one, which will commence at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Henry L. Hollis called to tell us that there will be a luncheon meeting of the Boys' Shelter club tomorrow at 12:45 o'clock at the Drake hotel. Jack Robbins will talk on the work of the Boys' Brotherhood republic. Mrs. Edwin S. Noble, the president, will preside.

An added attraction at the tea at the Arts club Friday afternoon will be the presence of the two artists whose exhibitions are being opened that afternoon. Isamu Noguchi, the talented and attractive young Japanese, who was so popular when he was here a few years ago, will exhibit drawings and sculpture, and H. E. Schnakenberg will have some of his paintings hanging in one of the club's galleries. Both young men are coming from New York, Mr. Schnakenberg just for the week-end and Mr. Noguchi for a longer stay, probably for the duration of the exhibitions, two weeks. No doubt there will be a lot of entertaining for the young Japanese. He is the son, you know, of the celebrated poet, Yone Noguchi. Mrs. Potter Palmer is chairman of the reception committee and will head the receiving party on Friday.

English Union to Hear Viner.

The English-Speaking Union announces a luncheon on Saturday of this week at 12:15 o'clock in the Palmer house at which Dr. Jacob Viner will speak on "Britain's Economic Future." Dr. Viner served in Washington as expert adviser on the tariff during and immediately following the war. He was called to the University of Chicago in 1921 and admitted to full professorship in 1924. In the summer of 1931 he was present as the American economist at Geneva, Switzerland.

The union will have a tea at the Blackstone on March 15 at which Clara Laughlin will give a "preview" of her new book, "So Your're Going to Ireland and Scotland."

Mrs. Sheldon Dick and little "Dottie" have returned from Cuernavaca, Mexico, and are with Mrs. Dick's sister, Mrs. Philip B. Maher, and her family at 44 Cedar street. Miss Florence Noyes and her mother, Mrs. Ernest H. Noyes, who accompanied Mrs. Dick to Mexico, are still there.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II. [Katherine Hare] returned on Sunday from their wedding trip to the Bahamas and are residing in the John W. Valentines' attractive apartment at 1315 Astor street. The Valentines and their infant daughter are to be with Mr. Valentine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine for the rest of the winter.

Mrs. William Mitchell Blair of 1311 Astor street returned on Sunday from one of her frequent trips to New York.

"Old Clothes"

Miss Adelaide Atkin, general chairman of the second hand clothing sale to be held on March 17 by the provisional members of the Junior League, and Mrs. Maude Sippy Hill, chairman of prices for the sale, are two of a score of young women engaged these days in soliciting and collecting "white elephants" for the sale.

Miss Austral Appears with Swift Chorus

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Florence Austral never showed herself a more distinguished artist than when she appeared as guest in the program of the Swift & Co. male chorus at Orchestra hall last night.

She had been known for several years as possessing one of the finest soprano voices of the generation, one that can enter upon an operatic number, be it of the heaviest dramatic weight or of a lighter lyric texture, and work marvels of beauty with it. Last night she began with a group of German songs by Richard Strauss, and the dignity, restraint, fine feeling that she gave to them were a new chapter in her artistic career. For an encore she sang the same composer's "Serenade," as ideally lovely a performance as it has had since Claire Dux last sang it in public.

Later the program became lighter. The chorus under Mr. Clippinger's direction sang the "Italian Street Song" from Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta" with Miss Austral as soloist, and it fairly lifted the roof. Of course it was repeated. Even though it did not quite attain the swift rush of operetta tempo, it was a performance such as one seldom hears.

The choral program was comprehensive, ranging through songs old and new, grave and gay, sacred and secular. The chorus has become decidedly improved in balance, volume, and accuracy. It can strike a fine, full, resonant note, it can also become lightly accurate beyond the wont of most male choruses. On a guess, one would say that it has been through diligent, thorough, and intelligent rehearsals.

A featured number was the winner in the annual song writers' contest conducted by the organization. This was a setting of Catherine Parmenter's poem, "Song of the Winds," made by Adriaan Vanderbilt. It is a well written, melodious composition, and of the lyric rather than the dramatic persuasion.

A program of piano numbers which abolished all sonatas and confined itself to briefer compositions of many schools was played by William Frithiof Erlandson at Kimball hall. He is an artist with an accurate and pleasing taste in the projection of melodious compositions and a serviceable if not entirely immaculate technical development. Gluck, Bach, and Schubert works were played in later transcriptions, a Chopin group took a prominent place, and considerable attention was paid to some of the moderns.

Women Plan World Meeting for 1933 Fair

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, president of the National Council of Women, will confer here Saturday with leaders of various feminine organizations on the council's World's Fair program. The program comprehends the securing of one million signatures to petitions to be sent to foreign governments asking them to send women delegates of high distinction to an international congress to be sponsored at the fair by the national council.

MISS PHILLIPS.

During the World's Fair of 1893 a similar gathering was held, it was recalled yesterday in an announcement from New York of Miss Phillips' impending visit. At that time such well known figures as Susan B. Anthony, Lucy Stone, Julia Ward Howe, Antoinette Brown Blackwell, and May Wright Sewall participated. New York women have already organized in support of the project, and have pledged to secure 200,000 names. Chicago is expected to equal that quota and perhaps to surpass it.

A sum somewhat in excess of $270,000 has been raised on the five-year guaranty fund of the Chicago Civic Opera company, it was learned yesterday, leaving something slightly less than $230,000 still to be raised. This is not enough to insure the presence of the opera company next season or to permit any statement of its likelihood from the company officials, but it is better than half way to the desired goal.

Society Helps Jobless Girls at Y. W. School

Study Keeps Up Morale of Students.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

JOB hunting may never be the lot of debutantes and society matrons, but, without doubt, some of them can tell better "hard times" experiences than the average girl out of work. I refer, in particular, to the group of fashionable young women who give many hours each week to the free vocational school sponsored by the Young Women's Christian association.

Two weeks ago Miss Mildred Wetten, the able chairman of the school, outlined the project for me at a luncheon of the Council of Foreign Relations. Yesterday I saw the school in action at the association's main branch and was convinced of the service it is rendering approximately 2,000 unemployed girls—helping them maintain their morale and keeping them in trim for future jobs.

Making Use of Leisure.

"The school was started a year ago," Miss Wetten told me, "because the Y. W. C. A. was swamped with requests for positions. Of course, it couldn't fill them all so it decided to open a school where unemployed girls might put their enforced leisure to good account by studying. The response has been amazing."

To date there have been 1,829 young women registered in the vocational school—at the present time there are 850. And every one of them is a firm believer in the school slogan, "Use today's enforced leisure to prepare for tomorrow's job." Many are skilled workers simply "keeping up" on what they already know; others are learning new types of office work that they may be better qualified when an opportunity for work comes.

"Last year when the school was an experiment we were able to take girls who had never worked," Miss Wetten went on. "This year when the school is a proved success we have had to limit the enrollment to those who have worked but are now out of employment. We all are convinced its greatest contribution is in keeping up the interest and morale of girls who fall into the depths of despair after days and weeks of making the hopeless rounds of employment agencies or of sitting about home waiting for something to turn up."

The school itself presents an interesting "before and after" picture. In the waiting rooms are applicants looking discouraged and depressed. Beyond are the classrooms with several hundred girls clicking away merrily on their typewriters, racing their pencils over shorthand pads, or bending in deep thought before a calculating machine. Their attention has been absorbed—their spirits inevitably raised.

Lelia Withers and Honor Merrell were at the registration desk yesterday taking the names and addresses of applicants for places in classes on typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, filing, or some related subject. Other days in the week these places are filled by Winifred Wheeler, Alice Jacques, Dorothy Moorhead, Mrs. Charles Hines, Mrs. William C. Boyden, Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon, or Miss Ruth Voltz. They all know what an important service they're rendering, but each one is modest as can be about it.

The personal interviews, one of the important regulations in connection with registration, are given by Miss Wetten, Miss Cleos Rockwell, director of the school, or in case of "rush business," by some one of the other volunteer workers. And this work is one human interest story after another—girls who have hunted jobs for months, girls who have been poorly adjusted vocationally, and girls who have aged parents to support. All of these things are taken into account that an applicant may be registered in the classes most adapted to her needs.

Gets School Equipment.

Proof that Miss Wetten is a hard working chairman and not a "figurehead" as found in the school equipment which she has obtained, mostly without charge, from business schools and local manufacturing of office machinery. Ever so many of these companies have also provided instructors gratis. The rest of the teachers are either members of the Y. W. C. A. staff or instructors out of employment who are glad to give their services to keep from becoming "rusty." The small overhead of the school is met through a part of the association's share of the Joint Emergency Relief fund.

Women interested in the Y. W. C. A. who frequently visit the school to keep tab on its work include Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes, Mrs. Robert S. De Golyer, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Arthur S. Hook, Mrs. Wyndham R. Bean, and Miss Helen Partridge.

Longwood Alumnae Group to Present Play Friday

"Artichokes for Dinner," a three act play, will be presented by the Longwood Alumnae players Friday night in Hackman hall, 95th and Throop streets. Proceeds of the production will go to the building fund of the Academy of Our Lady. The presentation is under the management of Miss Rosemary Rach, president of the 1930 class of the alumnae association. The players, all of whom are members of the '30 class, are under the direction of Miss Mary Gallagher. The cast includes the Misses M. Janson, M. Clifford, B. Meany, A. Durkin, D. Williams, M. New Art Show Stirs Interest in Americans

Carson Pirie Scott Opens Exhibition.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A most delightful and exciting exhibit opens today in the new Carson Pirie Scott galleries on the sixth floor. With the intention of stimulating interest in the purchase of American paintings Mr. Franklin, manager of the galleries, has hung work representative of some twenty painters of Chicago and New York. Each painter is allowed two canvases.

The galleries present a brilliant and diversified aspect. Here are gorgeous flower studies by Gerald Frank, over yonder is an exquisite interior by Marguerite Pearson and beyond is her rich painting of begonias. On this side is a huge decorative canvas of white herons by Stark Davis, one that is a quiet landscape by James Topping, one in which the wind is still. Anna Lee Stacey catches and holds our attention with a beautiful study of a red-podded plant.

Francis Chapin astonishes us with his huge arrangement that was lately shown at the Carnegie, a still life arrangement with some delicious color to commend it. Mr. Chapin is uneven so we are not surprised to find his second canvas a rather hurried concoction.

Anthony Thieme is represented with a fine painting of boats along a wharf and a second painting of boats at anchor; both have the silver sheen that characterizes his gray. Pauline Palmer offers a rather grandiose Gloucester and a charming southern village street. Harry Leith-Ross submits a winter landscape and a boat in a neck of water, both well done. Lenore Jerrems offers a stunning still life, very effective. Joseph Allworthy has some of the best painting in the gallery in his delightful interior with the yellow French chair. His manner of painting seems looser this year than last, and even more intriguing.

To Wed with Easy Escape in Mind Is Cowardice

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's 28, has a good job and has been with the concern since she was 17. Started in at $15 a week. Is now earning what she calls a man's salary.

She has kept a man dangling for over four years. He is a nice person, she admits—the very nicest she knows, but he has delivered an ultimatum and her "yes" answer has to be delivered shortly, or he will be off and out of her life for good.

She, having looked on at marriage of friends with disillusioned eye, as she tells it, wants an "out" clause in the agreement. She would like to draw up an agreement, in fact, signed by herself and suitor that if they find themselves unsuitable at the end of a six months' period, each will withdraw gracefully. In the meantime, she will hold to the job just as if marriage never happened.

Approaching marriage in that frame of mind and heart for the job has failure written all over the experiment. There is no need for drawing up documents to cover an easy withdrawal. It's doomed from the start. How could one hope to win at a game, at any game, if the intention to withdraw at the first difficulty were entertained?

There is no other job than matrimony where the idea of achieving success without experiencing some difficulties is so foolishly entertained.

One simply cannot adapt herself to the demands of marriage with the idea of escape in mind, because happy marriage does not happen. It isn't ordered by request. It's made. It is built. It is worked at and worked at successfully only when the intention is make a go of it.

A revival of common sense toward and about marriage appears on the horizon. And one of its best propagandists recently announced that it is not hard luck, personal undesirability, nor superior wisdom that keeps girls out of marriage. It's plain cowardice, she calls it, a conscious or unconscious escape from reality. Just a suggestion we offer that may or may not cover your case, Miss 28.

No "Acid Headache"
No Upset Stomach

The Law of Good Health says: "Don't overindulge—don't smoke too much, eat too much, drink too much coffee or other stimulants."

Science says: "If you do, the QUICKEST, SIMPLEST and EASIEST way to avoid FEELING its results is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia taken this way:

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water before bed.

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water with the juice of a whole ORANGE when you get up."

Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes the excess acids in your stomach and alkalinizes its contents, sweetens them; banishes headaches and sour stomach.

Demand genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; either the liquid form or the new, convenient tablets.

PHILLIPS'
Milk of Magnesia

Neutralizes the acids that cause "Acid Headaches" and Sour Stomach within 15 minutes after taking!

TWO FORMS NOW AT STORES

You can now get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in tablet form, as well as ordinary liquid form. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Milk of Magnesia. Carry the tablets with you wherever you go. They taste like mint candy.

"I'm going to . . WASH . . your FACE!"

"I COULDN'T imagine what Henry was talking about . . . until he showed me what was really a painted look on my lips!"

Painted lips are one thing no man can overlook. And it's so easy to offend without even knowing it. Colors that look well on others may be cheap and tawdry on you!

Stop using ordinary lipsticks. Always Tangee your lips. Tangee can't make you look painted. It isn't paint. It changes on your lips to the one color most becoming to you! It brings you new beauty!

And Tangee is permanent—won't smear. Its cold cream base prevents chapping and caking.

Get Tangee at your favorite druggist or cosmetic counter. It costs no more than ordinary lipsticks. For Miracle Make-Up Set, containing purse-size samples of Tangee Lipstick and Rouge—send 10c to The George W. Luft Company, Dept. T99, 417 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

TANGEE
"ENDS THAT PAINTED LOOK"

Cheeks Mustn't Look Painted!
Tangee Rouge changes on the cheeks—just the way Tangee Lipstick does on the lips. It gives the color most becoming to you . . . ends that "painted look." When you get Tangee Lipstick, ask for Tangee Rouge.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Chapelle is the owner of Flaxen's Casino, near the water front of Port Bai, which was established by her first husband of dubious color, who had fathered her daughter Aya, and was the refuge of her second husband of dubious morale though unimpeachable antecedents, who had brought his little daughter Faire to the island and remained there until his death.

Malice Bookes, aid de camp of Sir Philip Persian, governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario, obtained an invitation for Mrs. Chapelle and her daughters to attend the government house ball. Faire's pride makes her reject the belated honor because the Chapelles had until now been left out of the ball list. Mrs. Chapelle and Aya believe it is because she doesn't want to go in their company. Faire admits to herself, with misgivings, the truth of their accusations. She prefers to remain in the casino, where she and Aya had been trained to work by their mother. She strolls over later to watch the gayety of the ball from a sheltered grotto in the governor's garden. She sees Mira Worcester, a faded beauty, and young Robert Grand, the governor's secretary and ward, steal away to a secret rendezvous. The governor follows them out and finds Faire just as Capt. Worcester, Mira's husband, comes along.

INSTALLMENT III.

A MERCILESS MAN.

Faire sank down on the farther side of the seat. It held two. Sir Philip was instantly beside her, close, his hand taut as a steel glove on hers.

"Don't speak! Smoke!"

She felt a cigaret against her lips. A lighter flashed. She drew at the cigaret quickly. Persian lighted one, too. The footsteps, unsteadier than his, crashed down the path.

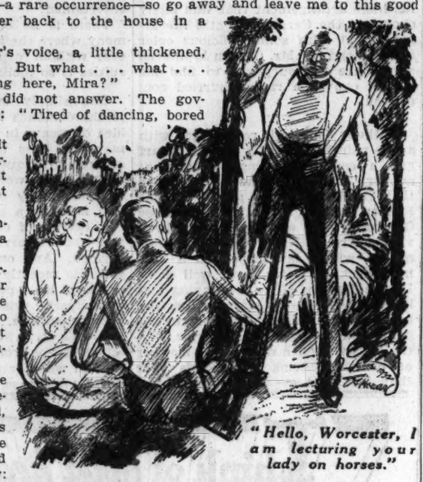
"Act!"

She did not speak. His hand on hers warned her again. He was using her as repute said he used every one for his purposes, ruthlessly. Resentment fired up and died in her under his hand. That—so repute also said—was how he tamed his horses. You could not bring the governor a horse that he could not temper and mold.

His voice was raised; it was light and bantering: "But you must see you ought not to ride a fellow's ponies, Mira. Mira—" he uttered the name instantly in his raised voice—"you should get your husband to buy that little old mare that's for sale down at the hotel. I can assure you—"

The bougainvillea was not so much parted as torn aside as a bulkier figure than Persian's blocked the moonlight. The governor said equably:

"Hullo, Worcester. I am lecturing your lady on horses' mouths. She is listening meekly—a rare occurrence—so go away and leave me to this good work. I'll bring her back to the house in a minute.



"Hello, Worcester, I am lecturing your lady on horses."

Capt. Worcester's voice, a little thickened, replied: "All right. But what . . . what . . . what you been doing here, Mira?"

Fair Chappelle did not answer. The governor did it for her: "Tired of dancing, bored with us all."

"Didn't know it was you here, Persian, or I wouldn't have come. Thought it would be Grand."

"Robert's wandering afar with a fair Spanish lady."

"All right, Persian," said Worcester in the dull, meditative voice of a man who has drunk himself not really drunk but stupid. "All right."

For a full minute Persian sat silent beside the unknown girl, and she knew he was very angry. So he turned to her and acknowledged stiffly:

"Thank you. Were you waiting for some one or do you want to go back to the ballroom?"

"Neither, thank you, Sir Philip. I am not at the ball."

"Then?"

"I wanted to look at it. So I came here."

"But who are you?" he asked, puzzled at her poise, by the sleeveless, décolleté frock and the shining slippers. For it was impossible that there should be any woman of his own class on the island whom he did not know.

"I am Faire Chapelle."

He exclaimed: "You were asked to the ball. Bookes made a point of it!"

"I did not wish to come."

"I am sorry for that," he said formally.

"Do you want my help any more, Sir Philip?"

"I must trouble you for a few words with me privately, Miss Chapelle. But not here. Worcester might come back and . . . Besides, I mustn't stay. There's no one near. Look," he drew her out into the moonlight, "skirt the servants' quarters and the garage; go between the two pepper trees to the loggia at the back of the house—you will see my study windows open. Go in, please. Wait. Don't switch on the lights. I'll follow."

He had left her without, apparently, a thought that she might refuse. might—and quite justifiably—fail him. And for the first moment she might so have failed, but the next moment's wisdom whispered to her: "Go! go! When will such opportunity come again?" She obeyed his direction on flying feet, and came to the opened windows of his study in the shade of the wide loggia.

She stood just inside the windows in the dark room.

Persian came in by the door so softly that she was aware of him only when a green lamp globe on a desk shone where darkness was before. Looking at the girl, he walked over and drew the window curtains.

"Mrs. Worcester is wearing a pale colored frock, too, she is slim, and her hair is fair," he said, briefly explaining his mistake of a few minutes ago.

"I quite understand. And it was dark."

"You'll realize, Miss Chapelle, why I troubled you for this brief interview. Please tell me, did you see any one pass by before I arrived?"

"Mr. Grand and Mrs. Worcester went in the direction of your orange grove."

"Very well, Miss Chapelle. You overheard nothing?"

She hesitated, and as clearly as if she had told him in words, he saw in her big eyes the reflected passion of that kiss. This girl had seen that boy making love to the haggard beauty.

He walked about slowly, thinking.

"Won't you sit down?"

She sat on a chair near his desk and saw on the desk, in the green glow of the lamp, the portrait of a woman.

The mystery woman of whom all Bai and St. Rosario talked?

It was a portrait of at least ten years back, judging by the clothes and hair. Faire Chapelle, female and unerring, saw that. But the woman of the portrait was then already mature. Ten years ago the governor would be a boy of . . . twenty-three? Ten years from that portrait that woman would already be . . . fifty? Fifty-five?

Persian spoke: "I want your promise on your honor not to speak of anything you saw and heard."

"You have it." She asked: "Do you think, perhaps, a Chapelle hasn't any honor; or hasn't the gift of silence?"

It was what he thought. The café on the waterfront was the hotbed of all the island scandals. He replied coldly:

"Thank you for your promise, Miss Chapelle. I must rely on it."

She was stung by his formal tone to a great sense of injustice. If Aya or she were even in a minute degree as reckless as she knew they were unkindly reputed to be, who would save them? None.

She said recklessly: "You want to save Lady Mira Worcester from scandal."

"I suppose you think you have a right to an answer, Miss Chapelle. Well, perhaps I owe it to you. And I will answer like this: Why should a woman always expect to be saved from the consequences of her folly?"

She remembered all that gossip said about him as a woman hater as she looked into this hard set bronzed face.

"I may wish to save a silly dupe of a boy," he said.

"'Dupe?'"

"What they call love dupes boys. They get doped with it."

He was all steel, she thought. A merciless man. Also they were right when they said that he hated women.

"Where have I seen you before?" he asked suddenly.

She answered almost involuntarily: "In the riot at the harbor."

He turned away. He remembered her as she had stood up near the motley crowd of disputants and sightseers, yet not of it. Sitting on his white horse, something had called him, and over bleeding, broken, furious heads he had seen this straight spear of a girl, and looked into her eyes. He looked aside now, and moved the portrait of the woman a fraction of an inch on his desk.

A rap at the door. The governor looked at her quickly, peremptorily, and she slipped outside the curtains, irresolute for a moment. But before she stepped from the loggia she heard the governor's voice:

"Bookes. You. I want to say to you straight away that you shouldn't have let in those Chapelles."

And Malise Bookes' excuse: "Sorry, sir. Sorry. Of course the father, one knows, was all right—"

"He's dead. You know as likely as not there's going to be trouble at Flaxen's. However . . . anything wrong?"

"Police boat in from St. Rosario to say there were six more of the vendetta murders today."

"Keep the fellow. I'll go back with him."

"Tonight, sir! But—"

Faire heard Persian's reply: "I don't want any one with me. I'll be back in the morning. Don't let any one talk."

"All right, sir. And I'm sorry about the Chapelles . . ."

"Don't do it again. Is Grand about?"

"No, sir."

"Try to find him before I leave. We'll go back to the ballroom."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Having recently started to keep house, I find myself quite frequently borrowing from my kind neighbor. One day my 4 year old daughter asked me to play house with her. When I said "All right" she promptly replied, "Knock on the door and ask to borrow something." B. M. H.

My little sister, aged 4½, met with difficulties as she was dressing herself one morning. She came up to my mother tearfully, saying: "How can I button my dress when the button is in the back and I'm in the front?" K. A.

Columbia Films Busy in Profit Sharing Project

Directors, Players, and Writers Included.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 1.—[Special.]—The reorganized Columbia Pictures corporation, like the reorganized Fox corporation, is taking a step toward popularizing and liberalizing its financial relations with employés.

Walter Wanger, former vice president of Paramount and new executive vice president of Columbia, announces that the Columbia management is working out a schedule by which players, directors and movie writers will share in the profits of films in which they participate. The financial setup has not been worked out to the point where it can be detailed publicly.

Having made it a go as a matrimonial twosome these several months Dorothy Mackaill and Neil Miller could see no reason why they should not succeed as a stage team. They left for a vaudeville tour of the Rocky mountain region and midwest. Miss Mackaill used to be a Follies dancer before she became a screen star. Miller used to be an amateur crooner in his dad's Monrovia, Cal., café and candy counter and recently turned professional entertainer with considerable crooning success with local Los Angeles cafés and orchestras. Dorothy's contract with First National Pictures expired last month, the first time in more than six years she has not been drawing a steady salary from that studio.

G. Rex Bailey has resigned as casting director for Radio Pictures and will become an agent for actors. His departure is one of a long series of changes in the personnel of department chiefs at this studio since the recent reorganization.

Paul Gerard Smith, former Ravenswood, Chicago boy, who became a New York playwright and Hollywood gag man, is author of the latest giggle vehicle of Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd, called "Strictly Unreliable" at Roach comedy studio.

Two well known portrayers of Abraham Lincoln are playing together in M. G. M.'s "Wet Parade." They are Frank McGlynn, who created the rôle of the emancipator in Drinkwater's play and Walter Huston, who starred in D. W. Griffith's recent talkie "Lincoln."

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy will leave for England shortly and make personal appearances. Their trip was planned originally as a vacation jaunt, Laurel having last seen his parents in England in 1927, but offers of pin money for English stage appearances proved so attractive they will probably spend their vacation like the bus man.

The casting director at Paramount says statistics on extra girls show blue eyes and brown hair predominate, that most of them come from parentage from the middle west and the south and that they average 117 pounds and five feet five inches in height. A couple of years ago the average extra was skinnier, blonder and an inch or two smaller.

Mrs. Salisbury Field, daughter of Robert Louis Stevenson, wrote a note to Rouben Mamoulian, director of the screen version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hdye" in which she said: "My only regret on seeing my father's story on the screen is that Mr. Stevenson had not lived to see it." Mamoulian treasures the letter.

Sylvia Sydney has bobbed her hair for the first time. Sylvia occupies Clara Bow's old dressing room at Paramount. It used to betoken the queen of the lot. Maybe it still does.

Sheer Woolens, Rough Silk Crepes Used for Spectator Sports Wear

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Some of the Paris houses favor the silk crêpe dress of spectator sports character like the one shown here. Note the clever diagonal lines of the bodice closing in this youthful model. The skirt has gores that are slightly circular towards the hem. Sheer woolens and rough silk crêpe are smart materials for this sort of a dress.

The pattern, No. 2656, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material with 1⅛ yards of binding.

Woman Awarded Medal for Child Health Work

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Miss Signe Haglethorne, professor of physical education at New York university, today was awarded the silver medal of the Ling foundation of Los Angeles. The medal was presented by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown and was in recognition of her work in San Francisco and elsewhere. The Ling foundation of Los Angeles was established as a memorial to Pehr Henrik Ling, founder of formal and corrective gymnastics. Its purpose is to forward child health work.

Gardens Hold Special Appeal This Season

Many Seek Summer Crop for Families.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Inquiries being made by TRIBUNE readers point clearly to the fact that vegetable gardens will have a special attraction to hundreds of families this year who find one of the signs of the times to be a return to closer relationship with Mother Earth.

In fact, it is reasonably certain that not since the nationwide wave of "war gardens" swept people into their back yards will so much interest be shown.

There are unquestionably several appeals that vegetable gardening is making. The economy of home production of the family's greens and root crops is unquestioned. Added to this is the superior quality of freshly grown crops, provided they are given good care with plenty of fertility in the soil. In addition many see the advantages of an economical yet exhilarating form of mild exercise.

Many inquiries suggest that vacant lots will be turned from unsightly weed patches into prolific garden plots to an increased extent. Some even see possible occupation and educational advantages for the children by giving them a productive patch of ground.

Many city and suburban residents have the idea that a garden entails a great deal of work. The vision of weeds, insects, weather and stray animals tends to discouragement.

This, any practical amateur gardener will assure you, is but a mirage. Vegetable gardening is in reality quite simple once a few fundamentals are taken into account. With thousands in this area having extra days of leisure from work or being unemployed entirely, the garden is going to be a much sought and valued spot this spring.

VENZKE WRECKS DEPRESSION IN HERO BUSINESS

Mayors Can Dust Off High Hats Again.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Four bands flung sweet wind all over town, the fire engines whooped and the mayor or someone like that clamped a wreath of hot house vegetation on the modest brow of a toothy, leggedy youth named Gene Venzke the other day in a demonstration which reminds me that it has been a long time since we had one of these public hero worshipings which used to provide such wonderful nonsense and harmless jubilation in the days of Trudy and Lindy and Bobby Jones.

Venzke returned to Pottstown, Pa., where, at the age of 23, he is again a high school student, finishing up an interrupted course of study and the people, who probably were rearing to go without knowing it, let him have the entire rigmarole, from the grand, triumphant parade up to the town hall to the formal investiture at the Kiawanis club, which made him an honorary member.

There's a Hero Depression.

Venzke had made a new world record of 4 minutes 10 seconds for the mile run in New York. He had also won the mile championship of the A. A. U., almost by default, in another race from which all the other well known milers, in a sincere, if left handed, tribute to his greatness, had decided to withdraw, and he had established a new record for the 1500 meters, indoors.

Probably none of these achievements meant very much to many of the 10,000 individuals who marched in the big parade or hollered from the curbs because in these days when even some of the people who account themselves destitute own automobiles, the public does not keep very well versed in the intimate affairs of the sport of foot-running. Feet nowadays are used almost exclusively to work pedals.

I dare guess that there were some parties standing along the line of march who couldn't have answered you right quick whether four-ten for the mile was remarkably fast or remarkably slow, but it was good to hear that they were out there cheering the young fellow home, anyway, because, all of a sudden and without anybody's seeming to realize it, this country ran fresh out of heroes quite a long time ago.

They Did Best by Trudy.

Never me to get up to my eyes in my own arguments trying to prove that this development had anything to do with the depression, but the tumult and the shouting died off about the same time that stocks went to smash and the hay began to break through the seams of some of the prominent stuffed shirts of finance, which was coincidence, at least.

For a long time there, the heroes were treading on each other's heels coming into New York and it took a couple of good traffic managers, in day and night shifts, to see that nobody threw the queen of Rumania off the end of a dock to demonstrate how she swam the channel. There were many persons who would have been pleased to throw the gracious queen off the end of a dock.

Of all the demonstrations of this kind in the goofy, regardless days when a hero's stature was measured by the statistics of the street cleaning department on the amounts of ticker tape, old newspapers and torn phone books swept up afterward, I think Trudy Ederle's was the greatest and, however trivial her achievement may prove to have been as regards the advancement of civilization, one of the most deserved.

Trudy Softened Up the Channel.

The girl was a genuine hero who had trained on grass soup and boiled horse in a dank and candle-lit hotel, worried all the time by the conniving of false friends. And she finally licked the channel in a storm so bad that most of the people on the two tugs were rolling in their bunks and the passageways wishing they could die. Moreover, although she did reckon to make a little money if she succeeded—and, incidentally, she made very little—her only thought was to swim the channel for the good old stars and stripes.

At that, Trudy just barely had her party for the broom-and-shovel squads were still clearing away the ticker tape and so forth down in lower Broadway and the echoes of the whistles were still bouncing between the buildings when the word came over that another woman, the one who billed herself as the first mother to swim the channel, had ghosted across the sleeve on a sea as slick as oil. Trudy apparently softened up the channel by beating it at its worst for many others made the swim thereafter, including some few who swam by boat and plopped into the water in the dawn just far enough out to get wet and make shore.

Now, Lindy's Was Different.

Bobby Jones' reception was another artistic success and the boy's own public character which was an ideal for other heroes to imitate, enhanced the glory of the occasion which actually brought the public leaders at Atlanta and those of New York together in a common bond of admiration, sportsmanship and thirst undoing much of the earnest work of the Ku Klux Klan.

Lindbergh's reception of course set

TWO CHAMPIONS LOSE AS HEAVIER BOXERS BATTLE

Kranz Knocked Out; Long Beaten.

Tourney Facts

FOLLOWING are the facts concerning the Tournament of Champions:

Event—Tournament of Champions.

Time—Tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Place—Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street.

Contestants—Sixty-four survivors of the first two rounds of fighting in eight classes; all boxers must report between 3 and 5 p. m. for physical examinations.

Pairings—By lot at 6 o'clock.

Tickets—Fifty cents, $1, and $1.50. All seats reserved. Tickets on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, South Dearborn street, and at branch offices at 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street and the Tribune Tower lobby. On sale this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Madison street box office at Stadium.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The big boys of the Tournament of Champions held forth last night at the Chicago Stadium. And for four hours, 7,500 fans saw them punch and slug each other in an effort to stay in the race for diamond studded Golden Gloves and the right to face the champions of New York in Madison Square Garden.

The welterweights, middleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights fought it out last night. And now 32 winners in these four divisions join the 32 victors of Monday night—flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweights—in the quarter-finals tonight.

Survival of Fittest.

Tonight's program of 32 bouts, starting at 7:30, will present the most skilled of the 3,000 lads who more than two months ago began the struggle for the championship in five states. Each boy will box once, and at the end of the night's program, 32 lads still will be in the race for the championships. These boys, four in each of the eight classes, will come back to the Stadium on March 9 for the semi-finals and finals of the tournament.

The tournament tonight enters the final stages. One ring will be in use. And Chicago, always appreciative of the Golden Gloves saga, will be at the ringside to watch the future champions in action.

Good Seats Available.

There are many excellent seats still available for tonight's show. Tickets will be on sale this afternoon at the Stadium's Madison street box office after 1 o'clock. Before that they may be purchased at the Public Service offices of THE TRIBUNE.

At least 10,000 are expected to see the quarter finals tonight. But the Stadium, the world's largest indoor boxing arena, will accommodate many more than that. The tickets tonight range in price from fifty cents to $1.50, in contrast to the final night a week later when the prices are $1, $2 and $3.

Punch Returns Dividends.

On Monday evening the lighter divisions spelled the familiar story of Golden Gloves with jabs and fancy stepping. Speed was the theme of that night's entertainment. Last night the Golden Gloves story was written with brute force. The old sock, the right hand smack to the jaw, returned dividends as it always does.

Some of the big lads from country and city had speed—make no mistake about that. Others were shifty. But, in the end, those who hit the hardest and could keep the pace remained in the battle for Golden Gloves.

Two Champions Lose.

The path of the champion is exceedingly difficult. Two champions fell last night. Jack Kranz and Johnny Long, members of the 1931

Get Your Golden Gloves Finals Tickets Now!

Tickets for the Chicago finals of the Golden Gloves tournament are now on sale at THE TRIBUNE Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, its two branches at 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, and The Tribune Tower lobby.

The finals will be held at the Chicago Stadium on March 9, when the team of sixteen boxers, the best in Chicagoland, will be chosen to represent Chicago against New York's stars in the intercity bouts at Madison Square Garden March 28. Tickets for these bouts will be $3, $2 and $1. Get your tickets now!

Mail orders for the finals are now being accepted. Application may be made by mail to Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves Tournament, Chicago Tribune. Make checks payable to The Chicago Tribune.

Seats for tonight's bouts in the Tournament of Champions at the Stadium are still available at all of the Public Service offices and the Chicago Stadium.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WHERE THE EAST GAINS.

H. O. (FRITZ) CRISLER, former athletic director at Minnesota, has accepted appointment as head football coach at Princeton. George Little, former athletic director at Wisconsin, has accepted appointment as athletic director at Rutgers. Thus two conservative eastern colleges secure from the middle west two of its most capable men in their line of endeavor. Salary was not the primary impelling motive in either case.

Little was victim of the cross currents which have existed at the Badger institution for several years. The Wake doesn't know what, if anything, is wrong at Madison. It seems to us as much lack of confidence as anything else. That several men are on the athletic coaching staff who have been mentioned for the position of athletic director might presuppose disturbance of harmony. We never have noted lack of loyalty on their part individually, but possibly their friends have disturbed conditions.

In the friction following the resignations of Football Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite and Athletic Director Little, there was shown wide differences of opinion between legislative and university divisions, and again differences in the university division itself. Those conditions do not promote athletic success, although the Badger athletic material averages about as well as any in the conference. We wonder if Wisconsin psychology, or lack of confidence, does not compare with the public psychology in part responsible for the present business depression.

Crisler's case was different. It was an open secret Fritz would relinquish the coaching reins as soon as a successor could be found. Coach Spears and Director Luehring before him had quit after differences, either with university officials or alumni. Entering such a troubled precinct. Crisler, by his tact and ability, won to his side students, alumni, and made a deep impression on officials, except those inclined to be jealous of the athletic department.

It was known Crisler thought he had enough constructive intra-mural work to perform without football coaching. Bernie Bierman, former Gopher, was acceptable to him as head football coach. YET—when that appointment came, we are told Crisler was not consulted by President Coffmann before announcement was made. It is not surprising Crisler resigned at the first favorable opportunity despite pleas of undergraduates and alumni that he be urged to change his decision.

Universities which play politics in the conduct of their athletic departments do not usually have successful teams. Meantime, The Wake congratulates Princeton and Rutgers on the caliber of men they have obtained from this section.

MONTREAL, Que., March 1.—(AP)—A lone goal in the second period of an uninteresting National league hockey game tonight gave the Montreal Maroons a 1 to 0 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

The Hawks' shooting was off and their attack lacked snap. Chuck Gardiner's stellar goal tending kept the Maroons at bay except for the deciding goal. Despite Gardiner's excellent performance, the Maroons had a decided edge throughout and were more than satisfied with the victory. It was the first time they have succeeded in beating the Hawks this season.

The Blackhawks were thrown on the defensive at the opening faceoff and Gardiner was pressed to make saves on close shots by Haynes and Northcott. Both defense lines displayed a marked lethargy during the first period and most of the action took place inside the blue lines.

Northcott Misses Chance.

Following several forays by the Haynes-Northcott combination, Johnny Gottselig brought a balance between the offensives with clever stick handling and artful eluding of the Maroons' defense.

After a little rest Northcott came back full of enthusiasm. He found Gardiner flat on the ice when he finally got a shot at the open goal, but his shot was wild and the period ended in a scoreless tie.

There was much skating back and forth without noticeable effect in the early part of the second period. Although Gardiner was forced to field several wicked liners by Babe Siebert and Brydson, he came up with all chances and subsequently started several Hawk attacks with long punts to his wings.

Chuck Breaks Skate.

Something in the guise of good hockey was long overdue when time was suddenly called to repair Gardiner's broken skate. Newly shod, Gardiner came way out to smother several wicked shots, and just when he was at his best Bill Phillips flipped the puck to Dave Trottier and Trottier rammed it into the cage over Chuck's reclining body. The time was 8:38.

The Hawks opened play with a vengeance after this, but the score was still 1 to 0 in the Maroons' favor when Walsh battered down Tommy Cook's shot at the bell.

The Maroons decided on a furious offensive as their best defense in the last period and peppered Gardiner with hard shots four times in quick succession. Conacher, Trottier and Ward each had a good hard shot from close in, but Gardiner was everywhere at once and turned them all aside. Brydson made a fast and tricky rush and his shot hit the post.

Ben Siebert lifted a hard shot to the corner, but Gardiner made the save with a wild jump. With only a few minutes to go the Hawks put five forwards on the ice, but the Maroons stood up under the attack with a counter barrage of heavy back checking.

SHAMROCKS HAND ST. LOUIS FLIERS 3 TO 1 WHIPPING

St. Louis, Mo., March 1.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks defeated the St. Louis Flyers, 3 to 1, in an American Hockey league game here tonight.

With the score tied, 1 to 1, at the beginning of the third period, Buswell, unassisted, put Chicago ahead, 2 to 1, by making a goal six minutes and thirty seconds after the opening of the period. Brydson on a pass from Riley shot another goal eight minutes later to make the victory more decisive.

McFadyen, assisted by O'Neill, made Chicago's first score, while Scott, with a pass from Kirk, made the Flyers' only goal.

BAT BATTALINO REINSTATED FOR PETROLLE FIGHT

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—The New York state athletic commission removed the last obstacle in the way of the Bat Battalino-Billy Petrolle bout, which will be held at Madison Square Garden on March 11, by reinstating Battalino at its semi-weekly meeting today.

Battalino was placed under suspension and shorn of his featherweight championship two months ago for appearing overweight the afternoon of a scheduled title bout with Lew Feldman, challenger for the 126 pound crown. Battalino since admits that he has grown out of the division and will fight among the lightweights in the future.

Retzlaff's Right Sends Daniels Down in First

St. Paul, Minn., March 1.—(AP)—Charley Retzlaff of Duluth chalked up his 36th knockout tonight by putting Dick Daniels, Minneapolis, away with a blasting righthand punch to the jaw in the first round of their ten pound bout.

'C'mon, Tex!', Says Voice from Crowd, So Tex Whips Elmer

BY FRENCH LANE.

The most thrilling battle of the second night of the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions came when Tex Dial of Danville and Elmer Casti of Lafayette clashed last night. They are light heavyweights. They squared away out in the center of the ring and tossed punches at each other from the first tap of the bell until the final ring of the gong.

A woman in the mezzanine section with a shrill voice had the big crowd in an uproar as she shouted "Come on, Tex."

When Tex got the decision he threw a kiss off his glove up in the direction of the cheers. Then he dashed over across the ring and kissed Casti, his beaten rival, on the cheek. A mighty man is Tex. He demonstrated that he can hit and that he can take it.

The fans from old Purdue went wild when Sock Kurtz, the Purdue full back, who was fighting for the Lafayette team, knocked out Glen Dexter of Davenport in the second round.

There will be little happiness when the folks in Gary congregate at the breakfast table this morning. For Jack Kranz, the Gary heavyweight, was knocked out in the first round by Walter Karpinski of Grand Rapids. A few minutes later Johnny Long, the Gary light heavyweight, was beaten in three rounds by Max Marek of St. Rita C. Y. O. Kranz and Long won Golden Gloves championships last year. It seems to be a bad year for former champions.

Adam Smith, the big round boy from the Rockford bakery, had all he could do to get the decision over George Shields, a left handed Negro heavyweight from Danville. But Adam was whaling the daylights out of Shields toward the end. Adam has never been very good against a left hander.

Maybe the Chicago kids are saving their punches for the finals. If they don't rally pretty soon Chicagoland will have more men on the Chicago team which faces New York on March 28 than Chicago will. All night long it seemed that kids from Grand Rapids, Davenport, Rockford, Peoria, Milwaukee, Fort Wayne, Danville and Springfield and other points in Chicagoland were winning.

Johnny Phagan came through in great shape for Chicago. He whipped two rivals in the welterweight division and was the first Negro boy to score a victory in the Tournament of Champions.

If somebody in the crowd had yelled "Hey, Rube!" maybe Fred Young, the Kokomo heavyweight, might have whipped Tony Susnas of Chicago. Young, a short, chunky Negro who fights somewhat on the order of Mickey Walker, lost the decision. Young is a roustabout with the Ringling Brothers circus and is wintering down at Peru, Ind., which accounts for his presence on the Kokomo team. But nobody would yell "Hey, Rube," and the Negro boy didn't know when to start fighting.

W. J. Parrett, editor of the Danville Commercial News, was at the ringside last night. He entertained a party, including Stacy Van Valkenburg, Lee Meis and Herman Lanter.

Everybody from Iowa was happy when Claus Miller of the Davenport Times teams whipped George Nielsen of St. Rita C. Y. O. in a bout in the middleweight division. It was the second victory Claus had scored during the night and Nielsen had a great following until the Davenport boy began hammering him all around the ring. It will take a hard hitting tough boy to beat Claus out of a Golden Glove.

Representatives of the newspapers in Chicagoland who coöperated with THE TRIBUNE in the Tournament of Champions were entertained at a banquet at the Congress hotel after last night's battles.

Those Purdue cheers for Socks Kurtz which rang out early in the evening were just an echo late last night when Duffy Dvonch whipped the Purdue full back in the last heavyweight bout of the night. Socks was willing enough to make it a knock down and drag out affair, but Dvonch had too much skill for him.

MORRIS, RED SOX STAR, STABBED AT GOOD-BY PARTY

Brewton, Ala., March 1.—[Special.]—Big Ed Morris, veteran Boston Red Sox pitcher, was stabbed last night after a fist fight at a fish fry given in his honor. Morris was taken to a Century, Fla., hospital, where doctors today said he had only a slight chance to recover.

According to friends who attended the dinner, Morris argued with a Joe White. Morris pushed White around a table, and in knocking him down, also fell. While both were on the floor, White, the friends said, pulled out a knife and stabbed Morris twice in the chest.

Assailant Is Held.

The knife blade missed Morris' heart by several inches. Morris was to have left here today for Savannah, Ga., where the Red Sox are training. White was seized by police and is being held without charges.

Morris, who was born at Foshee, Ala., began his professional baseball career with the Bradenton club of the Florida State league in 1920. Later he went to the Chattanooga club of the Southern association, where he stayed until 1922.

Spends Season with Cubs.

His pitching in 1921 attracted the attention of several major league clubs and in 1922 went to the Chicago National league club. He pitched the entire season for the Cubs, but he returned to Chattanooga in 1923.

He also was a member of two other Southern association teams, Nashville and Mobile. He was purchased by the Boston Red Sox in 1927 from the Mobile club.

Illinois College Wins from Teachers, 33-31

Macomb, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—A strong last half finish tonight gave Illinois College a 33 to 31 victory over Western Illinois Teachers in a Little 19 conference basketball game. The Leathernecks led 20 to 17 at the half, but sagged enough to let Illinois win. It was Western's final game of the season.

Monmouth Defeats Augustana, 29 to 24

Monmouth, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Monmouth college defeated Augustana's basketball team, 29 to 24, tonight. The game was featured by the work of Ozburn, Monmouth center, and Robinson and Corgnati, Monmouth guards, who were playing their final game before home fans.

intercity squad which defeated New York, could not stay in the tournament.

Kranz, winner of the light heavyweight division a year ago, victor over his New York opponent and the lad who whipped the 175 pound champion of France at Soldiers' field, succumbed to the knockout punch of Walter Karpinski of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Kranz was campaigning this year in the heavyweight division. Karpinski caught the Gary, Ind., lad with a right hand punch in the first round and the referee counted to ten, shattering Kranz's hopes of being the second boxer in the history of Golden Gloves to win two championships.

Marek Beats Long.

Johnny Long, also from the Gary sectional tournament, sponsored by the Post-Tribune, who won the heavyweight title in 1931, was whipped in three rounds last night by Max Marek, of St. Rita, Catholic Youth rganization. A year ago Long, who naturally is a 175 pounder, fought as a heavyweight and won the tournament. Long competed last night as a light heavyweight.

The defeat of Kranz and Long leaves Leo Rodak the only 1931 Golden Gloves champion in the race for a second title. Rodak, who won the flyweight title last year, is one of the eight 118 pounders who will be in action tonight.

Phagan Wins 2 Bouts.

Johnny Phagan, colored star, who last year won his intercity bout, proved that a winner can keep on going. Phagan disposed of Paul Cox of Gary, Ind., in his first match in three rounds. Then he came back two hours later to whip Fred Tyrus of Danville, Ill., in another three rounder. Johnny is intent on winning the welterweight title, and he appears to have an excellent chance.

Phagan's chances were enhanced when another Chicago boy, Phil McQuillan of the Denemark Athletic club, failed to make the grade against Billy Celebron of Rockford, Ill. Incidentally, Rockford has proved it has one of the best teams of the 20 cities which sent teams to the Tournament of Champions.

Jones Proves Ability.

Floyd Jones of Peoria, Ill., was one of the surprise boxers in the light heavyweight division. Peorians had been boosting Jones, but last night the crowd saw for itself just how good he is. Jones is a give and take, toe to toe battler who won't back up for any one.

In his first bout Jones whipped Emil Pappas of Rockford, Ill., and the crowd swung to him as a magnet draws iron. When he came back to the wars, the crowd recognized him and cheered. They were more vociferous when at the end of three rounds he had beaten William Connell of Streator, Ill. You'll hear more of Jones tonight.

Don't forget Dave Hendrickson of Kid Howard's gym in the heavyweight division. Or Duffy Dvonch of the Opal A. A. These boys, unless they meet by the luck of the draw sooner, may be scrapping for the championship a week from tonight.

Dvonch Whips Warner.

Hendrickson whipped Terrence Bannon of St. Andrews C. Y. O., while Dvonch beat Louis Warner of Milwaukee. There are other heavies who will not agree with this reasoning. Karpinski is one. Adam Smith of Rockford is another. Adam, you will remember, won his intercity fight last year when he was runner-up to Johnny Long in the heavyweight division.

Dvonch later whipped Sock Kurtz, the Purdue university third string full back from Lafayette, Ind.

Merrill Tonn of Dunning's boxing school, an alternate in the heavyweight division last year, still is in the tournament. He stopped Paul Freeman of Fort Wayne last night in two rounds.

KAMPFER MEETS CLINKSTOCK AT FRONTON MONDAY

Hans Kampfer, youthful German, will meet Jim Clinkstock, Cherokee Indian, in the semi-windup of a program of five heavyweight wrestling matches to be staged by Promoter Joe Coffey next Monday night at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Lazzeri Signs with Yanks; Leaving Ruth Only Holdout

St. Petersburgh, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—Tony Lazzeri telegraphed the news today that he had signed his contract with the New York Yankees and thus the Yanks' holdout list was reduced to one, Babe Ruth. With 20 players on hand, the largest squad of the year, the Yanks had a busy day of practice with Lyn Lary's fast fielding around short and a lot of long distance slugging, with Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Ben Chapman in the lead, as the big features.

Lefty Grove Signs with A's; Walberg Now Only Holdout

Fort Myers, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—Lefty Grove, half of Connie Mack's great pitching combination of Grove and Earnshaw, will be back in an Athletic uniform this coming season. Grove signed a contract this morning, it was announced by Mack.

"Everything's fixed. I'm satisfied and I'll be out practicing with the boys tomorrow morning," said Grove. Mack refused to reveal salary or length of the contract. Signing of Grove leaves Rube Walberg, another veteran pitcher, the only Philadelphia holdout.

UNIVERSITY AND ROLLING GREEN GOLF CLUBS JOIN

The amalgamation of the University Golf club with the Rolling Green Country club was announced yesterday. The name of the latter club will be retained for the new organization, while the University club property will be operated by bondholders as the Northbrook Golf club, a daily fee course. The new action will reduce membership fees from $200 to $150, and will increase Rolling Green's membership from 175 to 300.

Decision on the merger was reached following a vote of members of both clubs and conferences between President William J. Mauer, Carleton Smith and Carleton Tower of Rolling Green and President Claude S. Gordon of University. Former University golfers will have their memberships transferred and their admission to the new club will be voted upon by members of Rolling Green.

WALLGREN AND APPLEBY TIED FOR LEAD IN CUE RACE

French Lick, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Edgar T. Appleby of New York and Monard C. Wallgren of Everett, Wash., were victors in the National Amateur 18.2 balkline championship tournament today. It was the second straight triumph for each player. They now are tied for first place with two games won and none lost.

Wallgren, holder of the Pacific coast crown, defeated Ray V. Fessenden, of Madison, Wis., the western champion, by 300 to 199 in 38 innings in the first afternoon game. Wallgren's high run was 53, Fessenden's, 30.

Appleby, the defending champion, was extended to turn back the aggressive Homer T. Galey of Tulsa, Okla., the southwestern district representative, winning by 300 to 284 in 59 innings.

VIRGINIA VAN WIE SHOOTS 75 TO WIN FLORIDA MEDAL

St. Augustine, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—Virginia Van Wie of Chicago today won the medal in the qualifying round of Florida east coast women's golf championship tournament by scoring a 75. Miss Helen Hicks, national champion, finished second, turning in an 80.

Crisler Visits Scene of New Coaching Job

Princeton, N. J., March 1.—[Special.]—Herbert O. Crisler, Princeton's new football coach, paid his first visit today to the university where he is to take over the coaching reins as soon as he is able to arrange for his departure from Minnesota, where he had been athletic director. He spent the day in conference with Princeton athletic authorities in meeting the football men, and in a luncheon at which sports writers fired a barrage of questions at him.

From the visit came the news that Princeton will have spring practice this year, starting on April 4 and extending for six weeks; that the new coach plans a simplified attack in which the single wingback appears more often than any other form and the double wingback not at all, and that he is not yet ready to discuss the assistants he hopes to have with him by the time spring practice starts.

Makes Good Impression.

Beyond the news there was the strong impression gained by visitors that Princeton has acquired in its new coach a frank, quiet spoken, forceful young man of attractive personality and of sound ideas who gives every indication of being a distinct addition to the sports circles of eastern collegiate life.

There was no outspoken speech on the things which he intends to do; instead, he waited for questions.

"My system, as near as I have one, is blocking and tackling," he replied to a question. "By that I mean that no system, in my opinion, is any good if blocking and tackling are not good. The Warner, the Rockne—any of them—will fall on attack if the blocking is poor and the defense certainly won't stand up in the face of poor tackling.

Material Guides Plans.

"On offense I have used both a balanced and unbalanced line, I have used a short kick formation and the single wing back. Behind the unbalanced line, the single wing back. On the defense I have used a six and a seven man line, depending on material, and on the opposition, and the trend of play. As regards the kicking and the passing game, these must be governed, I believe, by the trend of the game. If your running attack is functioning, there is no need of risking a pass, but on the other hand a pass attack is needed, of course, to keep the running attack from being with no other threat."

Seems Cubs Can't Get Along Without a Hack in Lineup

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 1.—The Cub regulars, banded together for the first time this spring, evinced no embarrassment today when confronted with the recruits in a seven inning camp contest. Despite a lack of familiarity with bats, they wielded them unerringly and whipped the less talented second stringers, 8 to 1. However, there was something of greater importance than the outcome. It was the general performance of Stanley Hack, the $50,000 third baseman.

Young Hack's pickups of grounders and his throws to first were as perfect as if machine made. He also was strikingly versatile as a batter. In his first time up he did nothing, but in his next appearance, in the third inning, he slashed a triple to left with two on, deciding the game. The hit was made against Lon Warneke, who was curving 'em seriously. Later Hack allowed himself to be hit by Le Roy Herrmann's wide pitch and still later coaxed the rookie hurler for a base on balls.

Stevie Tests Ankle.

Much significance was placed in the manner in which the regulars were assembled. They arrayed themselves in the very order Manager Rogers Hornsby hopes will prove good enough to withstand the rigors of the championship campaign. Playing left field and occupying the cleanup position was Riggs Stephenson, who is a question mark because of his physical condition. Stevie exploded a double, but inadvertently struck out twice against curve ball pitching, which he hadn't seen since last July. Defensively he put on two high grade running catches and in neither pursuit did he display any tendency to favor the ankle fractured eight months ago.

The blow by which Hack deflated the ambitions of the Goofs was preceded by singles off the bats of Capt. Grimm, who retired later when Herrmann nicked him on the knee with a pitched ball, and Hartnett. Both scored on Hack's triple. Hack then scored on the first of two singles by English. Hits by Stevie, Grimm, English, and Cuyler added two more runs in the fourth and fifth innings. And to make it conclusive, Zack Taylor and Cuyler mixed singles with a base on balls and a hit batsman in the sixth inning to add three more runs.

Hemsley Hits Triple.

The best pitching was done by Ed Baecht and Johnny Welch. Baecht worked four innings and permitted the Goofs only three hits. One of these was a triple to right by the speedy Hemsley in the fourth. Welch allowed the same number of hits in three innings. Two of these were Herrmann's single and Blair's triple in the seventh, which enabled the Goofs to elude a shutout.

WHITE SOX MINUS POUNDS EQUAL A LOT OF BASEBALL

They'll Begin Playing It at San Antonio Tomorrow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mineral Wells, Tex., March 1.—The Chicago White Sox are going away from here tomorrow, but Manager Lew Fonseca has given instructions that all training paraphernalia is to remain out of the trunks until the very last minute, seeing as the weather here has continued perfect for conditioning purposes, a situation that may not prevail long in San Antonio, training camp No. 2.

While March came in a bit cooler than it was Sunday, when the all time temperature record for February in this section was broken with a mark of 88 degrees, it still was plenty hot and the end of the Mineral Wells phase of the Comiskey training program saw few fat athletes.

Begin Training Saturday.

All hands are prepared to cut into baseball matters Thursday morning at San Antonio as though they had been working for a month. And that's just what they are going to do, with the exception of a few pitchers whose arms are to be pampered a bit.

So far there has been no infield practice, a matter that has handicapped the experts, who are eager to produce literature about Carey Selph, new third baseman, and Jack Hayes, new second baseman.

A lot of folks down in Texas say that scouts have told them Selph was one of the three best players in the minors last year. This may be putting it on a bit thick, but standing in his uniform Carey certainly is the story book type of ball player. He's stocky and tough looking. His jaws are square and he has more fight in his physog than the majority you see topping major league ball uniforms these times.

Hayes Opposite of Selph.

Jack Hayes physically is in marked contrast to Selph. Though an inch taller than Selph, he weighs 20 pounds less. His 155 pounds ties him with Benny Tate for the lightweight honors of the Sox squad. Hayes is the wiry, sprightly type and reputed to be one of the best double play men in the majors. He batted only .222 with Washington last year, but was at bat only 108 times, scarcely a fair test of his talents. He's said to be a natural .280 hitter, however you arrive at that. He appears to be of the temperament that requires constant employment for best results.

Sam Jones, famed for many years as a spring marvel, despite his 39 years [he'll be 40 come July], appears to be training ahead of the other pitchers. At that Sam hasn't been bearing down any harder than Red Faber, a gingery lad of 43 [he'll be 44 next September].

All in Good Shape.

None of the Sox is in poor condition. True, Bob Fothergill weighs 235, but he weighed that in his prime. Jolley at 220 needs and is getting plenty of work.

The youngsters on the squad have little to worry about. Bruce Campbell, looked up to as one of the most brilliant hitting possibilities in the American league, is down to 190, his playing weight, and Hal Anderson is the type that has few physical worries in physical matters. Joe Bartulis, the big Chicago lad from the University of Illinois nine, looks mighty fit at a mere 195.

The squad will leave here at 5:55 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and will arrive at San Antonio at 8:20 o'clock Thursday morning. They will have their first drill at Brackenridge Eagle field at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

So Long to the days of
"WHY...UH-H"
for the 5c cigar smoker
New Bachelor has come to town . . . .

IN SMOKE circles "WHY...UH-H" has been cigar store language meaning that another bewildered five cent smoker was without—without any idea what to try next. But the wandering, wondering smoker had a taste-vision. He knew he would recognize the real thing when he met it face to face. Now comes New Bachelor! And the face-to-face test is on.

New Bachelor wins the five cent cigar smoker's everlasting gratitude. It gives him new respect for a nickel. If a five cent piece buys such quality in a cigar it must be an important piece of money! New Bachelor has come by its good name by the very sound procedure of skillfully blending choice tobaccos.

Crane Tech vs. Lane Tech at 132d Infantry armory.

HEAVYWEIGHT.

Crane Tech vs. Lane Tech at 132d Infantry armory.

The Marshall High school, west section champion of Chicago Public High School league, advanced to the semi-finals yesterday by defeating Lake View, co-titleholder in the north division, 19 to 18, at Marshall gymnasium. A free throw by Berlin in the final minute gave victory to the West Siders.

Two other heavyweight squads, Bowen and Calumet, swept into the semi-finals. Bowen triumphed ver Hyde Park, 19 to 18, at White City, while Calumet eliminated Wendell Phillips, 29 to 22.

Sulski's Basket Wins.

A basket by Sulski, right guard, gave Bowen victory over Hyde Park. Trailing at the end of the first half, 9 to 8, Hyde Park rallied to lead 18 to 17 in the last period. Then with two minutes remaining, Sulski sank a long shot to win for Bowen.

Tilden, central section, and Wendell Phillips won in the lightweight contests. Phillips defeated Calumet lightweights, 30 to 10, while Tilden eked out a 20 to 19 victory over Parker, south division champion.

Two Quarter Finals Remain.

Two more quarter-final games will be played today. Lane, north section, will meet Crane Tech, defending heavyweight champion, while lightweight teams of both schools, which also qualified for the title series, will clash in a preliminary game at the 132d Infantry armory at Rockwell and Madison streets.

Leo went into a tie for first place with St. Philip in the south section by defeating St. Philip, 22 to 21, on the former's court. It was St. Philip's second defeat of the season.

St. Patrick's heavyweights scored their tenth victory last night by defeating De Paul, 32 to 28, at St. Patrick's gymnasium.

Venzke Ends Depression in Hero Business

the all time record in the statistics, but there was a determined spontaneity about that one which may have been the thing that brought people out of the happy daze. He had already been received in Washington and when he came to New York they had to take him down the bay very deliberately and fetch him in again. It was as though you were to turn a couple of handsprings on meeting someone whom you had met only the day before. But though the news was off the boy, this let him have it in such volume that he, himself, not the people, got sick of it first.

Good Ol' Henry L.

Nowadays, old Dempsey prowls the country, barnstorming through towns which he wouldn't have allowed himself to be caught in between trains when he was up. By no means the celebrity that he used to be, the people are making him do for one until a fresh one comes along. Ruth remains a drawing card and a pleasant character but the Babe has been a practising hero for 13 years and, though wishing him well, one can also wish for new parties to yell for and follow through the streets. Pepper Martin has possibilities.

They found one in Pottstown. He is only a foot-runner, to be sure, and foot-running is not a spectacular sport, but that news about the fire engines, the sprigs of fern for Venzke's brow and the induction into the Kiwanis club all have a happy and familiar sound. I hadn't heard of the Kiwanis club since old man Mencken poked the last windmill and retired.

EVEN DEPRESSION IS A FAILURE; IT RANKS FIFTH

Garment Makers Told They Shouldn't Complain.

FRANKLIN HOBBS.

Members of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers attending a twenty-fifth annual convention in the Stevens hotel yesterday were told that they had little to complain about.

"Now about this depression, world-wide depression, unmatched in history, and so on," said the speaker, Franklyn Hobbs, economist of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. "After it's over you men will discover it ranks fifth in depressions in this country.

"Have any of you men and women ever been hungry? If you have, will you speak up now?" He waited while the manufacturers puffed on their cigars in silence. "Well, I have. In 1894 I was hungry in the streets of Chicago. So were hundreds of other white collar men who were self-respecting.

More Failures in 1893.

"There are 8,300,000 persons out of work now, and that is serious. But in 1893 there were more bank failures than there were in 1931, and the percentage of persons out of work was three times as high as in 1931. This depression can't approach the depressions of 1873 or 1857; it isn't within a thousandth per cent of that of 1837, when disease ran unchecked.

"We complain of the lack of buying power and say retailers are suffering because of it," he continued. "Never before in the history of the country have we had such buying power. People are hoarding $1,300,000,000 in cash in safety deposit boxes and other places. Banks are holding $1,000,000,000 in idle money for fear depositors may decide to draw it out. That is, banks are holding their legal reserves plus 100 per cent. In addition, the Reconstruction Finance corporation extends $2,000,000,000 more in credit. All this is buying power."

Quit Talking About Europe.

"American business men need to stop worrying about what happens in Europe and get down to work," he said.

Mr. Hobbs saw in the depression a future advantage to the manufacturers present, who manufacture working clothing largely.

"There may be less demand for servants' uniforms, but the housewives will be wearing more smocks, aprons and cotton house dresses as a result," he said. "I predict that during the next fifteen years working clothes again will be a badge of honor."

PLAN TO MAKE MEN'S SHIRTS ACT THEIR SIZE!

The man who fumes because a new size 14 shirts fits like a size 16 will fume no more if the manufacturers who met last night to consider the peculiarities of shirts have their way about it.

The shirt reformers, members of the National Association of Shirt Manufacturers, are meeting in conjunction with the International Association of Garment Manufacturers' convention. At a dinner in the Stevens hotel last night they proposed to standardize shirt making. The amount of material that goes into men's shirts will be specified according to each size. Shrinkage allowance will be established and the result will be a size 14 that is a size 14, according to plans.

These proposals will be a subject of general conference this morning when department store executives and wholesalers will meet with the manufacturers. L. R. Gilbert, of the division of trade standards of the United States department of commerce, will preside.

AGREE TO PERMIT TUNNEL COMPANY TO EXTEND BORES

Consideration of the proposed new franchise for the Chicago Tunnel company, operating the freight tunnels under downtown streets, was resumed yesterday by the council committees on local transportation and on gas, oil, and electricity.

The two committees postponed consideration of the controversial points of the franchise, including its duration, the new rate of compensation, and back compensation to be paid to the city. It was agreed that the company may extend its tunnels at a depth of 19 feet below city streets. The tunnels had to be 42 feet under ground under the old ordinance.

E. J. Hennessey, attorney for the company, told the aldermen that the company will not pay the city more than $700,000 in back compensation due under the franchise, which expired three years ago. The city claims approximately $1,860,000 in principal and interest from the company and its subsidiary, the Chicago Warehouse and Terminal company.

Actress Reports Loss of $2,600 Bracelet

Miss Bernice Elliott, an actress playing in "Mourning Becomes Electra," reported to the police last night that she lost a $2,600 bracelet in Michigan avenue. She said that she believed she dropped it in a Yellow cab while riding from the theater to 333 North Michigan avenue. Miss Elliott resides at the Ambassador West hotel.

CENTURY LINES RENEW LOW RATE AIR MAIL OFFER

Ready to Carry It at One-half Present Cost

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—The Cord corporation, operators of the Century Air lines of Chicago, today advised the house post-office committee it was prepared to stand pat on its previous offer to carry the nation's air mail for about half the present cost.

The offer was first made some weeks ago before the house appropriations committee and was reiterated today by Lyndall Young, attorney for the Cord interests, who appeared as a witness in the committee's investigation of the air mail situation. The other witnesses in the opening session of the investigation today were Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover and Frank B. Ormsby of the All Line Pilots' association.

Sift High Price Claims.

The committee is inquiring into allegations that the government pays an exorbitant price for its air mail service. Representatives James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the committee, last week introduced a bill designed to curb the power of the postmaster general in granting extensions of routes, which in effect permits the granting of contracts without competitive bidding.

Mr. Young denied charges made by Ormsby to the effect that the recent pilots' strike in the Century company was inspired by the company's efforts to reduce their pay so that it could make good on its air mail offer. Young contended that the Century lines could not afford to pay the wages paid by air mail contractors because it was not subsidized by the government and had never had an opportunity to make a bid. At the same time, he said, the salaries of Century pilots are no less than those of pilots on other lines in the country, some of which are subsidized through air mail contracts.

Denies Poor Equipment Used.

Charges made by Ormsby that the Century company used inferior equipment were also denied by Young, who pointed out that the Cord corporation manufactured Stinson planes and Lycoming motors, both of which are used exclusively by the Century lines.

They are also used, he said, by the Ludington line, operating between Washington and New York, which holds the world safety and efficiency record. Mr. Young charged that the recent pilots' strike was brought about by "promotion" rather than as a result of the wage cuts.

Mr. Glover defended Postmaster General Brown against allegations that he displayed favoritism in the awarding of contracts and extensions.

RETIRED NAVAL OFFICER, VETERAN OF 2 WARS, DEAD

Lieutenant Commander James Wallace MacLean, retired, formerly of Wilmette, died yesterday in the Veterans' hospital at Tupper Lake, N. Y., according to word received by his family here. He was 51 years old and had been ill several months.

Lieutenant Commander MacLean was a veteran of the Spanish-American and world wars. In 1898 he served on the battleship Indiana and throughout the world war he was in the transport service. After the war he was in the mercantile marine service.

He is survived by three brothers, John A., Walter Scott, and Alexander Wallace MacLean, and a sister, Mrs. M. C. Beymer, all of Wilmette. The body will be brought to Wilmette for funeral services and burial.

Rites for W. H. Bateman, Store Executive, Tomorrow

Funeral services for William H. Bateman, veteran executive of Marshall Field & Co., will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Bethany Union church at 103d and Wood streets. Mr. Bateman, who was 57 years old, died on Monday at his home, 1936 West 102d street. He joined the Field wholesale house in 1893. At the time of his death he was manager of the domestics and bedding departments. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

Countess Dies at 101; Was Playmate of an Empress

VIENNA, March 1. — (AP) — The Countess Helen Erdoedy died in her castle near Steinamange today at the age of 101. As a child she was the playmate of Archduchess Elizabeth, later the empress of Austria. Countess Helen became the empress' lady in waiting, and her memoirs three years ago embraced 80 years of the social history of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

GLENCOE AUTOIST DROWNED WHEN CAR TURNS OVER

Fred Brennecke, 55 years old, was drowned last evening when his automobile skidded in Dundee road, near Glencoe, into a ditch filled with water. Brennecke was pinned under his car. His body was found by George Beinlich, superintendent of the Glencoe water department, who was driving by. Brennecke was employed by the Skokie Valley Riding academy, west of Glencoe, and lived at the academy.

Policeman George Schert, 29 years old, 111 West Division street, was bruised when he was knocked down by a hit and run motorist at Oak and Wells streets. He fired several shots at the fleeing car when he regained his feet, but the driver did not stop.

The deaths of Brennecke and one other raised the Cook county motor toll for 1932 to 182. The victims:

Edwin J. Jernstrom, 42 years old, 3716 North Marshfield avenue. Fatally injured early today at Waveland and Ashland avenues by an automobile driven by M. D. Harteau, 4929 North Karlov avenue. He died shortly afterward at the American hospital, where Harteau took him.

After eight continuances a coroner's jury ordered John Palaga, 29 years old, 3205 Hirshberg boulevard, Franklin Park, held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter as the result of an auto accident Sept. 5. His car swerved over the curbstone of Maple and Grand avenues, Franklin Park, and killed Clara Bonk, 17 years old, 9217 Chestnut street, Franklin Park. Three of the original jury of six men were discharged at an earlier hearing when Deputy Coroner Louis Nadherny learned they were friends of Palaga.

TRANSIT OFFICIAL WITNESS AGAINST CITY ON SUBWAY

Lincoln C. Torrey, secretary of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, was called to the stand yesterday in the courtroom of Superior Judge Ross C. Hall as a witness for the firm of Dillon, Dupee, Hapeman and Shannon, against the city in the hearing of legal objections against the State street subway. Objecting property owners are endeavoring to show that the subway is not a local improvement or of public benefit and therefore should not be built from public funds.

Today the attorneys for the objectors stated, they will produce the original leases and contracts of various railways and will prove that all these companies will use the subway and be the major beneficiaries of its construction. It is the property owners' contention that since this is the case the railroad companies should bear the expense of the project.

Mrs. Theodosia G. Emory, Evanston Pioneer, Dies

Mrs. Theodosia G. Emory, 96 years old, a resident of Evanston for the last 42 years, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert S. Clark, 1110 Michigan avenue, Evanston. Mrs. Emory was born in Benton, Miss. Her mother, Mrs. William Breckinridge, who died when she was 92 years old, once danced with the son of Lafayette in 1825 in Lexington, Ky.

Religious Worker Found Dead in His Apartment

Joseph Winter, 65 years old, 1758 Humboldt boulevard, a religious worker, was found dead, supposedly of heart disease, in the kitchen of his flat yesterday. Hans Petersen, 5207 Champlain avenue, a salesman of religious literature, found the body. Winter was formerly a clerk at the Chicago Title and Trust company, but recently had preached in missions and held religious meetings at his home.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

CASH OR DRAFT ARGUMENT HALTS TRIAL OF BENHAM

Dismissal Demanded on Point of Law.

Belvidere, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—The trial of Albert W. (Fifty Per Cent) Benham, former factory worker who ventured into fields of high finance, was temporarily halted here today when counsel for the defense filed a motion for dismissal on the ground the testimony of the complaining witness is at variance with the indictment. Circuit Judge Albert E. Fisher of Rockford will hear argument on the motion tomorrow.

The motion was presented after the complainant, Mrs. Marie Johnson of Belvidere, had told the jury how Benham defrauded her of $350. Attorney Harry North, representing Benham, said the indictment charged his client with having defrauded Mrs. Johnson of money while she testified she gave him a bank draft.

Jury Is Excused.

The jury, which was selected yesterday, was excused as North argued the motion. The prosecution held his objection to be immaterial. Judge Fisher asked the attorneys to cite law in support of their claims.

Benham stirred the countryside for two years until a year ago by giving dividends of 10 to 50 per cent on money entrusted to him by neighbors. He explained his dividends by stating he was in the business of buying and selling bankrupt stocks. A year ago he announced he was broke and fled the city. Later he returned.

He was indicted on fourteen counts. The trial opened yesterday with the selection of a jury. Today Mrs. Johnson testified she gave Benham a draft for $350, for which he gave her a $400 note. A month later he gave her $100 in cash, she said, and a new note for $300. A few days later, she said, the crash came and she lost her money.

Started Factory "Racket."

The prosecution said Benham began his career by approaching his fellow workers in the factory with a story he had a tip from secret sources which enabled him to win enormous sums. A few joined with him and were given returns on their investments. Word of his wizardry spread so that he gave up his job.

He was besieged with requests to invest money. The end came when bankers sought an investigation, when it was discovered $300,000 had been withdrawn from savings accounts in a week. Benham is 41 years old and began his career working in the factory, for which he became shipping clerk as a boy at 50 cents a week.

FREE SUSPECT IN SHOOTING.

Anthony Benedia, 25 years old, 1434 Taylor street, who was held by police following a quarrel which resulted in the shooting of two persons at the home of Charles Sarn, 902 South Racine avenue on Sunday night, was released yesterday.

FATHER CONTRIBUTES TO HUNGRY PUPILS IN BEHALF OF NEW SON

Rejoicing in the arrival of a son in his household, a father yesterday sent a gift to the Hungry School Children's fund.

"I am enclosing a check for a small contribution which is being sent in behalf of my newly born son," the father wrote. "I imagine there are other people in Chicago who feel as I do that their children should start off from the very beginning sharing with other children who are not so fortunate. There are perhaps many other parents of newly born children who would make a contribution in their name to the fund."

The contributions yesterday totaled $71.10, a sharp decline from the preceding day's gifts of $132. These gifts are acknowledged as follows:

$15.65—The Bookhouse for Children.
$15.00—Felix Van Cleef.
$10.00—Anonymous.
$5.00—Mary J. Silverman, George H. Foster, W. D. Millard, Ann Sulzberger and "Proud Papa."
$4.00—E. H.
$1.00—Ruth Knox.
$0.45—"Old Girl."

Total	$ 71.10
Previous acknowledgement	37,585.65
Grand total	$37,656.75

Contributions should be sent the cashier of The Tribune, Tribune Tower.

REPORT CICERO BUTCHERS ADMIT BOMBING A RIVAL

Two officials and a member of the Grant Works Butchers and Grocers association, a local organization in Cicero, were reported last night to have confessed that they conspired to have the meat market of Bruno Shinkus, 4928 West 14th street, Cicero, bombed.

Shinkus, although a member of the association, aroused the enmity of the others by cutting prices. Considerable damage to his store was done by the black powder bomb which was set off early yesterday.

In an automobile near the store the police found Charles Bell, 30 years old, 1345 South 49th avenue, Cicero, business agent for the Grant Works association. He said Charles Keltes, 24 years old, 1836 48th court, Cicero, had made the bomb from bits of iron pipe and powder from shotgun shells in the Bell home. Keltes is being sought.

He added that Keltes was offered $100 by Andrew Balba, treasurer of the association, who has a butcher shop at 1247 South 50th court, and John Sakal, who has a market at 1843 South 50th avenue, to do the bombing. Keltes, said Bell, placed the bomb and set it off.

Bell, Balba and Sakal, according to Assistant State's Attorney E. A. Markham, will be arraigned Friday. Their bonds were fixed at $25,000 each.

LOSING WEIGHT AND SO WEAK

—a 10-year-old could tire him out!

But in 6 weeks gained 22 lbs., "strong man" pep!

IT "got his goat" to be thin and pimply. But it hurt even more—to be left exhausted, out of breath—by a friendly tussle with a youngster!

But what a difference today! Now he can "lick his weight in wildcats"—has cleared his complexion, put on weight, too. He writes: "I am twenty-four years old but I used to look like forty. I was often constipated, my skin was blemished and I was extremely thin. Worst of all, I was as weak as water. Actually, I couldn't hold my own with a ten-year-old. After sparring around for a few minutes, I had to call quits.

"Since taking Ironized Yeast, I feel like a new man. No more constipation, pimples have disappeared and I have passed a Civil Service examination which would have been impossible before. Now after 6 weeks I have gained 22 lbs. I feel as if I could lick my weight in wildcats." Mr. Earl F. Ayers, 319 W. 29th St., N.Y., N.Y.

New health for you!

Join the crowds of happy men and women who now are rounding out scrawny, "scarecrow" figures—clearing dull, blemished complexions, correcting constipation, weakness—the quick, easy Ironized Yeast way!

Concentrated "beer yeast"

To give you extra benefits, the makers of Ironized Yeast import a specially cultured, super-rich yeast—"beer yeast"! In addition, this yeast is concentrated by a process of such scientific importance that the Biological Commission of the League of Nations officially recommended its adoption as a world-wide standard.

Seven pounds of "beer yeast" make just one pound of the yeast concentrate. This powerful health-builder is then ironized—treated with three distinct kinds of energizing, blood-enriching iron. Thus Ironized Yeast is really two tonics in one! It quickly adds sound tissue—strengthens, regulates the entire system, too!

Triple-tested

Beware cheap substitutes

The genuine Ironized Yeast is triple-tested—by our own scientists, by a well-known physician and by a professor of Bio-Chemistry in a famous medical college. But remember, in order to gain its test-proven results, you must use the real Ironized Yeast. Flatly refuse any package not marked "Ironized Yeast". Don't put any tablet not marked "I. Y." in your stomach. (The iron in genuine Ironized Yeast cannot discolor teeth or upset the stomach.)

GUARANTEED: If the very first package does not help you, as it has helped countless others, its cost will be promptly refunded. At all druggists. Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga.

ADELAIDE BROWN, CHICAGO PIONEER, DEAD AT AGE OF 88

Funeral services for Miss C. Adelaide Brown, pioneer Chicagoan who died early yesterday in her apartment in the Chicago Beach hotel, will be held tomorrow afternoon. The services will be at 2:30 o'clock in the chapel at Rosehill cemetery. Burial will be at Rosehill.

Miss Brown, who was 88 years old, was the daughter of Joseph E. Brown, who came to Chicago in 1836 from Connecticut, making the trip in a covered wagon. She was born in 1844 in a frame house at the corner of Clark street and Jackson boulevard, and was a sister of Mrs. George B. Swift, wife of a former Chicago mayor. She was widely traveled, and had been a trustee of both the original and the present First Methodist church, now at Clark and Washington streets. Six nieces and nephews survive.

MOTHER BEGINS FIGHT TO FREE HEIRESS SLAYER

Mrs. Carrie P. Morgan, 68 year old mother of Helen Joy Morgan of Flint, Mich., who is serving a sentence of 20 to 25 years in the Detroit house of correction for killing her sweetheart, last night announced plans for a new fight to free her daughter. An appeal to the Michigan Supreme court is being perfected by Attorney Barratt O'Hara.

"My daughter is innocent," Mrs. Morgan said. "She was sent to prison by the perjured testimony of underworld characters. She shot Leslie Casteel in a struggle for a pistol, with which he had theatened to kill her. Leslie Casteel first ruined my daughter's life, and now his family and underworld friends have sent her to prison."

Mrs. Morgan returned to Chicago, her home until she moved to Flint with her daughter eight years ago, to plan the fight to free the 27 year old girl. "I will never rest until she is vindicated," she said.

Mrs. Morgan is reputed to be worth several millions, owning property in Chicago, Flint, Biloxi, Miss., and Arcadia, Cal. She inherited some of her wealth from her father, Dr. John Pischak, once prominent in Chicago, and built the remainder of her fortune in real estate investments, she said.

BRITISH TO PAY $150,000,000 TO U. S. BANKERS

Seen as Aid to World Confidence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—The British treasury has notified American banks that on Friday it will pay off and cancel $150,000,000 of the $200,000,000 one year credit secured by its last Aug. 28, for the defense of the pound sterling.

The August credit, which proved in the event unequal to the task of preserving the gold standard in England, amounted in all to $400,000,000, of which one-half was supplied by the Paris market and one-half by a syndicate of 110 American banks under the leadership of J. P. Morgan & Co. It was secured by the British treasury after an earlier credit of $250,000,000 extended to the Bank of England by the Federal Reserve banks and the Bank of France jointly had been exhausted.

Suspends Gold Payment.

Within less than a month the treasury credit had also been consumed and the Bank of England, with $650,000,000 gold in its vaults and with credits of an exactly equal amount owed abroad by itself and the treasury, was forced on Sept. 21, to suspend the gold redemption of its notes.

The last of the Bank of England credit of $250,000,000 was paid off on Feb. 1, and now the British treasury is about to redeem 75 per cent of its foreign loan nearly six months before it is due. The action of Great Britain in thus paying off the credits contracted for the defense of the pound is an achievement without parallel in the history of international finance, leading bankers here said today. Coming in a period of universal financial distress and widespread default, the British achievement should greatly contribute to the restoration of confidence upon international creditors and debtors, according to Wall street commentators.

It's Encouraging Sign.

From the viewpoint of the American banks themselves, the repayment of the British treasury credit means the liquidation of a commitment which they had expected to be forced to hold for a full year. It should have a distinct influence toward easier money market conditions here temporarily since it will free $150,000,000 from investment in British treasury bills for investment in other securities.

The news of the British treasury's intention became known today when banks throughout the country that had participated in the loan were asked to agree to repayment of part in advance of maturity. No announcement on the subject was made nor any formal statement as to the details. Bankers here explained that the matter was one which the British treasury alone had the right to announce. The significance of the transaction was so great, however, that it was impossible to prevent the spread of the news.

It is understood that the chancellor of the exchequer will reply to a question on the subject in the house of commons tomorrow and that formal announcement of the government's intention will be forthcoming later in the week.

ERIE PREDICTS LESS EARNINGS; ASKS FOR LOAN

New York, March 1.—(AP)—The Erie railroad management is looking for a slight reduction in gross earnings this year from the $50,153,601 reported for 1931.

In its application to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $10,350,000, the management estimated gross revenues for this year at $39,247,000. The estimate of net railway operating income, however, was more cheerful, being placed at $15,123,000, contrasted with $10,362,102 in 1931.

Balance available for interest in 1932 is estimated at $16,233,900 and net income after interest at $3,653,100. For 1931 the road had a deficit after interest of approximately $700,000.

The Nickel Plate system in its loan application estimated net railway operating income for February at $131,196 and for March at $505,022.

Southern railway, in its loan application, estimated a 1932 deficit of $5,953,712, compared with an actual deficit of $5,322,842 in 1931.

January net railway operating income of roads reporting today included:

	1932.	1931.
Norfolk and Western	$762,064	$1,678,683
Canadian Pacific	649,939	874,302

BORROWERS WILL PAY 5½ AND 6 PER CENT FOR LOANS FROM R.F.C.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Interest rates from 5½ to 6 per cent, the higher rate being most frequently applied, are being charged by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on loans granted under the act.

The initial funds for the corporation were obtained at 3⅛ and 3¾ per cent through two government certificate issues on Feb. 1 totaling $373,000,000. The substantial spread between the cost of the corporation's funds and the cost to borrowers provides not only a margin against possible losses, but also an incentive to early repayment by the debtor.

Railroad loans are the only ones which have received publicity because of the requirement for interstate commerce commission approval of the applications. Most of these have been granted at an interest rate of 6 per cent.

Half Billion Oil Combine O.K.'d by Votes

Independence, Kas., March 1.—(AP)—A new giant of the oil world was born tonight. Stockholders then completed ratification of the Prairie-Sinclair merger, creating the Consolidated Oil corporation, a half billion dollar concern.

The Consolidation combines the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, the Prairie Oil and Gas company and the Prairie Pipe Line company, operating in the southwest and midwest.

Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate who left an Independence drug store some 30 years ago to take a hand in the early development of the midcontinent petroleum fields, will be chairman of the executive committee.

H. R. Gallagher President.

H. R. Gallagher, Los Angeles, formerly with the Shell Oil corporation on the Pacific coast, will be president. W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of Prairie Oil and Gas, is expected to assume active direction of the new corporation.

At the Sinclair meeting in New York today more than two-thirds of that corporation's stock was voted in favor of the merger. The Prairie Oil and Gas company meeting here recorded 88.30 per cent of the outstanding stock in approval and the Prairie Pipe Line company tonight voted 3,570,898 shares to 121,676 for the merger, out of a total of 4,050,000 shares. The percentage of Prairie Pipe stockholders favoring the merger was 88.17.

Attorneys representing opposing Prairie Pipe stockholders made a part of the records their demands that their clients be paid in cash the intrinsic and real value of their respective holdings of the capital stock of Prairie Pipe Line. Those stockholders said if this was refused such legal action would be taken as advised by counsel.

Threatens to File Suit.

Last night Arthur Mag, Kansas City attorney said suit might be filed contending that under the Kansas law unanimous consent of the stockholders was necessary to effect a consolidation.

Prairie Pipe officials declared assent of only 80 per cent was required for sale of the assets. The dissidents were denied an injunction in federal court at Topeka Saturday to restrain today's meeting.

The consolidation will make the new corporation complete in all departments of the industry. The units entering it were hampered in this respect and officials of the companies said competition from other major concerns had made it necessary to branch out.

Sinclair consolidated brings to the merger a well developed refining and selling business, the Prairie Pipe is a carrier of crude, while Prairie Oil and Gas has been one of the largest purchasing and producing companies in the midcontinent.

The Prairie companies formerly supplied the Standard Oil company of Indiana with crude from Kansas and Oklahoma. They have faced difficulties since the Standard developed its own production and transportation system.

Basis of Stock Trade.

Under terms of the consolidation Sinclair and Prairie Oil and Gas stock will be traded on a share-for-share basis. Prairie Pipe stockholders will receive 14 shares for 10 of their present shares.

The minority Prairie Pipe stockholders opposed the merger on the ground that their company was out of debt and had current liquid assets of $59,000,000, amounting to $14.60 a share, in addition to physical assets worth $68,000,000. They suggested that a melon of $12 a share be cut and that the consolidation offer then might be acceptable.

A balance sheet recently made public placed the total assets of the three companies at $532,516,622 as of May 31, 1931. Sinclair's total was $506,725,765; Pairie Oil and Gas approximately $90,000,000 and Prairie Pipe approximately $135,000,000.

The Consolidated Oil corporation will be a holding company for the operating units. The Prairie Oil and Gas company will become the Commonwealth Oil and Gas company in charge of production. Prairie Pipe's name will be changed to the Commonwealth Pipe Line company.

Another Chicago Stock Exchange Seat at $5,000

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the sale of a membership on the Chicago Stock exchange at $5,000, no change in price.

New York, March 1.—The New York Stock exchange announced today that arrangements have been completed for the sale of a membership at $126,000, a decline of $14,000 from the last previous sale.

NORTH SHORE ELECTRIC ASKS FEDERAL LOAN

Wants $2,300,000 for Its Needs.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad today asked the interstate commerce commission to approve a loan of $2,300,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to pay bank loans and notes.

The Missouri and North Arkansas railroad has asked for $1,250,000 to pay obligations.

The interstate commerce commission approved loans to the Western Pacific railway, aggregating $2,102,000, and including $1,308,000 to meet fixed charges.

Four southern cities joined Indiana in opposing the proposal of eastern trunk line railroads to allocate the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railroad to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The cities represented included New Orleans, Jacksonville, Tampa, and Charleston. It was said to take the Monon from the Southern railway and the Louisville and Nashville would cripple the south. This statement was confirmed by Y. Hayes of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce and C. E. Hockstedler of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Merger Inquiry Asked.

A resolution asking Attorney General Mitchell to report whether railroad mergers through holding companies have violated anti-trust laws was introduced today by Senator King [D., Utah]. The resolution also would ask the attorney general to report what steps he contemplates to enforce the anti-trust laws in regard to holding companies.

Examiner John L. Rogers of the interstate commerce commission has recommended that it require railroads to equip certain classes of locomotives with power reverse gears. This is in line with the complaint of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers that many railroads endanger employés by using locomotives equipped only with hand reverse gears, submitting a list of accidents as evidence. The railroads cited injuries called due to the use of the power gear and insisted railroads should not be called upon to spend additional sums under present financial conditions.

Would Buy Street Ry.

Springfield, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—The Illinois Terminal transportation company today obtained permission of the Illinois commerce commission to purchase the street railway lines and other property of the Alton railway company in Alton for $10,000. The purchasing company also will acquire the franchise of the Alton Railway company.

THREE NEW MEMBERS NAMED TO EDISON CO. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Three new members were elected to the executive committee of the Commonwealth Edison company yesterday at the annual organization meeting of the board of directors. The new members are Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company; James Simpson, chairman of Marshall Field & Co., and Sewell L. Avery, president of the United States Gypsum company and chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Samuel Insull was reelected chairman of the committee. The naming of Mr. Avery to the committee follows his election as a director of the company at the annual stockholders meeting Monday. Mr. Simpson and Mr. Smith had both formerly served as directors. The retiring committee members are Edward J. Doyle, president of the company; Henry A. Blair, deceased, and John H. Gullick. Officers of the company were reelected for the coming year.

Leading Dealers Reduce Bankers' Acceptance Rate

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Leading dealers in bankers' acceptances today reduced rates by ⅛ of one per cent on maturities of 90 days and above. This is equivalent to a rise in the current market price. Under the new schedule the buying rates on maturities of 30, 60 and 90 days are 2¾ per cent bid, 2⅝ per cent asked; 150 and 180 days, 3 per cent bid, 2⅞ per cent asked. This is the second reduction in rates within the last week.

COMMITTEE SET UP BY GENERAL THEATERS GROUP

Will Aid the Preferred Stockholders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Formation of a protective committee for preferred stock voting trust certificates of General Theaters Equipment, Inc., was announced today.

"The appointment of a receiver for General Theaters Equipment, Inc.," the committee stated, "makes prompt and concerted action necessary if your rights, both as against creditors of the company and also in the equities of its subsidiary and controlled companies are to be preserved."

Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson today appointed United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Wilmington, Del., as ancillary receiver in this district for General Theaters Equipment, Inc., a holding company controlling Fox Film corporation, Fox Theaters corporation and other allied interests. Bond was fixed in the amount of $10,000. The action here today follows the appointment of Senator Hastings as receiver for the corporation yesterday in the Court of Chancery in Wilmington.

The bill of complaint states that the corporation has outstanding current liabilities in excess of $24,000,000, of which the larger portion becomes due March 15.

RAIL CAR LOADINGS 10,141 MORE THAN IN THE PREVIOUS WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on Feb. 20 totaled 572,808 cars, the car service division of the American Railway association announced today.

This was an increase of 10,141 cars above the preceding week, 140,550 cars below the corresponding week in 1931 and 254,954 cars under the same period two years ago.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of Feb. 20 totaled 133,858 cars, a decrease of 2,069 cars below the preceding week, 67,090 cars under the corresponding wee kin 1931, and 125,555 cars under the same week in 1930.

Insull Stocks Under Strain in Mart Here

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks of the Insull Utility companies were under severe selling pressure on the Chicago exchange yesterday and prices of the leading shares broke to new low prices for the bear market. The selling fire was directed chiefly against Middle West Utilities company shares, the big Insull holding concern, but the shares of the leading operating firms, Commonwealth Edison and Public Service of Northern Illinois, were also weak.

Selling came from several leading commission houses which previously have been buyers of the stocks. Reports that banks were liquidating the stocks were said to without basis, but it was apparent that many brokers were reducing the holdings of customers with impaired margin accounts.

Further Action Awaited.

The impending reorganization of the two investment trusts which hold the balance of power in the leading Insull operating companies has caused some uneasiness because of the possibility that it would be necessary to liquidate large blocks of the shares. Some guessers attributed yesterday's weakness to bank selling on the theory that the bankers are putting the loans they have made to the investment trusts in better shape.

As far as could be learned the supposition was erroneous. The standstill agreement which the various interested bankers entered into recently was said to be still in force.

Commonwealth Edison sold below par for the first time since 1908. It closed at 98¼, its low for the day, after 1,700 shares had changed hands. Public Service no par also slipped below 100, selling as low as 97½ and closing at 98, a net loss of 5¼ points. Edison's net decline was 5¾ points.

Mild Rally Develops.

The trading in Middle West common was unusually active and the price was constantly receding throughout the period, except in the last half hour when a mild rally developed. The low price for the day was 2½, and the final quotations was 2¾, compared with the previous close of 3¼. The extremely low price for the stock brought out a good deal of margin selling which further aggravated the weakness. The notes of the company, due in 90 days, were quoted sharply lower in New York at 43.

The annual report of Middle West will be issued within a few days. Samuel Insull Jr. has estimated 1931 earnings at 90 cents a share on common.

The weakness was not confined to the Insull securities. Bendix Aviation shares tumbled 2½ points as the reduction in the dividend rate caught traders unawares. It had been generally expected that the $1 yearly rate would be maintained.

Walter J. Buettner, vice president and treasurer, stated yesterday that earnings of the company in 1931, including certain items of non-recurring profit, amounted to $1,785,479, equivalent to 85 cents a share on the capital stock. In 1930 the company earned net profit of $1,133,859 or 56 cents a share. The annual report will be issued March 19.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—There were enough speculative rumors going the rounds in Wall street today to provide the "makings" of a worth while stock market of either bull or bear persuasion.

The Bank of England was about to repay a substantial part of the $200,000,000 credit it obtained here last summer. Another "important announcement" is in course of preparation at the White House. A second wage cut is imminent in the steel industry.

Indifferent to News.

The trading community ignored it all alike. It showed the same indifference to the more concrete tidings of a batch of important new dividend cuts.

The market turnover today came to only about 800,000 shares—even less than yesterday's showing. Price movements were just as dull and uninteresting.

Closing figures were irregular. Among the more noticeable changes were American Tobacco, off 2 points; Atchison, up 1½; Auburn, up 6¼; U. S. Steel, up ¾; Detroit Edison, off 1; Johns Manville, off 2½; Western Union, up 1, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, up 1⅝ points.

Bendix Aviation suffered a loss of nearly 2 points. At its worst today the issue was at a new low for the year.

Auburn Passes 91.

Auburn got above 91 again and the street heard that pool operators had a hand in its upturn. It has become the fashion, however, to blame almost every turn taken by this most spectacular of all volatiles on a pool which was widely reported to have disbanded back last October. Other motor shares displayed a generally firm tone.

The coppers continued to sulk over the failure of producers to get together on curtailment.

An Investment That Has Increased In Value Even Since 1929

Every man or woman who had $5000 in a savings account at this Bank three years ago, and has kept it here with accrued interest, has seen it grow to $5467.18. And every savings account, regardless of size, that has been kept intact at this Bank has grown proportionately

SOUND BONDS

NOW SELLING

TO YIELD ABOUT

DOUBLE

THEIR USUAL INCOME

Not since the early 90's have many sound bonds sold at such low price levels as now prevail. In some classifications, and in many individual issues, prices are lower than in 1920-1921.

We have prepared a diversified list of twelve bonds—all well secured—all earning their interest requirements by an ample margin—all selling, on the average, for about half their par values.

These twelve bonds, in $1000 denominations ($12,000 in par value), could be bought at today's market for about $6500. The average yield, to maturity, would be 11.5 per cent—as compared with the average coupon rate of 5.4 per cent. Some of the issues are available in denominations of $500 and $100.

We do not advise the purchase of these bonds for speculative purposes. But we do recommend them to investors who wish to take advantage of present bond prices—to secure a rate of income ordinarily unheard of in conservative investments.

Write for this list now. It describes the issues, gives essential information as to security and recent earnings.

TAKE FIRST STEP IN REFINANCING OF RITZ HOTEL

Owner Surrenders Right to Operate.

The initial step in the reorganization of the Ritz hotel property, at 4711-13 Kenmore avenue, was taken yesterday when the estate of Carl John Stein, owner of the equity, surrendered the right to operate the hostelry to the American Trust and Safe Deposit company. This step was taken to avoid a receivership. The Stein estate retains title to the property.

DAYTON KEITH.

The junior interests have agreed to go along with the bondholders' protective committee, of which Craig E. Hazlewood, vice president of the First National bank, is chairman. The other members of the committee are Dayton Keith, Frederick H. Curry, H. K. Hallett, Joseph E. Otis, Wallace T. Perkins and Walter J. Sugden.

The Ritz hotel is a three story structure containing ninety furnished rooms and was financed through an American Bond and Mortgage company $175,000 first mortgage real estate bond issue, which has since been reduced to $141,000. An $8,500 prepayment on the principal defaulted on Jan. 1, 1931, and the interest defaulted on July 1, 1931, and Jan. 1, 1932. The accrued interest amounts to $8,612. Details of the reorganization are to be announced later. Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse are attorney for the committee.

Lakewood-Pratt Apartments.

C. J. Olsen, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee for the Lakewood-Pratt apartments, at the southeast corner of Lakewood avenue and Pratt boulevard, reports that in July and August of last year seventy-seven of the 104 apartments were occupied, or 74.04 per cent. In September and October 75 per cent were rented. In November the occupancy decreased to sixty-seven, or 64.42 per cent, and in December it slipped down to thirty-eight, or 36.5 per cent.

A statement of cash receipts and disbursements from April 2, 1930, to Dec. 31, 1931, shows $12,482 cash on hand at the latter date. The gross receipts for that period were $164,781. Operating expenses were $90,374. Other disbursements included $3,900 for receiver's fees and $1,000 for attorney's fees. Furniture and furnishings were rented at an expense of $40,660. No reason for renting instead of buying furniture and furnishings was advanced in the statement. This is a $700,000 Greenebaum Sons Investment company bond issue, since reduced to $692,000.

Ogden-22d Building.

The receiver's statement of receipts and disbursements for the Ogden and 22d street building made public yesterday shows cash on hand on Jan. 31, 1932, of $4,097. The gross income from date of appointment of receiver, May 21, 1930, to Jan. 31, 1932, was $11,687. The operating expenses were $3,448; receiver's fees were $725; attorney's fees, $500, and 1928 general taxes were $2,617. Total disbursements were $7,589.

According to Walter C. Palmer, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, the occupancy on Feb. 4, 1932, was 100 per cent for the auto laundry and 33.33 per cent for the stores. The original bond issue was underwritten by the Madison and Kedzie State bank and was for $250,000 at 7 per cent. This has since been reduced to $244,000. The Chicago Title and Trust company is receiver and also depositary.

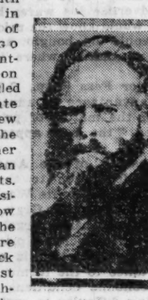
WILLIAM BROSS LIVED ON SITE OF SEARS STORE

Rolled His House Down State Street.

BY AL CHASE.

Years before the great Chicago fire of '71 William Bross, who was associated later with Joseph Medill in the early days of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, mounted his house on wheels and rolled it down State street to a new location at the southeast corner of State and Van Buren streets. His new residence site is now occupied by the huge new store of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the 381st retail establishment of the big mail order concern, which will be formally opened to the public tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.



WILLIAM BROSS.

Mr. Bross had purchased a small tract of land at this point on what was then a prairie, and his house is said to have remained on wheels for some time because of the somewhat marshy character of his new real estate.

Years later Mr. Bross, according to his personal reminiscences, had a cow inclined to wander about the close in south side and frequently he found her on "the prairie at 12th street." Whether Mrs. O'Leary's famous animal is a descendant of this wandering bovine history falls to state.

Meant for Postoffice.

Many years later Levi Z. Leiter, who then owned the property, erected the present eight story structure which he had hoped to have used as a postoffice. Instead it was occupied by the Siegel-Cooper store, one of the best known establishments of its kind in the world.

Mundie & Jensen, architects for the Leiter estate, who were in charge of remodeling operations, in association with Nimmons, Carr & Wright, architects for Sears, Roebuck & Co., are the logical successors to the original architect, Maj. William Le Baron Jenney, a pioneer in skeleton type construction. William B. Mundie, now senior member of the firm, was a young man when the structure was erected.

He was employed by Maj. Jenney and was sent to Portland, Me., to hasten the shipment of quarried stone for the seventh and eighth floors. The building originally was planned to be ten stories and Mr. Mundie says it is capable of carrying two more floors.

Makes It a Pioneer.

As the Home Insurance and Tacoma buildings, both claimants to the honor of "first skeleton type skyscrapers," have made way for modern structures, the new Sears store building takes the position of pioneer in this type of construction.

There are several interesting features in this old structure. The foundations are of a type seldom if ever encountered in the building of the era in which it was erected. Walls are supported on concrete substructures that extend down to bedrock, while the floors and interior framework rest on a solid slab of steel reinforced concrete many feet in thickness. The inner foundations, quite independent of the wall foundations, actually cover the entire ground area, something more than 35,000 square feet.

Walls of Granite.

The walls, of extraordinary thickness even for that period, were, it was said in 1891, "tested as thoroughly as strains and stresses are tested on the most important bridges."

Generally designated as merely gray stone, the walls are really of genuine New England granite. The building, a rectangle, is devoid of elaborate ornamentation. It is of stone, steel and glass throughout, with lofty ceilings. In fact, the main floor celing was too high and a new and lower ceiling was built.

There are no available records showing the original cost of the building, which is said to have been erected by Levi Z. Leiter as a permanent memorial to his name. The architects say it could not be reproduced today without spending several millions.

HEAVY SELLING BRINGS DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES

Report Buying of Futures for Foreign Account.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders yesterday placed a bearish construction on the private reports on farm reserves as of March 1 and on the comment on the crop which accompanied the returns. There was heavy selling by several commission houses early which mystified the trade, and, with pressure from the local element, prices dropped around 1c from Monday's finish to 60½c for May. Buying against bids absorbed the surplus in the pit and a rally followed, but the close was at net losses of ⅝@⅝c. March finished at 56½c; May, 60⅝@60½c; July, 62@62⅝c, and September, 63¾c.

Houses with New York connections were reported as having been liberal sellers of wheat futures at Winnipeg, and there was only fair support, owing to a light and scattered foreign demand for cash grain. The Canadian markets were off ½@¾c for the day, with May at 66½c in Canadian funds, which were around 11⅝ per cent discount.

Foreigners Buy Futures.

Buying of wheat futures here for foreign account was reported during the day, and some operators expressed the belief that this was a forerunner of a resumption of heavy buying of North American cash wheat. Liverpool reported 1,128,000 bu wheat delivered on March contracts, which went into strong hands. The English market closed ¾@1c lower for the day, with May at 53⅞c, or 1⅝c under Chicago. All deliveries of futures in that market are now at a discount as compared with prices prevailing here.

There is no scarcity of cash wheat in the United States, as shown by the private reports, farm holdings being estimated at 179,000,000 bu, against 161,000,000 bu last year, and the belief was expressed that after allowing for stocks in all positions there were around 400,000,000 bu more than bread and seed requirements the balance of the current crop year.

Winter wheat failed to show normal deterioration during the winter, and the condition at the present time is estimated by leading local authorities about the same as the 79.4 which prevailed on Dec. 1, and compared with 87.5 a year ago. Heavy dust storms were reported over a large area in western Kansas during the day and there was some apprehension of damage. No rain was in sight for that section, according to the official forecast. Some moisture, however, was received in parts of the Canadian northwest, which reported dust storms on Sunday and Monday.

Cash Corn in Demand.

An active demand for cash corn in the sample market, with the basis ¾@⅞c higher as compared with May, and expectations of smaller receipts, more than offset everything of a bearish influence in futures. The latter were easy early, with May touching 35c, or ⅝c under Monday's finish early. On the break there was buying against bids, and later shorts started to cover and the nearby futures finished ⅛@⅜c higher, while September was ⅞c lower. March closed at 35½c; May, 39½c; July, 42⅝c, and September, 43¾c.

Farm reserves of corn were estimated by local statisticians at 1,070,000,000 bu, taking the average, compared with 704,000,000 bu last year, when the supply was abnormally small. The mild winter and the use of wheat and other grains for live stock feed curtailed consumption of corn to a considerable extent. The country sold 25,000 bu to arrive, while shipping sales were 13,000 bu. Deliveries on March contracts aggregated 1,408,000 bu.

Oats Range Narrow.

Oats held within narrow limits and closed unchanged to ⅛c lower. May finished at 24⅝@24⅝c, and July, 25⅜c. Farm reserves were placed at 377,000,000 bu, compared with 430,000,000 bu last year. There was buying of March and selling of May early by industries at 3c difference.

Supplies of rye in the United States are well below those of a year ago. Farm reserves were estimated at 5,000,000 bu, against 9,000,000 bu, while the total of reserves and commercial stocks at the leading markets is 15,000,000 bu, a decrease of 8,000,000 bu from 1931. Foreigners were moderate buyers of rye futures here during the day, but the close was ⅜c lower to ¾c higher, with May 46½c and July 40½c. Nothing was heard regarding export demand.

REVERSES RULING ON MO.-KAS. PIPE RECEIVER SUIT

A ruling of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in dismissing receivership proceedings a year ago against the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company and Frank P. Paris & Co. was reversed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The Parish concern was organized for the sale of stock in the pipe line company.

Judge Woodward had denied without prejudice a motion for the appointment of a receiver with the provision that the motion might be renewed when the defendants file their answer to a bill of complaint pending against them.

The Appeal court opinion was written by Judge Will Sparks and concurred in by Presiding Judge Samuel Alschuler and Judge Evan A. Evans. The judges held that there were grave charges alleged in the bill of complaint and sufficient acts to justify a valid cause for the District court to assume jurisdiction in the case.

Cut Chicago, N. Y. Rates on Bankers' Acceptances

Chicago and New York dealers yesterday reported reductions in rates on bankers' acceptances. Dealers reduced rates on ninety day maturities by one-eighth of one per cent, bringing the buying rates on thirty, sixty and ninety days to 2¾ per cent bid and 2⅝ ask. Rates on 150 and 180 day maturities are now 3 per cent bid and 2⅞ ask.

$25,000,000 MORE FOR U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE SOON

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—The department of agriculture will receive $25,000,000 more from the Reconstruction Finance corporation by June 1. This is in addition to the $50,000,000 given the department for crop loans under the finance corporation act.

The new funds will come from the sale of $250,000,000 in debentures to be issued by the finance corporation, the department being entitled to 10 per cent of all securities issued by the rehabilitation agency.

The reconstruction agency is authorized to issue debentures amounting to $1,500,000,000 and of this—if the full amount were issued—the department would receive $150,000,000.

Although no announcement was made by the department, most of the $25,000,000 will probably be used for crop loans, the $50,000,000 being earmarked for that purpose.

COTTON UNSETTLED

Cotton fluctuated erratically within a range of around 5 points yesterday. There was free selling in the New York market credited to a professional, but it was absorbed by the trade and others without the price being affected to any great extent. There was also selling at times credited to co-operatives, as well as hedging, and by the south. Closing trades in Chicago were unchanged to 5 points lower, while New York was 2 points lower to 1 point higher, and New Orleans 1 point higher to 1 point lower.

Reports from Worth street were mixed, with slightly higher prices asked on some numbers, while others were ahead to make sales. The New York exchange service reported that consumption in the orient continued heavy, while in Europe it showed little change except in England, where it was better. The Fairchild service suggested a decrease of 14.7 per cent in the acreage which would be planted this spring. Spots were 5 points lower to 5 points higher. New York, 7c; New Orleans, 6.80c; Galveston and Houston, 6.85c. Prices follow:

LARD STOCKS INCREASE

Relatively light receipts of hogs had little effect on lard and meats yesterday, scattered selling developing which found support less active and lard closed 7½@10c lower, while bellies were nominally unchanged to 2½c lower. Local stocks of lard increased 8,100,000 lbs in February and aggregate 33,200,000 lbs compared with 26,600,000 lbs last year. The gain during the last month was slightly larger than the trade anticipated. Stocks of cut meats are 146,600,000 lbs, a gain of 24,900,000 lbs in February and compare with 155,700,000 lbs last year. Deliveries of lard on March contracts aggregated 650,000 lbs. Prices follow:

EGG TRADING LARGER

New fall and spring egg contracts opened trading for the year on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday at prices ranging from $700 to $950 per car under the prices at which similar deliveries opened last year. October eggs sold at 16c. March storage packed, 13c, and April at 13½c. Other egg deliveries were unchanged. Butter futures closed ½c lower to ½c higher. The activity in the new egg contracts was somewhat better than expected, although prices failed to move materially during the session. The low levels reflected bearish sentiment. Statistical news was unchanged, the receipts continuing sharply under last year and the storage movement showing better than a year ago. Butter news was neutral, the changing weather conditions bringing in slightly better support and checking selling. Sales: Butter, 65 cars; eggs, 53 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

Trading in futures on the New York Hide Exchange in February showed a material increase over the previous month, around 40,000,000 lbs changing hands, and was well above the business in February last year. Prices advanced sharply during the latter part of the month, the most active months showing gains of around 1½c per lb as compared with figures prevailing at the low point. Settlement of the packer and tanner dispute over trade terms early in the month was followed by heavy trading in spot hides, and packers were able to dispose of a large part of their surplus stocks.

Trading yesterday was fairly good, with sales of 1,360,000 lbs, while prices were unchanged to 20 points lower. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet today and in the absence of business prices were unchanged at 2.85c for spots. Early steadiness in futures which seemed to reflect a more hopeful view of crop restriction plans, was followed by reaction, with the market closing at net losses of 3 to 4 points. The market opened 1 point lower to 2 points higher and later showed net gains of 1 to 2 points on covering and commission house buying, promoted by the better showing of London and press reports indicating that Cuba would continue in the sugar agreement. Private advices from Cuba said that 60 mills had signed a petition requesting President Machado to issue a decree limiting the present year's production to 2,350,000 tons. Approximate sales, 12,800 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.

Refined sugar was quiet and unchanged at 4.25c for fine granulated.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed unchanged to 4 points lower today, with sales of 7 contracts, or 1,050 barrels. Easiness of lard was the main influence and promoted scattered commission house liquidation. Contract stocks of lard for February at Chicago increased 7,621,401 pounds. Bleachable spot closed 4.35c; March, 4.36c; May, 4.44c; July, 4.55c; September, 4.64c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: spot, 4.00c; March, 4.00c; May, 4.30c; July, 4.40c; September, 4.50c. Crude oil was 3¼ in the southeast and the valely and 3c in Texas.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Cotton goods were quiet today in the gray goods division, with a slight easing reported on a few cloths. The demand for rough weave types of wash goods is steady. Percales are quiet. Higher prices ranging from 3 to 10 per cent up were announced by leading towel manufacturers. Advances of ⅛c to ¼c were announced on branded 4-4 bleached cottons. Rayon crepes and taffetas are slightly easier in the unfinished goods division. Silks are selling a little better this week. Top coatings are in fair demand, dress goods are steady.

SHEEP—Fed western lambs	6.50@6.85
One month ago	5.75@6.50
One year ago	7.50@8.50
Top yesterday, $6.85; average, $6.25.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 12,000.

The position of the live stock market was decidedly better following yesterday's mild upturn. Advances were slight, but action was brisk and all gains were held at the close. Volume of business was greater during the forenoon, particularly in cattle where trading has been almost lifeless for several weeks.

The trade is finally feeling the effects of continued abnormally light supplies. Combined receipts of all cattle, calves, hogs and sheep at Chicago during February at 1,249,721 were second smallest for February since 1920. Only two February totals have been smaller since 1915. Cattle receipts at 162,264 were smallest, with two exceptions, in 17 years, and only three February totals have been smaller since 1887.

Hog receipts at 724,152 were smallest for the month in five years and showed a decrease of 15 per cent compared with the four year February average. Sheep receipts at 322,996 were about average.

Hog prices yesterday pushed ahead to the highest level since Jan. 7, the top going up to $4.40, with the general average at $4.10. The selling side has been trying since early in the year to get the top price over the $4.35 line, which has been the stopping place for every rise since hogs went below $4.50. Ten times in the last seven weeks top sales have been up to $4.35, but not until yesterday did the market have sufficient strength to break through. Additional slight upturns in the wholesale price of fresh pork loins increased the buying power of smaller packers and city butchers, and some buyers had the size of their orders increased several times during the day. Larger houses advanced their bids 5c more, but were not aggressive on the rise. Supplies continue to drop off at all leading points. Yesterday's run at eleven markets at 84,000 compared with 112,000 last Tuesday. The five western points report 61,000 in sight for today, against 63,800 last Wednesday.

Hog Futures Steady.

No changes were made in hog futures quotations yesterday. July and September contracts were offered at 36 and bids were made at $5.00@5.50. May offers were at $5.35 and bids at $5, while March hogs could be purchased at $5, or sold at $4.50.

Buying in the cattle yards gained momentum as the day progressed. From a slow start, the trade turned active and finished strong to 25c higher, with good support on the upturn. Large local packers were in after better grades soon after the opening and a bigger share of long fed stock went over the $8 line during the forenoon. Prime 1,301@1,356 lb steers topped the market for load lots at $8.50, while one steer weighing 1,160 lbs brought $8.75, indicating, traders believe, what a full load of outstanding cattle of that weight would bring. More than the usual number of 1,200@1,500 lb cattle were included in yesterday's arrivals and several loads averaged 1,600@1,750 lbs. One load averaging 1,750 lbs sold at $7.75. A load of Brahma steers from Texas attracted a good deal of attention.

They averaged 1,619 lbs and sold at $6.50. The bulk of all steers sold at $5@8, with thin off colored stock downwards to $4. Odd head of inferior low dressing stock ranged down to $3.00@3.50. Although buyers were very selective in the butcher stock market the rank and file shared in the strength. Calves pulled a surprise and went down 50c despite strength in lambs.

Lambs Shade Higher.

All governing factors in the lamb market, reecipts, demand and wholesale prices, favored the selling side again yesterday and prices were elevated a little more, with the top up 10c at $6.85, highest since the middle of last week. City butchers paid the top, while shippers bought at $6.75 and packers filled several orders at $6.65. Medium grades sold at $6.00@6.25. Matured stock and yearlings held firm. Feeder lambs were quoted steady.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed easy; sales, 220 bales. March, $1.52@1.58; May, $1.59; July, $1.60@1.65; open market quotations [sixty day basis], Shanghai steam extra B, $2.60; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, $1.80; Japanese crack double extra, $1.95.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $226 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans? . . . .

Household loans, $300 or less, to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.

Strictly confidential. Husband and wife only need sign. No endorsers. Quick service. Twenty months to repay.
